I am going camping. I will sleep out in the woods.

Mom says I am a little too little and I should camp out in the backyard.

I find a good campsite.

I get the tent.

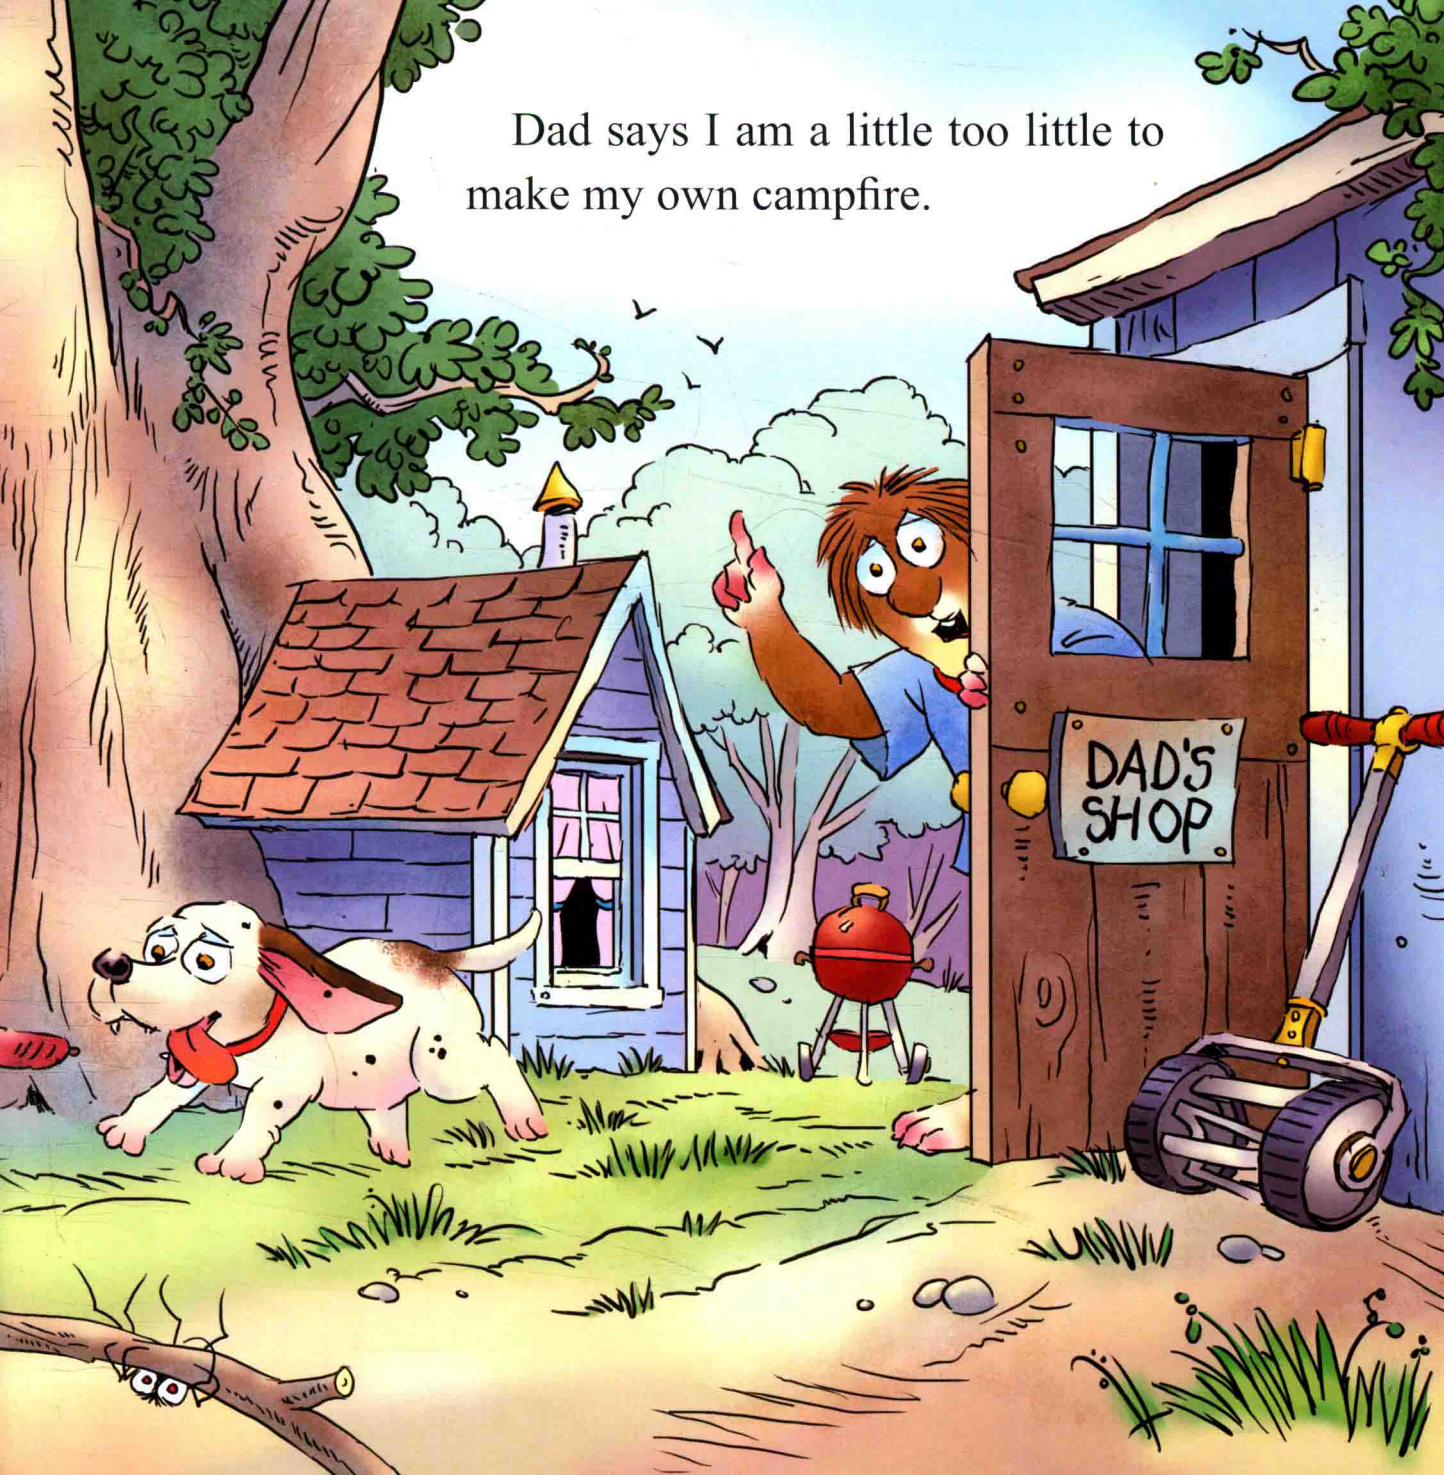

Dad will have to help me. I'm not too little, but the tent is too big.

I am hungry now, I will build a campfire and cook hot dogs.

Dad says I am a little too little to make my own campfire.

Dad cooks hot dogs on the stove. I help, but they're not as good as they are outside.

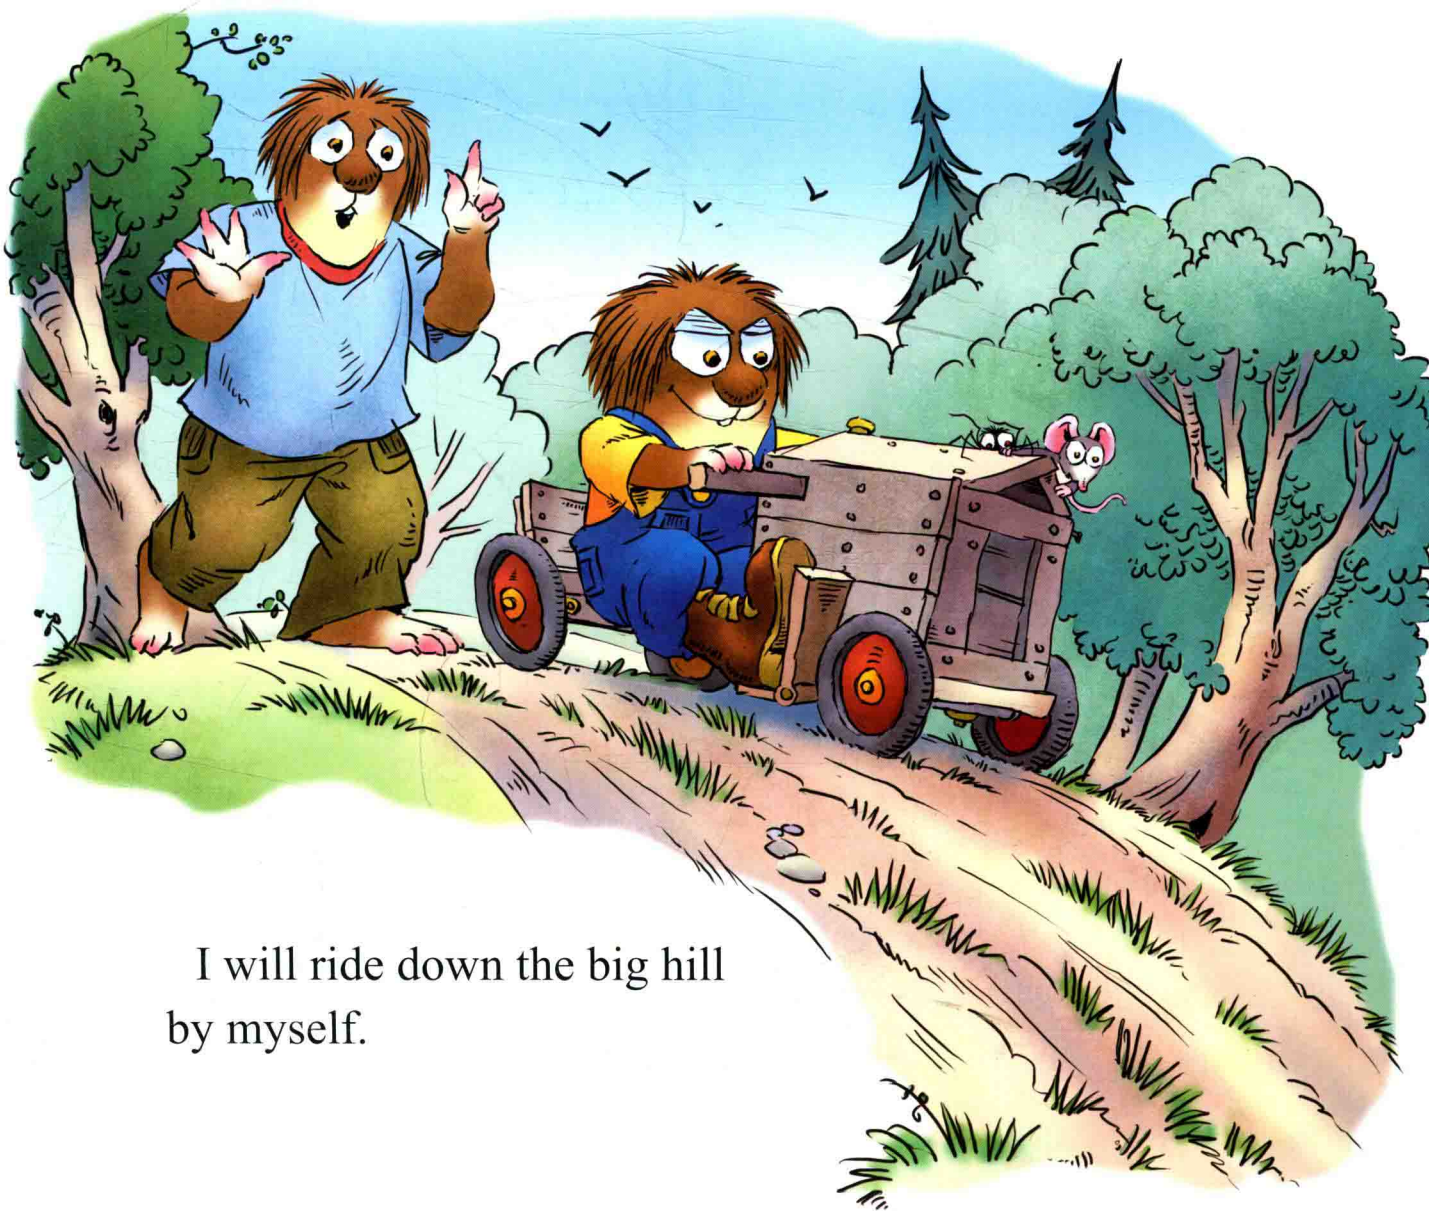

I am not too little to build a race car. I go to Dad's shop.
"Dad!" I say, "I need a saw, a hammer, and some nails."

Dad says I am a little too little to use a sharp saw. We make a race car together. I am not too little for that.

My race car is finished.

I will ride down the big hill
by myself.

Dad rides with me because I'm just a little too little.

The race car falls apart.
