Attention, My Little Pony fans!
Look for these items when you read this book.
Can you spot them all?

Windigo

The pony friends love the holiday called Hearth's Warming Eve. It is a time of harmony and friendship.

The ponies of Canterlot
decorate each wreath and tree with stars, bells, and ribbons.
The city looks so pretty!

Each year, the ponies and Spike put on a show.
The ponies play different parts
while Spike tells the story.

Once, there were three pony tribes.
The leaders of the Earth Ponies, the Pegasi,
and the Unicorns were named Chancellor Puddinghead,
Commander Hurricane, and Princess Platinum.

The Pegasi made the weather.
The Earth Ponies grew the food.
The Unicorns used magic
to make day and night.

This was not a happy time.
The three tribes did not get along.
Then one day a huge snowstorm stopped the crops from growing.

Everypony was running out of food!
The three tribe leaders blamed one another.
The meaner they were,
the harder it snowed.

Each leader decided to find
a new land for her tribe.

Private Pansy went with Commander Hurricane.
Flying in the snowstorm
was scary.

Princess Platinum was glad to leave the others.

“Do you agree?”

she asked Clover the Clever.

“We could have tried harder,”

Clover answered.

Smart Cookie and Chancellor
Puddinghead kept getting lost.
Puddinghead might have been using her map wrong.

All the ponies found new homes
for their tribes.

"I name this land Pegasopolis," said Hurricane.
