PREFACE

有人说托福口语的提分在于技巧，也有人说托福口语的提分在于机经，其实老师们最害怕的就是遇到相信自己可以在一夜之间提高口语成绩的考生，因为这种浮躁之气很难被祛除。我听过很多托福口语一线名师的课程，课程内容既没有机构宣传的“独家秘笈”，也没有令人向往的“高分大法”，有的无外乎就是那些托福口语考试的基本信息。因此我认为托福口语的提分只在于坚持不懈地练习那些紧跟考情、原汁原味的托福真题。

基于此，外朗教育教研中心组织中美考试专家根据中国大陆的最新托福考试研发了《新托福口语真题集》系列丛书。

本书集合了 2013 年末至 2014 上半年大陆区历次新托福口语考试真题。首次采用二维码技术为每一套题目添加了在线音频，因此考生完全不必像往常那样下载 CD 的录音再复制到移动设备，大家需要的就是拿手机扫一扫每一套题目对应的二维码，即可获得相应的题目和参考答案录音。真正实现了纸质书籍与互联网的无缝对接，相信大家一定会有非凡的阅读体验。

此外，我要衷心感谢外朗教育每一位为本书贡献力量的同事，有了你们的辛勤汗水，才有了这本业内难得的托福口语备考用书；尤其要感谢参与本书编纂的美籍同事，有了你们的不懈努力和一丝不苟的精神，才会造就专业度如此之高的学术作品。

最后，相信本书一定能够成为每一位读者最有价值的托福口语备考资料，也欢迎大家持续关注外朗教育其他出国留学相关产品。

谢谢！

University Art Fair

I believe that the university should hold an art fair to showcase student artwork. This will provide students with an opportunity to exhibit their artwork to the public. Also, the art fair will be a good source of feedback for the art students so that they may improve their techniques and skills. Profits gained from the sale of student artwork can be donated to local charities or even used to fund other campus activities. I believe that having a campus art fair would be of great benefit and enjoyment for everyone who participates.

Now listen to a conversation between two students:

In the listening the woman expresses her opinion about a university art fair. State her opinion and explain the reasons she gives for holding that opinion.

Brood Parasitism

Brood parasitism is a strategy used by brood parasites where organisms manipulate and use host individuals either of the same or different species to raise the young of the brood parasite. This relieves the parasitic parents from the investment of rearing young or building nests, enabling them to spend more time foraging, producing offspring, etc. Brood parasitism has been observed among birds, insects, and fish. This parasitic relationship is typically to the detriment of the host species as eggs and brood compete for incubation, nourishment, and protection.

Now listen to a lecture on the same subject:

How does the example given by the professor help illustrate the phenomenon of brood parasitism? Use specific details in your answer.

Question 1

Talk about your favorite subject from elementary school. Explain why you liked it in detail.

Response 1

My favorite elementary school subject was reading. My teacher would always introduce me to exciting and informative reading material that really appealed to my sense of wonder and curiosity. For example, one week I would read about dinosaurs and animals of the past and the next week I would read about important historical events or read exciting fictional stories. My teacher would always choose interesting books and subjects and in this way helped nurture in me a love for books that still exists today. I would really like to thank my reading teacher for helping me discover a great hobby.

First, I think educational programs are much more stimulating and exciting than entertainment shows. I can usually learn something new or see something new if I watch an educational program. I like to watch programs about science and physics as well as documentaries and historical biographies. Second, the entertainment programming is usually of very poor quality, which I do not find very funny or enjoyable. I think entertainment shows are shows that people only watch when they are bored and don't want to think very hard.

Question 3

Conversation

- A: Hi Samantha. Did you read the opinion letter in the school newspaper today?
- B: The one about the university art fair?
- A: Yes, that one. What do you think?
- B: I would have to disagree with that letter. I don't really think it is a good idea.
- A: Why is that?
- B: Well, first, the university already has an art fair on campus that is hosted in the student center. Students already have ample opportunities to display their pieces and get feedback from professors and the public. I don't really see the need for a second art fair.
- A: Oh, I didn't know that.
- B: Second, I don't think that many of the students would want to donate any proceeds from an art show.
- A: Really? You don't think that they would want to donate to charity?
- B: I think most of the art students will want to keep the money. You know, art supplies are rather expensive. Canvas, paint, brushes, and other supplies are not cheap. I think that most students would rather keep the money.
- A: I didn't think of that.
- B: I don't think there will be too much student support for another university art fair.

Response 3

The two students are discussing an opinion letter that another student wrote regarding a campus art fair where students can display their artwork and donate the proceeds to charity. The woman in the listening disagrees with the letter for two reasons. First, she says that there is already an art fair on campus in the student center. Students already have ample opportunities to receive critical feedback from their professors and the public. Secondly, the woman says that most art students would probably be opposed to donating proceeds from selling their artwork. She says that art supplies like canvas, paints and brushes are in fact very expensive and students will want to recoup some of these costs.

Question 4

Lecture

Brood parasitism is a very interesting and peculiar evolutionary phenomenon whereby a parasite organism leaves its offspring to be incubated and cared for by a host organism. The parasite organism typically accomplishes this by manipulating or tricking the host into believing that parasite brood is in fact host brood. The host organism will then care for this parasite brood, which is usually at the detriment of the host brood as both broods compete for nourishment and survival. Brood parasitism behavior has been widely observed among birds, fish, and insects. Let me give you an example so you can better understand this phenomenon. Fish A is the host organism while Fish B is the parasitic organism. Fish A lays eggs in the water and after fertilization the eggs are stored safely in the mouth of Fish A during the incubation period. Storing the eggs inside of the mouth provides a safe environment for the eggs to incubate as the chance of predation is greatly diminished. Fish B, the parasitic organism, also lays and fertilizes their eggs and hides them amongst the eggs of Fish A. Fish A unknowingly takes both broods into its mouth and incubates them. This has relieved Fish B parents from any responsibility of incubating, protecting or nourishing their young because Fish A has been successfully tricked into caring for both broods. Fish B have more time to spend looking for food and producing more offspring while Fish A is stuck with the burden of looking after the offspring.

Response 4

Brood parasitism is a phenomenon where by a parasitic organism will deceive and trick a host organism into incubating and nurturing the offspring of another organism. The professor gives an example of two fish to illustrate this phenomenon. Fish A lays and fertilizes eggs before carrying them in its mouth for incubation. Fish B, the parasitic organism, will lay and fertilize eggs in the same area as Fish A. When Fish A goes to protect and incubate its eggs, it will also protect and incubate the eggs of Fish B. This is how Fish B tricks the host fish into taking care of its brood. (104 words)

Question 5

Conversation

- A: Hi, Steven. How have you been?
- B: Oh, I've been okay. Just having a bit of trouble completing a school project.
- A: What seems to be the problem? Maybe I can help.
- B: Well, the problem is that it is so noisy in the dormitory and I have three roommates. They are nice guys but sometimes they are very loud and it is hard for me to concentrate on my studies.
- A: I see. Well, what about going to the library to do your studying?
- B: I thought about that. The library would be a quiet place to study, but I have quite a lot of material for my project and it would be inconvenient to carry it back and forth from my dorm room to the library. It would be a lot more convenient to just stay in my room.
- A: Well, why don't you talk to your roommates? Maybe they can be a little more conscientious.
- B: I thought about that too. I was thinking of coming up with a study schedule for our dorm room so that during certain hours of the day it would be quiet and we could study. The problem with this is that I'm afraid if I tell them they are being noisy it might cause some trouble. I don't want them to take it the wrong way.
- A: That's true. They might not understand.
- B: I don't know what to do. I need to finish my project soon.

Response 5

The two students in the listening are discussing a problem the man has. He needs to finish a project but his roommates are very noisy and distracting. He has two solutions. First, he can go to the library to work on his project. Second, he can ask his roommates to be a little quieter and organize a study schedule. I would recommend the man ask his roommates to be quieter and respect a study schedule. I do not think it would cause any problems in his dorm room because they are all students and will respect the need to have a quiet environment in which to study. Also, taking his project items and material back and forth from his dorm to the library will be very inconvenient.

Question 6Lecture

Two types of advertising methods exist to help better serve the consumer market and the industrial market. Consumer marketing is defined as creating and selling products, goods and services to individual buyers. The consumer market represents individuals and families purchasing goods and services for personal consumption. The consumer market excludes business or government purchases, or other non-personal investments. Industrial marketing, also commonly called business marketing, on the other hand, deals with marketing goods and services from one business to another business. Let's take a look at an example of each type of advertising method so that you can better understand these two concepts. An example of consumer marketing would be a medical company that makes cold medicine. This company markets directly to the public and attempts to persuade the consumer of the benefits and necessity of this type of cold medicine. The consumer, in turn, buys the medicine directly from the company for personal consumption. An example of industrial marketing would be an office furniture company that targets sales to other companies. In this example, the office furniture company does not need to speak directly with individual consumers or employees, but rather advertise to and negotiate with other large companies. The furniture company looks to convince companies of the need to purchase new office furniture and upgrade existing furniture. Industrial marketing is only concerned with business-to-business advertising because products are used to facilitate company operations.

Response 6

Consumer marketing and industrial marketing are two different advertising strategies used by companies to promote their products and services. Consumer marketing is an advertising strategy where a company advertises to individual buyers directly. An example of this is a company that advertises cold medicine directly to the consumer as a cold remedy. Industrial marketing, on the other hand, is an advertising strategy where a company will advertise their goods and services to another company. An example of industrial marketing is a furniture company that looks to persuade other companies to buy their office furniture. These are two advertising strategies used to market to two different market segments.
