It's an age-old saying: Men are from Mars; women are from Venus. Males and females 11 different behaviors almost from birth. Researchers say these behaviors are due to basic differences in brain structure and activity. Studies show men are better at hitting target(靶子) and solving math problems 12 women are better at memorizing words and 13 faces. Why the differences?

A test of the brain's electrical activity (EEG) shows that women 14 use both sides of their brain while men rely more on one. Scientists already know that the two sides of the brain control different functions—one controlling the sense of space, 15, the other controlling 16. Some researchers believe that the different ways men and women use their brains developed from ancient times, when cave men hunted and women 17 the children. Men had to have good aim. Women had to talk to the kids.

Whatever the explanation, the battle of the sexes 18. And although their brains are constructed slightly differently, men and women may be equally capable. They may simply 19 different abilities. Take a couple arguing over the location of their car in a parking lot. The man might use his sense of space to find it, while the woman relies on her memory of landmarks. Both of them find the car. But chances are, they'll still 20 who's the better driver and who's better at finding the way home.

The lecture on smoking was over at last. As we boys were rushing towards the playground, Jim slipped by the table. The watch, which Mrs Smith had 11 on the table as she started her lecture, disappeared.

We were about to go back for class again when the headteacher called us 12 and said, "I've got a little job for you boys. Mrs Smith has just lost her watch on the playground. This kind of thing has happened 13, she says—it just slips off her wrist (手腕). So, look around for it, look around for it, will you? 14 if you're clever enough to find it. Let's make it clear the boy who does so will get a useful reward."

At once we started looking for the watch. Everybody wished to be the 15 one. Suddenly, Jim stopped and bent down as if to pick up something. And 16 he was in front of Mrs Smith, all smiles, 17 the watch to her.

Mrs Smith, however, didn't seem at all pleased. In fact, she looked angry. She took the watch without 18 a "Thank you".

Jim got his reward—a large piece of paper from the headmaster, who told him to write a composition 19 the dangers of smoking. What could poor Jim write about? He hadn't listened to the lecture and had nothing to say on the 20.

I am sitting in an empty football field after my last high school football game that finished a few hours ago. I'm the mid-field player on my team. But in fact that's not 21 now. I was the mid-field player because, as I said, this was my 22 game. That's a good way to end a high school football career(生涯), especially if you win, but even though you don't, it's 23 to leave at a high point.

I was eight when I first started playing football. My dad 24 football, and he used to practice with me at home-passing, catching, running. We used to practice almost every evening 25 it got too dark. He tried to teach me everything he knew about the 26. "Just remember; don't ever 27." "Stay in the game. Don't lose your concentration(专注)." "Go out there and give 110 percent(百分之……) every time." Well, that was a long time ago, but I still hear his words 28 in my ears.

I had a lot on my mind 29 the game today. I don't like things to end, I guess, and this was the last game. I was talking to myself and warning myself about what to do and not to do, I didn't sleep at all 30, and when the sun came up this morning, I reached the point where 31 just wanted it all to be over, finished, done. But then when the game started, my mind became 32. I just lived in this game, this moment. I didn't hear the crowd, I didn't feel the cold or the pain, I never felt tired. I just kept my eyes on the 33, and it was just me and the ball and, inside, a soft, white light 34 me the way to the goal. It was a beautiful, empty feeling.

It's all over now, and it's really getting cold here. It's starting to snow. The sun's almost gone, and I can 35 see the goal. Now it's dark and I'm sitting here all alone. Well, I guess it's time to say good-bye and move on.
