Introduction to Tourism Industry

Part One Dialogues

Sample Dialogue 1

Situation: Mike is going to graduate from his university soon and now he is having an interview for a tour guide at a travel agency.

I = Interviewer M = Mike

I: Good morning!

M: Good morning!

I: Please take a seat. May I know your name, please?

M: My name is Mike Brown.

I: Could you tell me why you want to be a tour guide?

M: Because I like to travel and I also like meeting various kinds of people.

I: Only having the interest is not enough. What do you think are your strong points working as a tour guide?

M: First I'm a major of tourism. I've obtained professional knowledge about tourism. Second, I can speak English very well, which makes me more capable of communicating with foreign tourists. Third, I love traveling, which I think is also very important.

I: Good idea. I want to know how much you'll expect your salary.

M: I think you must have your own criterion of salary. Salary is not the first thing I'll take into account.

I: OK. You will get a reply in a week.

M: I'm looking forward to a positive reply. Thank you very much.

I: You are welcome.

Sample Dialogue 2

Situation: Bob has just come back from Thailand, and he is talking with Mary about his travel.

M = Mary B = Bob

- M: Hi, Bob. Haven't seen you for ages! How is everything?
- B: I've just come back from Thailand. It is really an exciting trip.
- M: Really? That must be very interesting.
- B: You are right. The beautiful sceneries, nice people and the different cultures.
- M: It seems that you really enjoy your stay there.
- B: Yes. It broadens my perspective, and I can learn a lot from it.
- M: But travel is expensive. I can't imagine a person working hard the whole year and then spending his savings within a couple of days just for seeing landscape and meeting people of different colors and races.
- B: I agree with you on that, but we can choose a cheaper way of traveling.
- M: I'm afraid I can't afford long trip with my salary. Any suggestions?
- B: If you work in a travel agency, you could find some chances to travel cheaply or even without paying.
- M: Good idea. I'll have a try.

Part Two Text A

Introduction to Tourism

Tourism is travel for recreational, leisure or business purposes. The World Tourism Organization defines tourists as people who “travel to and stay in places outside their usual environment for more than twenty-four (24) hours and not more than one consecutive year for leisure, business and other purposes not related to the exercise of an activity remunerated from within the place visited”. Tourism has become a popular global leisure activity. In 2007, there were over 903 million international tourist arrivals, with a growth of 6.6% as compared to 2006. International tourist receipts were USD 856 billion in 2007.

Despite the uncertainties in the global economy, international tourist arrivals during the first four months of 2008 followed a similar growth trend than the same period in 2007. However, as a result of the economic crisis of 2008, international travel demand suffered a strong slowdown beginning in June 2008, with growth in international tourism arrivals worldwide falling to 2% during the summer months, while growth from January to April 2008 had reached an average 5.7% compared to its 2007 level. Growth from 2006 to 2007 was only 3.7%, as total international tourism arrivals from January to August were 641 million tourists, up from 618 million in the same period in 2007.

Tourism is vital for many countries, such as the U.A.E, Egypt, Greece and Thailand, and many island nations, such as The Bahamas, Fiji, Maldives and the Seychelles, due to the large intake of money for businesses with their goods and services and the opportunity for employment in the service industries associated with tourism. These service industries include transportation services, such as airlines, cruise ships and taxis, hospitality services, such as accommodations, including hotels and resorts, and entertainment venues, such as amusement parks, casinos, shopping malls, various music venues and the theatres.

Definition

One of the earliest definitions of tourism was provided by the Austrian economist in 1910, who defined it as, “some total of operators, mainly of an economic nature, which directly relate to the entry, stay and movement of foreigners inside and outside a certain country, city or a region.”

Hunziker and Krapf, in 1941, defined tourism as people who travel “the sum of the phenomena and relationships arising from the travel and stay of non-residents, insofar as they do not lead to permanent residence and are not connected with any earning activity.” In 1976, the Tourism Society of England's definition was: "Tourism is the temporary, short-term movement of people to destination outside the places where they normally live and work and their activities during the stay at each destination. It includes movements for all purposes." In 1981, the International Association of Scientific Experts in Tourism defined tourism in terms of particular activities selected by choice and undertaken outside the home.

The United Nations classified three forms of tourism in 1994 in its "Recommendations on Tourism Statistics": Domestic tourism, which involves residents of the given country traveling only within this country; Inbound tourism, involving non-residents traveling in the given country; and outbound tourism, involving residents traveling in another country. The UN also derived different categories of tourism by combining the three basic forms of tourism: Internal tourism, which comprises domestic tourism and inbound tourism; National tourism, which comprises domestic tourism and outbound tourism; and International tourism, which consists of inbound tourism and outbound tourism. Intrabound tourism is a term coined by the Korea Tourism Organization and widely accepted in Korea. Intrabound tourism differs from domestic tourism in that the former encompasses policymaking and implementation of national tourism policies.

Recently, the tourism industry has shifted from the promotion of inbound tourism to the promotion of intrabound tourism, because many countries are experiencing tough competition for inbound tourists. Some national policymakers have shifted their priority to the promotion of intrabound tourism to contribute to the local economy. Examples of such campaigns include: "See America" in the United States; "Get Going Canada" in Canada; "100% Pure New Zealand" in New Zealand; "Incredible India" in India; and "The Hidden Charm" in Vietnam.

Most visited countries

The World Tourism Organization reports the following ten countries as the most visited in 2007 by numbers of international travelers. When compared to 2006, Ukraine entered the top ten list, surpassing Russia, Austria and Mexico. Most of the top visited countries continue to be on the European continent.

International tourism receipts

International tourist receipts were USD 96.7 billion in 2007, up from USD 85.7 billion in 2006. When the export value of international passenger travel receipts is accounted for, total receipts in 2007 reached a record of USD 1.02 trillion or 3 billion a day. The World Tourism Organization reports the following countries as the top ten tourism earners for the year 2007. It is noticeable that most of them are on the European continent, but the United States continues to be the top earner.

International tourism top spenders

The World Tourism Organization reports the following countries as the top ten biggest spenders on international tourism for the year 2007. For the fifth year in a row, German tourists continue as the top spenders. A study by Dresdner Bank forecasts that for 2008, Germans and Europeans, in general, will continue to be the top spenders, because of the strength of the Euro against the United States dollar, with strong demand for the U.S. in favor of other destinations.
