Dad brought home a Christmas tree.

It was small and skinny.

“That tree needs help,” said Little Sister.

Mom had an idea. We baked gingerbread cookies. We put them on the tree.

“The tree still needs help,” said Mom.

Grandma had an idea. We made paper snowflakes. We put them on the tree.

“The tree still needs help,” said Grandma.

Little Sister had an idea.
We made bows.

We put them on the tree.
“The tree still needs help,”
said Little Sister.

Grandpa had an idea. We made strings of popcorn and cranberries. We put them on the tree.

“The tree still needs help,” said Grandpa.

Dad said, "I like the popcorn and the cranberries. I like the bows. I like the snowflakes and the cookies. But, the tree still needs help."

"I have an idea!" said Little Critter.

Little Critter knew just what the tree needed. It was their best Christmas tree ever.
