All bibliographical abbreviations used in this dictionary are listed below, following the typography used in the text of the dictionary. Broadly, italic type is used for periodicals and for reference works; roman type is used for anthologies, series etc. (titles of individual volumes are italicized).

Full bibliographical information is not normally supplied in the list below if it is available elsewhere in the dictionary. Its availability is indicated as follows: D – in the list of ‘Dictionaries and encyclopedias of music’; E – in the list of ‘Editions, historical’; and P – in the list of ‘Periodicals’; these lists are located in vol.28. For other items, in particular national (non-musical) biographical dictionaries, basic bibliographical information is given here; and in some cases extra information is supplied to clarify the abbreviation used.

Festschriften and congress reports are not generally covered in this list. Although Festschrift titles are sometimes shortened in the dictionary, sufficient information is always given for unambiguous identification (dedictee; occasion, if the same person is dedicatee of more than one Festschrift; place and date of publication; and name(s) of editor(s) if known). For fuller information on musical Festschriften up to 1967 see W. Gerboth: An Index to Musical Festschriften and Similar Publications (New York, 1969). The published titles of congress reports are generally reduced to their essentials, but sufficient information is always given for purposes of identification (society or topic; place and date of occurrence; journal issue if published in a periodical; editor(s) and publication details in unfamiliar cases). A comprehensive list of musical and music-related ‘Congress reports’ appears in vol.28. Further information can be found in J. Tyrrell and R. Wise: A Guide to International Congress Reports in Music, 1900–1975 (London, 1979).
