Today we went on a class trip.
We went to the science museum.

It was a lot of fun,
and we learned a whole lot.

First, we saw the dinosaurs.

“This is a model of a Tyrannosaurus Rex,” Miss Kitty told us.

“He lived about 90 million years ago.”
I pressed a button. The dinosaur roared.
It was really loud, but I wasn’t scared.

Then, we went to see a model of the planet Mars.
Mars has craters like the moon.

“Look at that weird car,” said Tiger.

“It is like the real one they used on Mars,” said Miss Kitty.

We took turns using the remote control to make it go.

After that, we went into a dark room.
We sat down. Miss Kitty told us to look up.

“Wow! Look at all the stars,” I said.

“There’s the Big Dipper,” said Gabby.

“It looks like a big spoon.”

Then, we went into a room called Rainbows.

Miss Kitty handed each of us a crystal.

“White light is made up of all the colors of the rainbow,” she said.

“Crystals break up the light.”

We held up our crystals. Mine covered Tiger with rainbow stripes.

Next, we went to a room that had glass walls. It had lots of plants, too.

Suddenly, a butterfly landed on me.

“Look!” I cried.

“That butterfly is tasting you,” said Miss Kitty. “Butterflies taste with their feet.”

Finally, it was time to go home.

“I want to come back and see the stars,”
said Gabby.

“I want to come back and see the dinosaurs,” said Tiger.

“I want to come back and see everything,” I said.

Science is a lot of fun!
