Mrs Williams lived in a small street in London, and now she had a new neighbour. Her name was Mrs Briggs, and she talked a lot about her expensive furniture(家俱), her beautiful carpets(地毯) and her new kitchen.

“Do you know?” she said to Mrs Williams one day, “I’ve got a new dishwasher. It washes the plates and glasses and knives and forks beautifully.”

“Oh?” Mrs Williams answered, “And does it dry them and put them in the cupboard, (碗橱) too?”

Mrs Briggs was surprised. “Well,” she answered, “the things in the machine are dry after an hour, but it doesn’t put them away, of course.”

“I’ve had a dishwasher for twelve and a half years,” Mrs Williams said.

“Oh.” Mrs Briggs answered. “And does yours put the things in the cupboard when it has washed them?” she laughed cruelly.

“Yes, he does,” Mrs Williams answered. “He dries the dishes and puts them away.”

Fame (名声) troubled Marie Curie and also her husband, because science was their world and in this world of science fame and honour to persons had no value. One day, when a writer for a newspaper tried to ask Marie about herself and her thoughts and her beliefs, she answered him, "In science we must be interested in things, not in persons." Much of the real character and spirit of this unusual woman is found in these few words, which she was later often to repeat. One evening, at a big party, a friend asked her if she would like to see the King of Greece, who was also a guest. She answered in her simple manner, "I do not see the value of it." Then, seeing that she had hurt the feelings of her friend, she quickly added, "But...but...of course, I shall do whatever you please. Just as you please."

71. What was valuable to Marie Curie?

- A. Science and research. B. Fame and honour.
C. Character and spirit. D. Persons and things.

72. The writer for a newspaper was interested in

- A. things. B. Marie Curie.
C. Marie's husband. D. persons.

73. Why did Marie Curie's friend suggest she meet the King of Greece? Because her friend

- A. came from Greece. B. was an official.
C. enjoyed meeting great persons.
D. knew the King of Greece well.

74. What do you think might have happened between Marie Curie and the King of Greece?

- A. The King was angry with Marie Curie.
B. For the sake of (为……起见) her friend, Marie Curie
