Sharks have very sharp teeth. That is sometimes thought to (被认为) be dangerous to humans, but people usually do not know much about them. For example, there are 350 kinds of sharks, and all of them are meat eaters. Some sharks are very big. But some sharks are very small. Sharks are 100 million years old. In fact, they lived at the same time as dinosaurs.

Today, sharks live in every ocean in the world, but most sharks live in warm water. They keep the oceans clean because they eat sick fishes and animals. Most sharks have four to six rows of teeth. When a tooth of the shark falls out, another tooth moves in from behind.

Sharks do not have ears. However, they "hear" sounds and movements in water. Any sound or movement makes the water vibrate (振动). Sharks can feel these vibrations, and they help sharks find food. Sharks use their large eyes to find food, too. Most sharks see best in low light. They often look for food early in the morning, in the evening, or in the middle of the night.

Scientists want to learn more about sharks for several reasons. For example, cancer (癌) is often found in many animals and people. However, it is rare (极少的) in sharks. Scientists want to find out why sharks almost never get cancer. Maybe this information can help people prevent cancer, too.

根据短文内容, 选择正确答案。

- () 1. Many people are afraid of sharks because _____.
 A. there are too many sharks in the world
 B. they like to attack people very much
 C. all of them are very big
 D. they have sharp teeth

 A. sharks' teeth B. sharks' ears
 C. sharks' eyes D. water vibrations
- () 3. From this passage, we know _____.
 A. sharks eat only sick fishes
 B. sharks only have six teeth
 C. sharks hear sounds with their ears
 D. some people haven't known much about sharks
- () 4. Which of the following is NOT true?
 A. Sharks can live as long as dinosaurs.
 B. There are sharks in all of the oceans.
 C. Most sharks don't need strong light.
 D. Sharks seldom have got cancer.
- () 5. The writer of this passage thinks _____.
 A. sharks are useful to us
 B. sharks are dangerous to us
 C. scientists have found the way to prevent cancer
 D. sharks are the largest animals in the oceans

Bobby was a six-year-old boy. There were nineteen other little boys and girls in his class, and they were all friends, so they often went to parties together. When one of the children had a birthday, he or she invited all the other children to come to the party, and at Christmas all the mothers gave parties for all the children.

Bobby liked parties very much. He liked the games they played there — but he liked the nice food better. His favorites were cakes.

Before a party, Bobby's mother always asked him not to eat too many cakes, and Bobby always answered, "Yes, Mom." But he always ate all the cakes he was given, and sometimes he was sick because of eating too much.

Christmas came again, and there were a lot of parties. Bobby went to all of them. The last one was on January 6th. It was two days before school began.

One evening before this party, Bobby's mother met the lady who had invited Bobby and his friends, and she said to her, "Bobby always eats too many cakes at parties."

"Oh, that's all right," the lady answered. She told Bobby's mother not to be worried, because at her parties, a child could only have three cakes and the cakes would be small!

"Oh, good!" Bobby's mother answered happily.

On January 6th, she took Bobby to the party and left him there.

When the children began to eat, there were enough cakes for every child to have three, but Bobby took four and began to eat them.

"You can only have three cakes, Bobby!" said the lady. She asked him to put the fourth one back on the dish.

"I can't," answered Bobby, "I ate that one first."

根据短文内容,选择正确答案。

- () 1. When did the children usually have parties?
 - A. Only at Christmas.
 - B. Only when they had birthdays.
 - C. At any time they want.
 - D. At Christmas and when they had birthdays.
- () 2. What did Bobby like best?
 - A. Chocolates.
 - B. The games at parties.
 - C. The children at parties.
 - D. Cakes.
- () 3. Why did his mother ask Bobby not to eat too many cakes?
 - A. Because if he did, there were not enough for the other children.
 - B. Because he sometimes felt bad after that.
 - C. Because his mother was afraid he would get too heavy.
 - D. Because the food at the party wasn't fresh.
- () 4. Why did Bobby think he couldn't put the fourth cake back?
 - A. Because he thought that he had already eaten it.
 - B. Because there were enough cakes for each child to have three.
 - C. Because he had already eaten all of his cakes.
 - D. Because he only had three cakes.
- () 5. Which of the following is NOT true?
 - A. Some of the other children in Bobby's class were girls, and some of them were boys. All of them were Bobby's friends.
 - B. Bobby took four cakes at the party on January 6th.
 - C. Bobby's mother took some cakes to the party, but she didn't want Bobby to eat too many.
 - D. The lady who invited Bobby to the party on January 6th told Bobby's mother she had only three cakes for each child.

Old Morrison was now seventy. He was a rich man. He decided to do something for the people of his town. But first he wanted to find out whether they deserved(值得) his help.

He asked his son to place a very large stone in the center of the main road in the town. Then he hid(藏) behind a tree and waited. Soon an old man came with his cow.

"Who put this stone in the center of the road?" said the old man, but he didn't try to remove the stone. Instead, with some difficulty he passed around it and continued his way. Another man came along and did the same thing. Then another came and then another. All complained(抱怨) about the stone in the center of the road but no one did anything to remove it. Later in the afternoon, a young man came along. He saw the stone and said, "The night will be here soon. Some neighbors will come along in the dark later and maybe fall over the stone."

The young man then began to move the stone. He pushed and pulled with all his strength to remove it. How great his surprise was at last when, under the stone, he found a bag of money and a piece of paper with the words: This money is for the first honest man who remove this very stone from the road.

In the United States, 30 percent of the adults have the weight problem. Some people think the reason is clear — they eat too much. But scientific evidence(证据) does little to support this idea. Going back to the America of 1910, we can find that people were thinner than today, but they ate more food than us. In those days people worked harder, walked more, used machines less and didn't watch TV.

Several modern studies have shown that fatter people do not eat more than thinner people. In fact, some studies, such as a study of 3,545 London office workers in 1979, report that fat people eat less than thin people.

Studies show that thin people are more active than fat people. A study by a group at Stanford University found the following interesting facts:

The more the men run, the more their body fat lose.

The more they run, the more food they need.

Those who run the most eat the more, and lose the most body fat.

根据短文内容,选择正确答案。

- () 1. What kind of problem do many adult Americans have?
- A. They are too thin.
B. They work too hard.
C. They are too fat.
D. They lose too much body fat.
- () 2. Based on the number given in the article, if there are 500 adult Americans, how many of them will have the weight problem?
- A. 30. B. 50.
C. 100. D. 150.
- () 3. Is there scientific evidence to support that eating too much is the cause of the "weight problem"?
- A. Yes, there is so much evidence.
B. Of course, there is some evidence to show it is true.
C. There is hardly any scientific evidence to support this idea.
D. We don't know because the information is not given.
- () 4. According to the passage, the Americans of 1910 _____.
- A. ate more food and had more activities
B. ate less food but had more activities
C. ate less food and had less physical exercise
D. had more weight problems
- () 5. What has modern medical and scientific research reported to us?
- A. Fat people eat less food and are less active.
B. Fat people eat more food than thin people and are more active.
C. Fat people eat more food than thin people but are less active.
D. Thin people run less, and have need less food to eat.

People of different religions(宗教信仰) will meet to make an international team of "Peace climbers" to climb the world's highest mountain.

The Mount Qomolangma Peace Project climbers come from seven countries and follow five different religions.

"We are trying to make a human statement(声明)," said Lance Trumbull, the California man who came up with the idea. "People of different cultures can do amazing things together."

To organize the climb, Trumbull started www.everest-peaceproject.org, and then he started finding climbers and money for the trip. The team includes two Israelis and one Palestinian, as well as climbers from India, Nepal, New Zealand, South Africa and the U. S. A.

Trumbull noted they even had an atheist(无神论者) climber on the team.

Some companies have provided equipment and money. "Climbing Qomolangma is not cheap," said Trumbull. He said that the trip might cost more than U. S. $350,000. "It's a lot of money. But for a Qomolangma climb, that is OK."

Organizers also want to have someone come along to make a movie about the climb, but they don't have enough money to do so.

These days, health is becoming more and more important to people. Many people are beginning to take exercise to keep healthy. Books on health are selling better and better. Healthy foods are becoming more popular. And people often go to the doctors for new ideas. But strange diseases still come into being. Many people in the world still have very unhealthy lifestyles.

Health experts are always thinking about ways to solve this problem. They have done much research. Now they have some answers. Tom Farley and Deborah Ao Cohen, two American experts, said that the cause was not our medical care system(医疗保健系统) or our lifestyle choices, but the world around us. As they said, the leading killers of our life fall into two groups: injuries and chronic(慢性的) diseases like heart disease, lung cancer and so on. For all of their cures, modern medicine is not very effective(有效的) against these illnesses. And injuries might either kill you quickly or not matter at all. These major killers are caused by the way we live, and the way we live is limited much by our world around us. So we should try to make a healthy world to reduce its danger.

"I am getting fat." Every summer, in front of the mirror wearing your favorite dress, you always say so. Working in an office without moving, going there by car, good food, not enough exercise ... that's how you get fat. You may eat more food than your body really needs. You may spend all day sitting in the office. Or you may eat the wrong food. Some people drink too much and smoke a lot. Most doctors agree that smoking is bad for your health. Some people have too much meat and not enough fresh fruit and vegetables. Many people complain to me, "I don't have much time for exercise, because my life is busy. And there are not many sports which we can play at home, either. Table tennis would be fine, but we don't have a room large enough." However, you must do something about it. Here I will introduce 5 different exercises that take only 10 minutes a day. Maybe that's what you have to do.

■ Stand with your legs 15 cm apart. Point your arms above your head. Bend down to touch the ground between your feet. Reach up again and so on. (2 minutes)

■ Lie on your back with your arms at your sides. Sit up. Lie down again and so on. (1 minute)

■ Lie on your front and join your hands behind your back. Lift your legs and shoulders as far off the ground as possible. (1 minute)

■ Lie on your front. Lift your body off the ground so that your arms are straight. Only your hands and toes touch the ground. (1 minute)

■ Run for 5 minutes.

Each of the exercises is done as many times as possible.

If you don't get too much exercise, you will enjoy them.

Shu Hangya, who was born in a village in Sichuan, is now in the fifth grade at a primary school in Chengdu. She came to Chengdu with her parents when she was two years old, because her parents came to the city for work.

When children follow their parents to big cities, they often meet with unexpected difficulties in their lives. They are not used to the city life, and some even don't get into schools because they are too poor to pay for education. It's becoming a big social problem and all of us should do something to help society solve this problem.

Shu Hangya is lucky. She is hard-working and successful. She was one of the top 10 Young Pioneers (十佳少年). Such a title is the highest honor for the country's 130 million Young Pioneers. When she first came to the city, she worked hard and learned from other city children. She kept their strong points in mind and tried her best to do well in her subjects. And she got on well with all her classmates. She said she had a dream. She wants to be a "bridge" between the city children and the country children. She hopes to make friends with all of them and share the happiness with them. Hopefully, all cities around the country will do something about this so that all the children who come from the country can enjoy equal educational opportunities, along with the city children.

Man has always wanted to fly. Some of the greatest men in history have thought about the problem. One of these, for example, was the great Italian artist, Leonardo da Vinci. In the sixteenth century he made designs for machines that would fly. Among these designs there was actually one for a helicopter(直升飞机). There was also another one for a parachute(降落伞). These things were all designed, but were never built.

Throughout history, other less famous men have wanted to fly. A typical example was a man in England 800 years ago. He made a pair of wings from chicken feathers(羽毛). Then he fixed them to his shoulders and jumped into the air from a tall building. He did not fly very far. Instead, he fell to the ground, broke every bone in his body and left the world.

The first real steps were taken in France, in 1783. Two brothers made a very large "hot air balloon". They knew that hot air would go up. Why not fill a balloon with it? The balloon was made of cloth and paper. In September of that year, the King and Queen of France came to see the balloon. They watched it carry the first air passengers into the sky. The passengers were a sheep, a chicken and a duck. We do not know how they felt about the trip. But we do know that the trip lasted eight minutes and that the animals landed safely. Two months later, another two men did the same thing. This time their trip lasted twenty-five minutes and they traveled about eight kilometers. Now, planes are no longer strange to us. We often take planes to go anywhere we want. They are so fast and comfortable(舒服的) and save us a lot of trouble. But the early inventors had such a hard time reaching their goal. So the true challenge for us now is to dare to dream and believe that what seems impossible today may one day come true. 根据短文内容,选择正确答案。

Have you ever had a hamburger so good that you wished you could eat the same thing all over again? With the way that cloning research is going, you might someday get your wish. The United States government recently decided that it's safe to drink milk and eat meat that come from cloned animals. The decision has caused arguments about human health, animal rights, and the difference between right and wrong.

Clones, like identical(完全相同的) twins, are exact genetic(遗传的) copies of each other. The difference is that twins turn up without scientists' being involved(牵涉) and are born at the same time. Clones are created in the lab and can be born at different times. Already, scientists have cloned 11 kinds of animals, including sheep, cows, pigs, mice, and horses. But as researchers' techniques(技术) are getting better and better, they clone even more animals, some people are worried. So far, cloned animals haven't gotten on well, critics say. Few clones are successful. The cloned animals that do continue to live are likely to die very young.

Cloning raises a variety of issues. Is it a good idea to let people clone a favorite pet? What if cloning could bring the dinosaurs back to life? What would happen if scientists find out how to clone people? Scientists believe that the research can help them clone more animals for medical use and keep some species(物种) from becoming extinct. The research is also helping scientists learn more about the basics of development. Still, research continues.
