Acknowledgments

NO BOOK IS ever written without assistance, and this is no exception. Many individuals have helped by granting me interviews, sending me reprints, reading drafts of chapters, or discussing topics with me, thus influencing and clarifying my sometimes muddled thoughts. I have not always agreed with their perspectives nor do they all endorse mine, but I assure them that I have listened sincerely and carefully. These include C. Loring Brace, Peter and Ginger Ross Breggin, Matt Cartmill, Margarete Heck and Bill Earnshaw, Heinz Heck, F. Clark Howell, Roger and Gail Lewin, Paul McHugh, Sidney Mintz, Ashley Montagu, Lita Osmundsen, Christopher Stringer, Mara Connolly and Pete Taft, Pamela Maupin and Bill Tew, Alan Thorne, Erik Trinkaus, Ronald Walters, David Wasserman, and Milford Wolpoff.

Other friends and relations have also helped to keep me on an even keel through the writing of this book: Ginny Armstrong, Sharyn Marzullo, Diane Suiters, Chris Wadman, Simon and Shellene Walker in particular. I would also like to thank my editor, Bob Asahina, his assistant, Sarah Pinckney, and my copy editor, Phil James, for cogent comments, patience, and intelligent support.

Last but not least, my husband, Alan Walker, has as always been a tremendous help on matters both intellectual and emotional; my debt is greater than can be expressed. Finally, I thank my horse, Agincourt, and my cat, Amelia, for lending their singular perspectives and inimitable humor to this endeavor.
