INTRODUCTION

Purpose

PERIODICAL TITLE ABBREVIATIONS has been compiled to assist in locating complete titles where only abbreviated title citations occur. PTA is not intended as a standard for title abbreviations, but rather as a detailed historical cumulation of periodical title abbreviations previously in common use. It is not intended as a list or description of sources which emphasize abbreviated citations, but is a compilation of entries employed by these sources.

Scope

Entries in the dictionary have been compiled from indexes, abstracts, and bibliographies that analyze serials. To give this first edition manageable scope, emphasis has been placed on language, literature, and linguistics sources, although many general sources have also been analyzed. All new entries from every analyzed source have been included in PTA regardless of the subject coverage of the individual serial.

Arrangement

Titles are arranged in alphabetical order, according to the abbreviated entry. If the same abbreviation is used for more than one title, the various titles are arranged alphabetically. Spacing within an abbreviation does not effect alphabetizing, (i.e. letter by letter alphabetizing is employed) and lower case letters occurring in a title do not affect its alphabetical position, except that a combination of capitals and small letters come before a combination of the same letters all in capital letters. Prepositions and articles in the abbreviated title are considered in alphabetizing. Abbreviated titles involving the same letters occur in a variety of forms. This order was established for the various possible arrangements:

Small letters precede capitals.	Nar
Small letters precede capitals.	NAR
Straight form of capitals.	NAR
Hyphenated form of abbreviation	N-AR
Form of abbreviation using diagonal. . .	N/AR
Form with ampersand or other symbol . .	N&AR

Simplicity of Format

The same title abbreviations often appear in additional variant forms.

1. Italic or Roman type.
2. With or without periods.
3. With or without diacritical marks.
4. With or without spacing between components.

INTRODUCTION

It is not the purpose of this book to analyze the considerations which have dictated the choice of one policy over another. Therefore, the following policies based on the principle of greatest simplicity are followed.

1. No italics are employed.
2. No periods are included.
3. No diacritical marks are included.
(ö is not alphabetized as oe but as o.)
4. Spacing is not employed except in lengthy abbreviations where readability would be reduced by removing spaces.

Information

The full titles are generally entered as they appeared in the analyzed sources in order to retain the intended similarity between the abbreviated title and the full title. Thus, "Journal of (Name of Organization)" may appear in the "J" abbreviated title section, while "(Name of Organization) Journal" may appear elsewhere. Places of publication have been included where necessary and when it was determinable. Transliterated titles of periodicals in non-western languages have been adopted as they appeared in the analyzed sources, but English translations are also included for Chinese, Japanese and Korean transliterated titles where possible.

Acknowledgements

I wish to thank Mr. Frederick G. Ruffner, Jr., for his continuous assistance and encouragement during the many months required to compile this dictionary. I also wish to thank Mrs. Esther Chang for undertaking the fourth proofreading of the data now incorporated in this book.

Major Sources

Several hundred indexes, abstracts and bibliographies were analyzed. Some were found not to employ abbreviations; many adopted lists from other sources and were found unproductive of new data. The following is a brief list of those sources which produced most of the abbreviated citations, and which were consequently analyzed issue by issue:
