China's Sijiqing Clothing Trade Center will welcome its opening in Jiubao

Project Background:

In recent years, with the target of "Building a metropolis and a new paradise", Hangzhou implements the strategy of "City's eastward expansion and development along and across the river" in a comprehensive way, so as to accelerate urbanization, and realize its transition from "the era of West Lake" towards "the era of Qiantang River". According to the overall layout planning for the development of city and the requirement of the Qian Jiang new city, Hangzhou takes the modern service industry as the footing for the city's economic restructuring and economic growth mode transformation. It formulates the Plan for Speeding up the Development of Modern Service Industry in Hangzhou, and proposes the idea of promoting Hangzhou clothing industry. It encourages and guides the layout featuring the wholesale as the main concentration, and wholesale markets with strong radiation capacity extending to suburbs.

In the year of 2004, according to the decision of Hangzhou government, Sijiqing Clothing Trade Center was to be built in Jiubao District, which was listed in the municipality key projects. The area of China's Sijiqing Clothing Trade Center is more than 5,200 mu, dividing into two parts: clothing transaction part, and storage and logistics part, where the area for clothing transaction is more than 2,000 mu, and the area for storage and logistics is more than 3,200 mu. According to the principle of "Unified plan and phased implementation", the under-construction at present is the Trade Center phase one, which is a key construction project of Zhejiang Province in 2004, and expected to welcome its opening in the second half of 2008.

Location:

China's Sijiqing Clothing Trade Center lies in the districts of Xiasha and Jiubao belonging to the center of the plan of Hangzhou sub-districts. It borders Hangzhou Economic and Technological Development Zone, and 2nd passage of Grand Canal in the east; it has access to the Hangzhou expressway Deshenglu and Hangzhou long-distance Passenger Transport Center (the station of Subway Line 1 which is under construction) in the south; it is adjacent to Shanghai and Hangzhou-Ningbo Expressway, and college science and technology park of Zhejiang Province in the west; it faces round-city road of Hangzhou in the north. It has complete infrastructure within a radius of 5 kilometers, and has convenient access to Qianjiang new city (the new administrative centre of Hangzhou), Hangzhou Scientific and Technological Economic Zone, Hangzhou Higher Education Park, Jiangnan Scientific and Technological Economic Zone, and Jiubao large residential area. Along with the construction of Hangzhou complex metropolis featuring one main city, two sub-cities and three groups, the multilevel traffic circle around the Trade Center is improving day by day. The various transport means including Shanghai-Hangzhou Railway, Qiaosi railway marshalling yard, the Shanghai-Hangzhou maglev train and Line 1 subway in plan and construction, Shanghai and Hangzhou-Ningbo Expressway, Hangzhou round-city road, Hangzhou City expressway Deshenglu, Genshan Road, Hangzhou long-distance passenger transport center, Qiantang River, and the Beijing-Hangzhou Grand Canal make it easy to extend in all directions. The site for the Trade Center has a big regional space, peripheral traffic is convenient, and the geographical advantage is obvious.

Project Phase One:

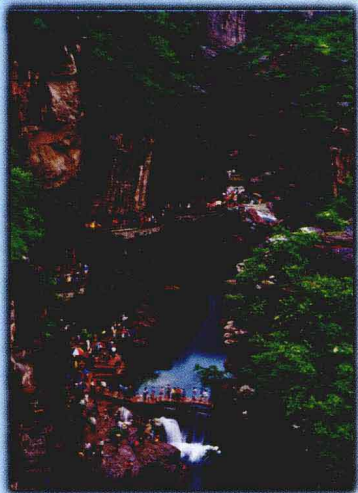

In project phase one, the total area for clothing transaction block is 361 mu with 6 buildings, among which 5 buildings for the marketplace, and 1 for business hotels. The total area is 526,300 square meters, where the area for marketplace is 415,600 square meters, and the area for business hotels is 28,900 square meters, with the basement area of about 110,700 square meters. The greenery area reaches 20% of the total, which is equipped with viewing road, viewing river and Central advertisement of the region in the plan.

Market Positioning:

China's Sijiqing Clothing Trade Center will act under the principle of "national first-class and world-renowned" and the aim of building "Fashion capital and Modern Center for logistics" to build the largest base for clothing industry with all strength. For this reason, Hangzhou will conform to the new trend of the new development trend of modern service industry, guided by marketization and specialization and based on the self advantage. In addition, it clarifies the business philosophy of "combining high, medium and low-grade products while giving priority to goods of high and medium grade; combining international brands and home brands while giving priority to home brands; combining wholesale and retail while giving priority to wholesale; combining foreign trade and domestic sale while giving priority to domestic sale; and combining clothing and related industries while giving priority to clothing industry". The Trade Center will represent architectural design and landscape design of high standard and high-grade, showing the trade atmosphere of "people-oriented". When completed, Chinese Sijiqing Clothing Trade Center will be a modern center for clothing trade featuring "specialization in business, brand of goods, network-base, people-orientation, and better ecological environment". It will build and create a new platform for the product transaction activity, issue of commercial information, brand sales and exhibition, and fashion leader, which is important to the development of modern service industry especially the clothing industry in Hangzhou City. It will provide a strong impetus to improve the competitiveness of clothing industry in Hangzhou City, and play an important role in the development of the clothing industry.

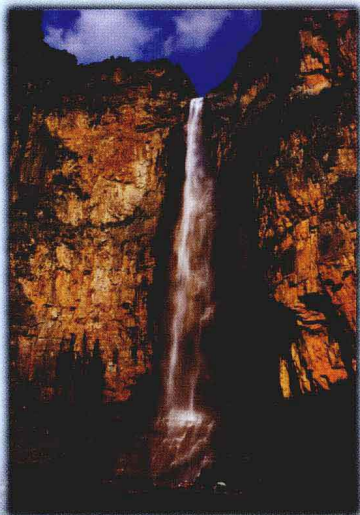

The Brief Introduction to Mt. Yuntai, Henan Province

Mt. Yuntai is located in the Xiuwu County of Jiaozuo City which is 70km northwestern of Zhengzhou City, the capital of Henan Province. It boasts an area of 190sq.km, including the following eleven scenic spots: Hongshi Valley, Tanpu Valley, Quanpu Valley, Zhuyu Peak, Diecai Tunnel, Rhesus Monkey Valley, Zifang Lake, Wanshan Temple, Baijia Cliff, Qinglong Valley, and Fenglin Gorge. It is a national ecological geopark including water bodies, geomorphologic landscapes and relics of culture and civilization together with a series of geologic features that have their unique scientific significance and aesthetic values.

In Henan Province, Mt. Yuntai is the scenic resort which has one world-class and seven state-level titles. They are the first group world geologic park, national key scenic resort, national AAAAA tourist attraction, national forest park, national geologic park, national natural reserve of macaque, national water conservancy scenic area, and national natural heritage.

Mt. Yuntai scenic resort is marvelous with its mountain, unique with its water, serene with its forest. Here every season has its distinctive sceneries. With singing springs and smiling flowers in spring, running waterfalls and plunging springs in summer, wonderful red maple leaves in autumn, and especially in winter, the snow-capped country looking pure and noble, Mt. Yuntai is a good resort to spend one's leisure time. There are many other scenic spots in Mt. Yuntai, such as Yuntai Waterfall with an elevation of 314m, the spectacular valley on the earth—Hongshi Valley, Tanpu Valley with the scenery as that in Lower Yangtze River, and Zhuyu Peak—where Wang Wei, a great poet of the Tang Dynasty, had ever written a famous poem “In my hometown, my brothers are climbing the mountain. Everyone wears a cornel, but I am not with them.” And Fenglin Gorge—“Yuntai Immortal Pool” melts with its unusual and peculiar peaks into the prettiness of water. Qinglong Valley is the vastest valley of Mt. Yuntai, which is an ecological resort for tourists. Baijia Cliff where the “seven elites in bamboo forest” led a secluded life here is the original place where Chinese landscape and garden culture stepped out of imperial court and began to be enjoyed by folks.

To Shine with the Olympics

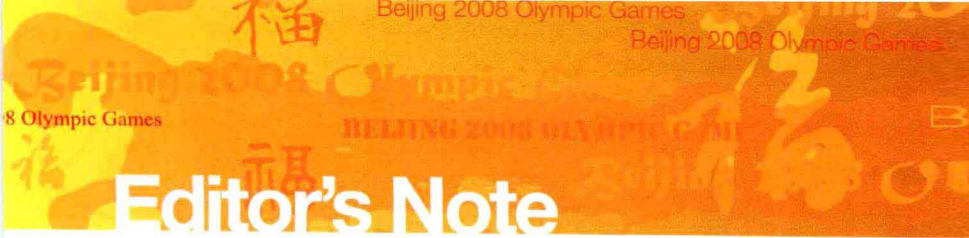

In 1895, Henri Martin Didon, a close friend of Pierre De Coubertin, the initiator of modern Olympic Games, encouraged the students at an outdoor sports meeting: "Here, your slogan is 'Faster, Higher, and Stronger'". It might be out of Didon's expectation that his three words of "Faster, Higher, and Stronger" have lighted the road of the Olympic Games ever since.

In 1899, Sheng Xuanhuai, the minister in charge of telecommunication and postal issues in the Qing Dynasty proposed the introduction of telephone business to Emperor Guangxu by heaping plenty of praises on "Delufeng" (the telephone) that "it is useable once being held in hand, and soundable once being put near to ears; it enables one to communicate with hundreds of friends while sitting inside one room, and to sense voices while not looking at faces; and it brings about the benefits that are unparalleled so far..." Similarly, it might be out of Mr. Sheng's expectation that his proposal abounding with praises for the telephone has turned on a new leaf for the brilliant development of the telecommunication industry in China.

The world is changing with each passing day. To date, the modern Olympic Games has experienced a history of a couple of hundred years. So has China Netcom. Outliving the century by adhering to the ideal of "understanding, solidarity, peace, and friendship", the Olympics has exceeded the limit of sports and has become the spirit treasure commonly cherished by all human beings. Similarly, outliving the century by providing "safe, convenient, swift, and efficient" services in communications, China Netcom has set up the extensive information platform and has bridged the interpersonal communications.

For China Netcom, July 22nd, 2004 is a historic day when it became the official partner of the 2008 Olympic Games in fixed communication services, which, undoubtedly, is a new starting point for the prosperity of the company. At this memorable moment, China Netcom promises in solemnity that China Netcom will pleasantly surprise Beijing and the whole world, and is ready to shine with the Olympics.

In recent years, closely following the overall goal of communication services for the Olympics and persistently adhering to the spirit of "Environment-friendly Olympics, Technology-empowered Olympics, and Culture-enriched Olympics", China Netcom has given full play to its advantages in resources, experiences and professional talents, has laid emphasis on its scientific project management, mature technology solutions and advanced service ideology, and has been determined to turn the 2008 Olympic Games into the first "Broadband Olympic Games" in history.

As the torch relay of the 2008 Olympic Games has journeyed around the world, and especially has topped Mount Qomolangma, we are ready to welcome the guests from all over the world. In particular, in the seven cities where the Olympic events are to be held, namely, Beijing, Tianjin, Shanghai, Shenyang, Qingdao, Qinhuangdao and Hong Kong, the venues for the Olympics have sprung up and the places of historical interests and scenic beauty have taken on a new look. The Chinese people are performing the 2008 Olympic theme of "One World, One Dream" perfectly through actions.

2008 CNC Yellow Pages•City Guide, is an official product of Beijing 2008 Olympic Games.

This book contains all the main information about the Olympic venues and events. Specifically, it covers the information of the basic services and facilities in the seven Olympic events cities, such as dining, accommodation, traffic, entertainment, shopping, travel, medical care, banks, etc., as well as the information on many famous scenic spots of China. With authentic contents, accurate information, novel design, convenient reference and over 20 maps and thousands of exquisite pictures, this book is an integration of the value to be treasured, readability and utility.

This book is of great use for government officials, athletes, visitors as well as tourists from both home and abroad. Besides, it is a good choice as a gift for customers and friends.

The information collection for this book ended up to April 30, 2008.
