

UNDERSTANDING

THE POLITICAL WORLD

A Comparative Introduction
To Political Science

JAMES N.

DANZIGER

SECOND EDITION

SECOND EDITION

UNDERSTANDING
THE POLITICAL WORLD

A Comparative Introduction
To Political Science

JAMES N.
DANZIGER

University of California, Irvine

Longman

New York & London

Understanding the Political World:
A Comparative Introduction to Political Science, Second Edition

Copyright © 1994, 1991 by Longman Publishing Group.

All rights reserved.

No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording, or otherwise,
without the prior permission of the publisher.

Longman, 10 Bank Street, White Plains, N.Y. 10606

Associated companies:

Longman Group Ltd., London

Longman Cheshire Pty., Melbourne

Longman Paul Pty., Auckland

Copp Clark Pitman, Toronto

Photos are courtesy of Wide World Photo, with the exception of the following:
p. 195, George Tooker, courtesy of The Metropolitan Museum of Art; p. 207, UPI/Bettmann Newsphotos. Cartoons: p. 125, Turner, Cartoonists & Writers Syndicate; p. 264, by permission of Mike Luckovich and Creators Syndicate; p. 384, Mochalov, Cartoonists & Writers Syndicate.

To Nicholas and Vanessa

Senior acquisitions editor: David M. Shapiro

Development editor: Susan Alkana

Production editor: Ann P. Kearns

Cover design: Bob Crimi Studio

Text art: Art Directions Fine Line Inc.

Production supervisor: Richard C. Bretan

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Danziger, James N.

Understanding the political world : a comparative introduction to political science / James N. Danziger.—2nd ed.

p. cm.

Includes bibliographical references (p.) and index.

ISBN 0-8013-1179-9

1. Political science. I. Title. II. Title: Political world.

JA66.D36 1993

320—dc20

93-2171
CIP

Boxed Features

1.1	Where in the World Is It?	7
1.2	General Authorities and Normative Knowledge: The Role of Women in Politics	11
1.3	Gender and Voting: Applying the Scientific Method to Politics [and Using the Appendix]	16
1.4	How's Your Bias?	21
2.1	Three Ideal-Type Belief Systems among the American Foreign Policy Elite	33
2.2	Using Survey Research to Characterize Political Culture: The Civic Culture	36
2.3	Whither Liberalism? Is That Liberal or Conservative?	42
2.4	From the Ism File: Fascism	46
3.1	Measuring Students' Political Behavior: An Example of Micro-political Analysis	57
3.2	The British Medical Association: An Effective Associational Interest Group	65
3.3	Identifying Campus Interest Groups	66
3.4	Let's Party! The Rise of the Green Party in Germany	68
4.1	Are You Too Smart to Vote?	75
4.2	A Family Problem	78
4.3	Persistence versus Change in Political Socialization	81
5.1	You Go Your Way, I'll Go Mine	102
5.2	But He's Got a Great Personality! Barber on American Presidents	107
5.3	Psychoanalyzing Burmese Political Leaders	111
6.1	The Concept of the State	119
6.2	State and Nations	126
6.3	Why Do People Accept Authority?	132
6.4	"Death" of a Political System: Cambodia	138

7.1	A Gross Product	148
7.2	Communism versus Socialism in Marxist Theory	158
7.3	From the Ism File: Corporatism	161
8.1	How Much Is Your Vote Worth? Converting Votes into Political Representation	172
8.2	Constitution by Fiat: Japan	177
8.3	A Hybrid System in Action: France	187
9.1	A Peripheral Puzzle: Nebraska	200
9.2	The Problem of Defining Power	202
9.3	"Dealing" with the Administration in Gamma and Delta	210
9.4	Packing the Supreme Court: F.D.R. versus the Judicial Branch	215
10.1	Elite Politics in Swaziland	226
10.2	Elite Domination of Development in Oakland	228
10.3	Two Analyses Applying the Group Politics Approach	233
11.1	For All You Do, Disinformation's for You	249
11.2	Media Mogul Murdoch	252
12.1	What Makes Millie Thoroughly Modern?	263
12.2	Barrington Moore's Explanation of Development	266
12.3	How Ideas Undermine Culture: Things Fall Apart in Nigeria	268
12.4	Political Development and Modernization in Turkey	277
13.1	Terrorism Makes It Worse: Uruguay	298
14.1	The Faces of Colonialism: Zaire	321
14.2	Here, There, and Everywhere: Portrait of an MNC	325
14.3	That State Is Bad!	328
14.4	Deterring Rivals through Military Power	333
15.1	Creating a Quality of Life Index	348
15.2	The Social Market Economy: Sweden	353
15.3	Building Political Institutionalization by Political Inclusion: The British Case	355
15.4	Problems in Measuring Order and Disorder	357
16.1	Who's In, Who's Out?	370
16.2	That's the Way the Curtain Crumbles: 1989 in Central and Eastern Europe	380
16.3	Out of Many, One; and Then Many Again: Yugoslavia	382
16.4	Welcome to the Brave New World: Singapore	390
16.5	War within Islam	397
17.1	Can the Population Bomb Be Disarmed?	411
17.2	Something Can Be Done! Agricultural Self-Help in Kenya	416
17.3	Just Say No! China under Mao	418
17.4	Order and Progress in Brazil: Sometimes	421
17.5	Two Cases of Political Decay	430
17.6	A Third World Democracy That Works: Costa Rica	438
A.1	Assessing Relations between Phenomena	463

Preface

It is always exciting to introduce students to political science. The present moment is extraordinary, because many of our ideas and theories are particularly energized by the real world of politics. One of the two great superpowers (and its empire) has broken into more than two dozen new countries, both nationalism and multinationalism are strong forces pulling in opposite directions, and there is an effort to establish a “new world order.” Many countries have abandoned the economic and political ideas associated with communism, and there are widespread attempts to implement more democratic politics and more market-oriented political economies.

OBJECTIVES

The central objective of this book is, as its title indicates, to help students better understand the political world. It attempts to link the central analytic concepts of political science that have emerged over generations of research to the realities of the post–cold war world. These changes influence the examples and discussion on many of the topics in this text. The emphasis is on concepts and empirical research that illuminate the processes and structures of politics. The level of analysis ranges from the individual’s political beliefs and actions through the politics of groups, states, and the international system. This text asks students to assess whether it is possible and useful to develop generalizations about political phenomena. It combines attention to systematic descriptive analysis—the “what?” questions—with efforts to explain underlying patterns—the “why?” and “how?” questions. And students are continually reminded that they must consider the important normative questions that are embedded in most issues about politics. Many topics are also presented in a manner that encourages the student to think as a political scientist, structuring questions and assessing evidence in order to make inferences.

FEATURES

This second edition has retained key features of the first edition:

- A strong, comparative framework
- Coverage of micropolitics, macropolitics, and international relations
- Focus on political economy, including a complete chapter on this important topic
- Thorough analyses of key political processes
- An engaging, readable style

In addition, we present many boxed discussions that offer rich, memorable examples of key concepts and issues, such as the different paths of political activism taken by Gandhi and Abu Nidal, the rational choice perspective on why one should not vote, the role of the media during the Gulf War, the effects of colonialism and neocolonialism on Zaire, the conflict between state and nations in the United Kingdom and in India, the extensive social control exercised by the state in Singapore, and the American imposition of a constitution on Japan.

NEW TO THIS EDITION

In addition to updated examples throughout the book, certain features are new to this edition:

- A new chapter on political communication, with particular emphasis on the political impacts of the new telecommunications technologies
- A unique analytic framework for classifying the countries in the post-cold war world
 - the more developed countries (ch. 15)
 - the developing countries (ch. 17)
 - key transitional countries: the post-communist states emerging from the Soviet empire, the newly industrialized countries, and the Islamic states of the Middle East (ch. 16)
- A substantially revised chapter on international relations (ch. 14), including such changes in the post-cold war world as the growing role of the United Nations and multinational corporations
- Discussions of change and development to reflect the growing global emphasis on democratic politics and market-based economic development
- Major political ideologies, detailed in Chapter 2 on political beliefs

ORGANIZATION

The second edition retains the conceptual framework of the first edition, focusing on micropolitics and macropolitics.

- Chapter 1 and the Appendix introduce students to the logic of political science and the methods of political analysis.
- Chapters 2 through 5 examine political behavior at the individual and group level, describing and explaining the causes of individual political beliefs and actions.
- Chapters 6 through 9 emphasize the structural and institutional elements of political systems, offering analytic frameworks for characterizing the different ways in which people organize themselves politically.
- Chapters 10 through 13 analyze interesting and important political processes, such as decision making, communication, development, and violence.
- Chapter 14 examines the patterns of cooperation, competition, and conflict between countries in the international environment.
- Chapters 15 through 17 then explain in detail how certain groups of countries try to achieve their broad goals of prosperity, stability, and security within that complex international environment. Specific analysis is provided for the more developed countries, the post-communist developed countries, the newly industrialized countries, the Islamic states of the Middle East, and the developing countries of the Third World.
- Chapter 18 concludes with a prospective assessment of the major political challenges in the early twenty-first century.

AUDIENCE

This book is written for any person who wants to enrich his or her basic understanding of the political world and to learn how political scientists attempt to describe and explain politics. Such a person might be in an introductory course in political science or comparative politics, but could also be in a “capstone” course. And such a person might be any individual who wants to think about the fascinating and confusing world of politics in a more informed and systematic way.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

There are many sources of ideas and information that constitute the basis of my understanding about politics. Broadly, you should know that I was born and have primarily been educated in the United States. I have studied, lived, and/or spent significant periods in North America, Western Europe, Eastern Europe, Asia, and Africa. The people I met and the events I experienced in these places have certainly influenced my perceptions about politics. More direct contributions to this book have come from my colleagues in political science and from the many students with whom I have interacted. I have drawn deeply and often from the ideas of these two important groups.

Explicit guidance and advice regarding the writing of this book have come from several valuable sources: the cadre at Longman, including my editors David Shapiro, David Estrin, and Irv Rockwood, my developmental editor Susan Alkana, and Ann Kearns and Owen Lancer; scholarly colleagues who have offered useful suggestions, including Robert Hazen, Matt Shugart, and Vera Simone; and friends and students who have provided specific material for the book, including Paul Castor, Mark Doose, Frank Faye, Gladys Gardiner, and Erik Siddons. The reviewers, who offered thoughtful and constructive commentaries, are:

Sam H. Farahani—San Diego Mesa College
Arthur B. Gunlicks—University of Richmond
Brij B. Khare—California State University, San Bernardino
Kay Knickrehm—James Madison University
George Masannat—Western Kentucky University
Anthony Neal—Buffalo State University
David Porter—Youngstown State University
Marvin Rogers—University of Missouri, Columbia
Stephen Rozman—Tougaloo College
C. Neal Tate—University of North Texas
Helga A. Welsh—University of Arizona
Park Yung—Northeastern University

I am grateful for the help provided by all these sources. Yet this book, and especially the roads not taken and the missteps remaining, are my responsibility.

To the Reader

The aim of this book is revealed by its title: it is meant to help you understand the political world. It assumes that you are interested in politics. It does not assume that you have substantial knowledge about politics or political science. It does not assume you know the difference between politics and political science. I hope that when you complete the book (especially in conjunction with instruction about politics from a teacher), you will feel that you have increased your knowledge about the contemporary political world.

The study of politics is full of fascinating questions. First are the questions about what is: Who exercises political power and what values and purposes guide them? Why do people accept political authority? How do people organize themselves politically? What causes individuals and groups to take political action? A second set of questions concerns what ought to be: Who should exercise political power and what values should they pursue? Why should people accept political authority? How should political structures be organized? Why should individuals and groups act politically? There are sharp disagreements about answers to both these descriptive (what is) and normative (what ought to be) questions. In addition, the study of politics provokes a third set of questions regarding what we can actually know about the political world. Here also there are major disagreements about the appropriate methods for describing and understanding politics.

Although this book cannot resolve the underlying disputes, it offers you the basis for making sense out of politics at all three levels. As author, I make some basic assumptions: that you can think systematically about politics and make general statements about how politics works; that you will learn more about politics by considering the politics of many different places; that every observer of politics (certainly including you and me) has biases, only some of which can be understood; that you need a variety of sources of ideas and information before you can make informed and sensible decisions about the value disagreements pervading politics; and that this book is one such source that can be helpful to you. My efforts will be successful to the extent that you ultimately judge my assumptions to be correct (especially the last one . . .)

It is inevitable that you will be frustrated with the treatment of politics at some (many?) points in this book. I would say: Reader, be merciful! The study of politics is incredibly complex. Gather bits of understanding where you can find them.

Brief Contents

Boxed Features xvii

Preface xix

To the Reader xxiii

PART ONE ON KNOWING THE POLITICAL WORLD 1

Chapter 1 Politics and Knowledge 3

PART TWO POLITICAL BEHAVIOR 25

Chapter 2 Political Beliefs 27

Chapter 3 Political Actions 49

Chapter 4 Influences on Beliefs and Actions 73

Chapter 5 Political Activists: The Gladiators 95

PART THREE POLITICAL SYSTEMS 115

Chapter 6 States and Nations 117

Chapter 7 Political Economy 142

Chapter 8 Political Institutions I: Classifying Systems 164

Chapter 9 Political Institutions II: Structures 195

PART FOUR POLITICAL PROCESSES 219

Chapter 10 Politics as a Value Allocation Process 221

Chapter 11 Political Communication 240

Chapter 12 Change and Political Development 260

Chapter 13 Political Violence 285

PART FIVE	POLITICS AMONG STATES	305
Chapter 14	Politics between States	307
Chapter 15	The More Developed Countries in the Post–Cold War World	337
Chapter 16	The Transitional Developed Countries in the Post–Cold War World	367
Chapter 17	The Developing Countries in the Post–Cold War World	402
Chapter 18	The Last Chapter: Looking Backward, Looking Forward	444
Appendix	Political Analysis	455
References		469
Index		481

Contents

Boxed Features xvii

Preface xix

To the Reader xxiii

PART ONE ON KNOWING THE POLITICAL WORLD 1

CHAPTER 1 POLITICS AND KNOWLEDGE 3

On Politics 5

Types of Political Knowledge 6

Description 6

Box 1.1 Where in the World Is It? 7

Explanation 7, Prescription 8

Sources of Political Knowledge 9

Authority 9

Box 1.2 General Authorities and Normative Knowledge: The Role of Women in Politics 11

Personal Thought 13, The Method of Science 14

Political Science 14

Box 1.3 Gender and Voting: Applying the Scientific Method to Politics 16

Political “Science”? 19

Criticisms of Political Science as a “Science” 19, Political Science as a Means of Understanding the Political World 20

Box 1.4 How’s Your Bias? 21

Where Is This Book Going? 22

For Further Consideration 23

For Further Reading 23

PART TWO POLITICAL BEHAVIOR25*CHAPTER 2 POLITICAL BELIEFS 27

- Political Beliefs 28
- Belief Systems 30
 - Belief Systems among Mass Publics* 31, Belief Systems among Elites 32
 - Box 2.1 Three Ideal-Type Belief Systems among the American Foreign Policy Elite 33
- Political Culture 34
 - National Character Studies* 34, Survey Research 35
 - Box 2.2 Using Survey Research to Characterize Political Culture: The Civic Culture 36
- Political Ideology 38
 - Key Issues* 38, Conservatism 39, Classical Liberalism 41
 - Box 2.3 Whither Liberalism? Is That Liberal or Conservative? 42
 - Socialism* 42, Some Further Points about Isms 45
 - Box 2.4 From the Ism File: Fascism 46
- Looking Ahead 46
- For Further Consideration* 47
- For Further Reading* 47

CHAPTER 3 POLITICAL ACTIONS 49

- Individual Political Actions 51
 - Modes of Political Activity* 51, Political Participation Studies 52
- Group Political Actions 56
 - Box 3.1 Measuring Students' Political Behavior: An Example of Micropolitical Analysis 57
- Political Interest Groups 60
 - Activities of Political Interest Groups* 60, Constraints on a Group's Behavior 62, Types of Interest Groups 64
 - Box 3.2 The British Medical Association: An Effective Associational Interest Group 65
 - Box 3.3 Identifying Campus Interest Groups 66
- Political Parties 67
 - Activities of Political Parties* 67
 - Box 3.4 Let's Party! The Rise of the Green Party in Germany 68
- Doing Politics 71
 - For Further Consideration* 71
 - For Further Reading* 71