Classified List of Entries

The Classified List of Entries, which is supplementary to the Subject Index, groups the contents of the Encyclopedia by article title into a number of broad fields, alphabetically organized, from Administration of Education to Women and Education. Within these broad groups the entries are further subdivided into appropriate subheadings, not following any rigid scheme, but as each subject dictates. The reader is thus presented with a general overview of the contents of the Encyclopedia. Some articles inevitably relate equally well to more than one heading. Rather than make an arbitrary decision as to which section they belong, each article has been listed wherever appropriate. For example, "Computer-managed Testing" is listed both under Computers and Teaching Machines under the main heading EDUCATIONAL TECHNOLOGY, and under Types of Tests and Examinations under the heading of EVALUATION AND ASSESSMENT.

Articles are grouped under the following general headings: Administration of Education; Adult, Recurrent, and Lifelong Education; Comparative and International Education; Counseling and Guidance; Curriculum; Developing Countries and Education; Disciplinary Approaches to Education; Early Childhood Education; Economics of Education; Educational Institutes, Organizations, and Societies; Educational Policy and Planning; Educational Technology; Evaluation and Assessment; Higher Education; Human Development; Motivation and Attitudes to Education; National Systems of Education; Occupationally Oriented Education; Research Policy and Methodology; Sex Roles and Gender in Education; Social Stratification and Education; Special Education; Teaching and Teacher Education; Vocational and Industrial Education; and Women and Education. The majority of these headings provided the basis for the organizing scheme which was used in commissioning articles for the Encyclopedia.
