Americans will celebrate Mother's Day next Sunday. This year, tens of thousands of mothers will observe(庆祝、过生日、节日等) the day in an unusual way. They will gather in Washington, D. C. to demonstrate(示威) for stronger national gun control laws.

Last August, a mother in Short Hills, New Jersey was watching the news on television. She saw young children being led away from a Jewish community center in Granada Hills, California. Police were taking the children to safety after a gunman entered the center and shot and wounded four children and an adult. The pictures on the television frightened Donna Dees-Thomases. A few days later she decided to start a movement to strengthen gun control and gun law enforcement in America. She asked the National Park Service for permission(允许) to hold a demonstration in the nation's capital. Some friends in Washington, D. C. advised her that such a protest(抗议) would probably not influence Congress to pass more gun laws. But Donna Dees-Thomases was very angry about gun violence. She continued with her plan.

So on Sunday, an estimated 150 000 women from across the nation will demonstrate on the National Mall in Washington for gun control. The demonstration is called the Million Man March. It is named after a march five years ago for black men called the Million Man March.

"In the future, scientists will make a lot of 3," said my parents. For three years I tried to learn physics and chemistry, but in the end I decided that I would never be a scientist. It was a long time before I told my parents that I wasn't happy at school. "I didn't think you were," said my mother. "I didn't either," said my father. "Well, the best thing to do now is to look for a job."

I talked about it with my friends Frank and Lesley who knew me well. At first, neither of them could suggest anything, but they promised that they would ask their friends. I had to wait at home with 4 to do. Sometimes I looked through evening papers, but I 5 to get any information I needed. Then a few days later while I was 6 in bed, someone telephoned. Gong Li

Quote

"People keep pushing me to be the center of attention. . . I would prefer to be on the sidelines, because that's where you see more."

—Gong Li

Biography

Gong Li was born on New Year's Eve, December 31, 1965, in Shenyang, Liaoning Province, China. Raised in Jinan, Gong Li is the daughter of an economics professor.

The porcelain beauty always dreamed of becoming a singer, and it was her love of music that led to her applying to China's top music school. Gong Li was rejected from the music school, but was accepted to the Central Drama Academy in Beijing, and graduated in 1985.

Do I amuse you?

The relationship between Gong Li and famed Chinese director Zhang Yimou started when Gong Li was cast in her debuted role, as the female lead in 1987's Red Sorghum, while she was still a student. Zhang Yimou and Gong Li were romantically involved for years, and he referred to her as his Muse.

Once she graduated, Gong Li was cast in Terracotta Warrior and The Puma Action in 1989, Ju Dou in 1990, and Zhang Yimou's Raise the Red Lantern in 1992.

The early 1990s were filled with film roles, such as The Banquet, in which she appeared as herself and a waitress, and Back to Shanghai in 1991. In 1992, Gong Li starred in the title role of Zhang Yimou's The Story of Qiu Ju, for which she won a Best Actress Award at the 49th Venice International Film Festival. In what she refers to as her favorite role, Gong Li spent weeks in a small village and learned the local language, in order to portray a poor woman.

Gong Li goes international

After her role in Mary from Beijing, Gong Li gained International recognition for her role in Chen Kaige's Farewell My Concubine in 1993. She won a New York Film Critics award for the film.

In 1993, Gong Li appeared in Flirting Scholar and Soul of a Painter, and followed these up with 1994's Living (another Zhang Yimou's film), Dragon Chronicles, The Maidens, and The Great Conqueror's Concubine.

Gong Li's final collaboration with Zhang Yimou was in 1995's Shanghai Triad, the year her relationship with the director ended.

The 1990s rounded off with 1996's Temptress Moon, 1997's Chinese Box (which she refers to as the least favorite of her films), and 1999's Breaking the Silence and The Emperor and the Assassin. She is also said to be planning a film with Richard Gere.

Known as China's most famous actress in the Western world and the Chinese equivalent of Julia Roberts, Gong Li has a multitude of international awards to her name, most notably France's highest cultural honor, the Officier des Arts et des Lettres in 1988.

A gorgeous face

Gong Li is also China's most recognized face, chosen as a representative of Shanghai Tang clothing and a beauty ambassador for L'Oreal cosmetics. Not only recognized for her talent, Gong Li is also known for being one of the world's most beautiful women, as People magazine included her in one of its 50 Most Beautiful People lists.

Though she is no longer with Zhang Yimou (who has since been allegedly linked to Zhang Ziyi), Gong Li has been happily married to a wealthy businessman from Singapore, Ooi Wei Ming, since 1996.

Besides providing an ideal environment(理想环境) for sea plants and animals to live in, seawater has other values, one of which is that it constantly moves, and its movements produce energy.

The most obvious movements are waves and the tides. Winds causes the waves, and the gravational pull of the moon and the sun causes tides. In places like the Bay of Fundy in Canada, the difference between the high and low tide level can be as much as 40 feet.

France and Britain are now trying to use energy in the tides to produce electricity. Waves can produce electricity and some experiments are taking place to learn more about this. One of the most encouraging areas of research uses the difference between the temperature of seawater at the surface and deep down to produce electricity.

The measure of man's real character is what he would do if he knew he would never be found out.

—Thomas Macaulay

Some thirty years ago, I was studying in a public school in New York. One day, Mrs Nanette O'Neill gave an arithmetic 1 to our class. When the papers were 2 she discovered that twelve boys had made exactly the 3 mistakes throughout the test.

There is nothing really new about 4 in exams. Perhaps that was why Mrs O'Neill 5 even say a word about it. She only asked the twelve boys to 6 after class. I was one of the twelve.

Mrs O'Neill asked no questions, and she didn't 7 us either. Instead, she wrote on the blackboard the 8 words by Thomas Macaulay. She then ordered us to 9 these words into our exercise-books one hundred times.

I don't 10 about the other eleven boys. Speaking for myself I can say; it was the most important single 11 of my life. Thirty years after being 12 to Macaulay's words, they still seem to me the best yardstick (准绳), because they give us a 13 to measure ourselves rather than others.

Few of us are asked to make 14 decisions about nations going to war or armies going to battle. But all of us are called 15 daily to make a great many personal decisions. 16 the wallet, found in the street, be put into a pocket or turned over to the policeman? Should the 17 change received at the store be forgotten or 18 ? Nobody will know except 19 . But you have to live with yourself, and it is always 20 to live with someone you respect.
