During the second reading, you are required to put the missing words or phrases on the Answer Sheet in order of the numbered blanks according to what you have heard. The third reading is for you to check your writing. Now the passage will begin.

Now I'd like to talk to you about your final exam. The exam will be held next Thursday, the last day of the exam week. Remember to bring two pens in case you run out of ink. And unlike the midterm exam, this test will not 11 multiple-choice questions; it will consist entirely of essays. You'll have to answer three of the five essay questions. The exam will be comprehensive, which means you'll be 12 for all of the subject matters we covered in class this term. I would suggest you 13 your midterm exam as well as textbooks and your class notes. The final exam will count as 50 percent of your grade of the course. The research 14 will count as 20 percent and the midterm exam 30 percent. I'll be in my office almost all day next Tuesday. If you run into any 15, please drop in. Good luck to you and I'll see you on Tuesday.

Task 2

Directions: This task is the same as Task 1. The 5 questions or unfinished statements are numbered 41 through 45.

In 1909 an English newspaper offered £ 1,000 to the first man to fly across the English Channel in an airplane. Today, modern jets cross it in minutes. But at that time it still seemed a good distance. The race to win the money soon became a race between two men. Both were very colorful.

One was Louis Bleriot. He owned a factory in France that made motor car lamps. He was already well known as a pilot (飞行员) because he had had accidents several times. Some people laughed at him. One man said, "He may not be the first to fly across the Channel but he will certainly be the first to die in an accident!" But Bleriot was really a good and brave pilot. He also had many good ideas about airplane design.

The other man was Hubert Latham. He was half French and half English. He took up flying when his doctors told him he had only a year to live. "Oh, well," he said, "if I'm going to die soon, I think I shall have a dangerous and interesting life now." Latham was the first to try the flight across the Channel. Ten kilometers from the French coast, his plane had some trouble. It fell down into the water and began to sink under the water. A boat reached Latham just in time. He was sitting calmly on the wing and was coolly lighting a cigarette. Bleriot took off six days later. He flew into some very bad weather and very low cloud. He somehow got to the English side and landed in a farmer's field. When he did so, a customs (海关) officer rushed up to his plane. Planes have changed since then, but customs officers have not. "Have you anything to declare?" The officer demanded.

41. Bleriot was well known as a pilot because _____.
 - A) he was unusually brave
 - B) he was quite rich
 - C) he had many good ideas about airplane design
 - D) he had had a few accidents
42. Why did Hubert Latham want to fly across the Channel? _____.
 - A) He thought he could manage it easily.
 - B) He wanted to be the first one to cross the Channel.
 - C) He knew he only had a year to live.
 - D) He had always been interested in flying.
43. Which of the following is NOT true? _____.
 - A) Latham became a pilot on the doctor's advice.
 - B) He was told he could live another year.
 - C) His plane had some trouble.
 - D) He was saved by a boat when his plane was sinking.
44. Why did the customs officer rush to the plane? _____.
 - A) To see if everything was all right with the plane.
 - B) To make sure that the pilot was not hurt.
 - C) To ask why the plane had landed in a farmer's field.
 - D) None of the above.
45. "Do you have anything to declare?" means _____.
 - A) "Do you want any help?"
 - B) "Is there anything wrong?"
 - C) "Have you brought anything on which custom duties must be paid?"
 - D) "Do you have anything to say to the public?"
