ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

With authors from such a wide range of countries, this book reflects a truly international team effort.

We have been lucky. Our enthusiasm regarding the project was shared by a group of outstanding practitioners. When spending weekends and holiday time on the book the authors may have had second thoughts. However, we are sure that, when reading the end product, all will be proud to have been part of this exciting project.

The group of private practitioners that has given its very best to produce the book is truly impressive. Jim, Ingrid, Tiffany, Ros, Konstantin, Hans, Jan, Tristan, Dirk, Thomas, Stephanie, Ángel, and Pablo, we are very grateful for your efforts and, in particular, for your willingness to share your practical experience with the reader. You have gone further than we reasonably could have expected. We know that, behind all of you, there is a team of younger colleagues that have supported the project with their research and review assistance. Our special thanks to all of them that have worked so hard ‘behind the scenes’.

At the outset we were not sure whether we would be able to convince public enforcers to step on board and to share their insights and experience in a manner consistent with the ambitions of the project. Our worries have proven unwarranted. We have found guidance in the public enforcer contributions that we have read nowhere else. Very special thanks to Felix, Pablo, Jan, Manuel, Ralf, André, Xavier, Maria, and Eddy.

In the midst of all these legal experts, we were very happy that Vincent and Aleksandra agreed to share their economic insights on the delicate topic of information sharing. Given the practical importance of the subject, the reader will undoubtedly benefit from the guidance offered by these experienced economists.

Last but not least, our sincere thanks go to our contrast team. A project of this magnitude would never have been possible without the help and support of Eline, Herlinde, Karolien, Maaïke, Milena, Sarah, Sofie, and Stefanie. The final stretch of the project has been coordinated by Evi Noël. We would never have been able to meet the challenging deadline imposed by the publisher without her total commitment.

All contributors have agreed to donate the royalties of this book to a good cause.
