

STRATEGIES FOR ORDINARY AND TECHNICAL ENGLISH WRITING

普通与科技英语写作技巧

人民教育出版社

Strategies for Ordinary and Technical English Writing
(普通与科技英语写作技巧)

图书在版编目 (CIP) 数据

普通与科技英语写作技巧/赵纬编著 - 北京: 人民教育出版社, 2000

ISBN 7-107-13966-5

I. 普…

II. 赵…

III. 科学技术 - 英语 - 写作

IV. H315

中国版本图书馆 CIP 数据核字 (2000) 第 71996 号

人 人 教 材 出 版 社 出 版 发 行

(北京沙滩后街 55 号 邮编: 100009)

网 址: <http://www.pep.com.cn>

人 人 教 材 出 版 社 印 刷 厂 印 装 全 国 新 华 书 店 经 销

2000 年 11 月第 1 版 2000 年 11 月第 1 次印刷

开 本: 890 毫米×1 240 毫米 1/32 印 张: 11.625

字 数: 300 千 字 印 数: 0 001~2 000 册

定 价: 19.60 元

前　　言

科技英语写作有其自身明显的特征，但它是在普通英语写作基础上派生而来，而且不断发展的。这本《普通与科技英语写作技巧》是为了适应新世纪的需求而编写的。

本书的特点就在于它不仅能够提高读者普通英语写作的能力，而且在普通英语写作的基础上，有助于读者了解、熟悉、掌握现代科技英语写作的技巧，从而学会如何从事科技英语的写作。本书照顾到了文理兼顾的需求。

在取材方面，所选文章题材广泛、语言规范、文体特色突出、科普文章占有一定的比例。

针对每一种写作方法，书中还配备了大量不同类型的练习，供读者从事写作实践。书后还配有练习答案，供读者参考。

全书分为九章。除了从“遣词”到文章的写作之外，在最后三章中对一些应用文的写作方法也在不同程度上进行了介绍与说明。

限于编者的水平和经验，书中疏漏及不妥之处，欢迎广大读者批评指正。

编　者

2000.1.1.

Contents

Chapter I DICTION

1. Toward effective diction	1
(1) Nontechnical writing	1
A. General and specific words	1
B. Concrete and abstract words	3
(2) Technical writing	4
A. Use simple and familiar words	4
B. Avoid imprecise words	5
C. Avoid overstatement	6
2. Toward concise diction	6
(1) Nontechnical writing	7
A. Avoid padded expressions	7
B. Eliminate tautology	7
C. Avoid needless repetition	8
(2) Technical writing	9
A. Avoid weak verbs	9
B. Delete needless to be construction	10
C. Fight noun addition	10
D. Make negatives positive	11
3. Toward direct and fresh diction	12
(1) Nontechnical writing	12
A. Avoid euphemisms	12
B. Avoid clichés	12
(2) Technical writing	13
A. Avoid useless jargon	13
B. Use acronyms selectively	14
4. Denotation and connotation	14
(1) Nontechnical writing	14
(2) Technical writing	15

Exercises	15
------------------	-------	----

Chapter II THE SENTENCE

1. Sentence strategies	17
(1) Short and long sentences	17
(2) Loose and periodic sentences	20
(3) Inverted sentences	22
(4) Parallelism	22
A. Parallelism of words	23
B. Parallelism of phrases	23
C. Parallelism of clauses	23
D. Parallelism of sentences	24
E. Parallelism of paragraphs	25
F. Balance	27
(5) The right verb voice	28
2. Effective sentences	29
(1) Nontechnical writing	30
A. Unity	30
B. Coherency	30
C. Variety	32
(2) Technical writing	35
A. Clarity	35
B. Conciseness	37
Exercise	39

Chapter III THE PARAGRAPH

1. The topic sentence	43
(1) Topic sentence stated first	43
(2) Topic sentence stated last	44
(3) Topic sentence stated first and last	45
(4) Topic sentence stated in the middle	45

(5) Topic sentence implied	46
2. Effective paragraphs	47
(1) Unity	47
(2) Coherence	49
A. Connecting words and phrases	50
B. Repeated key words	52
C. Pronouns and demonstrative adjectives	53
D. Parallelism	53
(3) Completeness	53
3. Organization	55
(1) Chronological sequence	55
(2) Spatial sequence	56
(3) Enumeration	57
(4) Process analysis	58
(5) Illustration	59
(6) Comparison and contrast	61
(7) Cause and effect	63
A. One reason leads to several results	64
B. One result is caused by several reasons	64
C. Reasons and results are interlocked	65
(8) Classification	65
(9) Definition	68
(10) Emphatic sequence	71
(11) Coordination and subordination	72
4. Paragraphs with special functions	75
(1) Introductions	75
A. A directly stated thesis	75
B. A question	76
C. A quotation	76
D. A definition	77
E. Personal experience	78
(2) Conclusions	78
A. Restatement of the thesis	78
B. A question	79

C. A quotation	79
D. A summary	79
(3) Transitional paragraphs	80
5. Paragraphs in technical writing	82
(1) The standard paragraph	82
(2) The topic sentence	83
(3) The length of a paragraph	84
(4) Organization	84
A. Chronological sequence	84
B. Spatial sequence	85
C. Effect-to-cause sequence	85
D. Cause-to-effect sequence	86
E. Emphatic sequence	86
F. Problem-causes-solution sequence	87
G. Comparison-contrast sequence	87
H. Definition	88
Exercises	89

Chapter IV TONE AND STYLE

1. Tone	98
(1) Tone announces interpersonal distance	98
A. Formal tone	98
B. Semiformal tone	98
C. Informal tone	98
(2) Tone announces attitude	99
A. Humorous tone	99
B. Inspiring tone	100
C. Formal tone	101
D. Critical tone	102
E. Satirical tone	102
(3) Tones in technical writing	103
A. Deciding on appropriate distance

between writer and reader	103
B. Considering the attitudes toward the subject	103
C. Ways to make tone conversational and appropriate	104
2. Style	107
(1) Formal style	107
(2) Informal style	109
(3) Special stylistic techniques	110
A. Simile and metaphor	110
B. Personification	111
C. Overstatement	112
D. Understatement	112
E. Pun	113
F. Irony	113
(4) Styles in technical writing	114
A. Technical style	114
B. Special stylistic techniques	116
Exercises	116

Chapter V THE COMPOSITION

1. The writing process	122
(1) Knowing the purpose of writing	122
(2) Exploring the topic	125
A. Drawing support from your personal experience	125
B. Sorting out a subject	125
C. Asking questions	125
D. Free – writing	126
E. Brainstorming	127
(3) Collecting material	127
A. Brainstorming	128
B. Reading	128
(4) Developing a thesis statement	129
(5) Writing an outline	129

(6) Writing an essay	131
A. Introduction	131
B. Body	132
C. Conclusion	132
2. Narration	136
(1) A story	137
(2) A biography	139
(3) An autobiography	140
(4) A travel account	142
(5) A news report	144
(6) A history	146
(7) A play	149
(8) Personal experience	152
3. Description	153
(1) The description of a person	155
(2) The description of an object	163
(3) The description of a scene	166
4. Description of technical writing	170
(1) Objectivity in description	170
(2) Elements of description	171
(3) A general structure of description	171
5. Exposition	174
(1) Illustration or example	175
(2) Definition	179
A. Etymology	179
B. Negation	180
C. Comparison and contrast	180
D. Example	180
(3) Process	186
(4) Classification	188
(5) Comparison and contrast	190
(6) Cause and effect	197
6. Exposition of technical writing	200
(1) Definition	201

A.	Plain English	201
B.	Basic property	201
C.	Objectivity	201
(2)	Processes and procedures	202
	A. Elements of instruction	202
	B. Effective page design	204
	C. General structure of instructions	204
	D. General structure of process analysis	210
7.	Argumentation	212
(1)	Get an idea of your opposition and audience	212
(2)	Support your argument with evidence	212
	A. Facts	213
	B. Statistical data	213
	C. Quotations	213
	D. Personal experience	214
(3)	Organize your argument	214
	A. Induction	215
	B. Deduction	216
	C. Inductive – deductive pattern	221
(4)	Ferret out fallacies	223
	A. Hasty generalization	223
	B. The either / or fallacy	223
	C. False analogy	223
	D. Following the general trend	223
	E. Circular argument	224
	F. After this , therefore because of this	224
Exercises	228

Chapter VI THE RESEARCH PAPER

1.	Choosing a topic	242
2.	Gathering information	243
(1)	Use a library	243

A.	Learning about your college or university library	243
B.	Assembling a working bibliography	243
(2)	Take notes	245
	A. Evaluating your sources	245
	B. Mechanics of note taking	245
	C. Types of notes	245
3.	Organizing and outlining	246
4.	Writing the first draft	246
(1)	Write notes	246
(2)	Prepare bibliographic references	248
	A. Bibliographic references for books	249
	B. Bibliographic references for periodicals	250
	C. Bibliographic references for encyclopedia articles	251
(3)	Handle in-text citations	252
	A. Basic citation form	252
	B. Authors with the same last name	252
	C. Separating works by the same author	252
	D. Unsigned references	253
	E. Citing quotations	253
(4)	Cite entries for electronic sources	254
	A. Online database source-MLA (Modern Language Association)	254
	B. Computer software-MLA	254
	C. E-mail-MLA	255
	D. Web source-MLA	255
(5)	Avoid plagiarism	255
(6)	Write the first draft	257
5.	Revising your draft and finalizing the paper	258
Exercises		283

Chapter VII THE MEMO AND SHORT REPORT

1.	Memoranda	286
-----------	------------------------	------------

2. Short reports	288
(1) Recommendation reports	288
(2) Progress reports	290
(3) Periodic activity reports	292
(4) Investigation reports	293
(5) Minutes of meetings	294
 Exercises	 296

Chapter VIII THE SUMMARY AND ABSTRACT

1. The process of writing a summary	297
(1) Reading	297
(2) Writing	305
2. Forms of summarized information	306
(1) The closing summary	306
(2) The informative abstract	307
(3) The descriptive abstract	307
 Exercises	 308

Chapter IX THE LETTER, RÉSUMÉ, NOTE AND NOTICE

1. Letters	315
(1) Structure of a letter	315
(2) Layout of a letter	317
(3) Forms of a letter	318
(4) A business letter	320
A. Differences between a business letter and a personal letter	321
B. Parts of a business letter	322
C. Forms of a business letter	323
D. Types of a business letter	323

(5) A personal letter	331
(6) Differences between letters in British style and American style	336
(7) How to address an envelope	338
2. Résumés	340
3. Notes	343
4. Notices	346
 Exercises	 347
 KEY TO EXERCISES	 348
BIBLIOGRAPHY	353

Chapter I DICTIOn

When you write, diction requires careful attention. Poor word choice results in ineffective writing that resists interpretation and frustrates readers.

The following are strategies for finding the best words: make sure the words you use mean what you think they do, so that inaccurate or imprecise words will not distort your messages; inject vigor into your writing by cutting out the words that don't serve a purpose, so that every word in the document advances your meaning; present reality and attract reader's attention by using direct expressions and fresh effective language, so that you will serve your readers and your purpose best.

1. Toward effective diction

Effective diction stems from selecting terms that are concrete and specific, using simple and familiar words, and avoiding imprecise words and overstatement.

(1) Nontechnical writing

You can sharpen your meaning by using specific words, and make your writing informative by selecting concrete words.

A. General and specific words

General words name broad classes of things. If you say tree to your classmates, one may think of an oak, another of a poplar, and a third of a willow. Pine, on the other hand, triggers images of a tall tree with thin sharp leaves that do not drop off in winter, found especially in colder parts of the world. When you have a choice, always pick the more specific term. The more specific the term, the more specific the image is to the reader's mind.

The more specific your words, the sharper your meaning.

General	instrument musical instrument percussion instrument drum
Specific	bass drum small bass drum

To make words specific, you can use exact names, lively verbs, modifiers before nouns, and words that relate to the five senses.

- | | |
|----------|---|
| General | She likes painting. |
| Specific | Elizabeth likes painting. |
| General | Tom looked at her in surprise. |
| Specific | Tom gaped at her in surprise. |
| General | A girl is peeling potatoes. |
| Specific | A chubby, five-year-old girl is peeling potatoes. |
| General | That boy is a student. |
| Specific | That tall, lanky boy is a student. |

Notice how the picture becomes more vivid as we move to greater levels of specificity.

- | | |
|----------|---|
| General | He was a typical 17-year-old young man with a typical teen-ager's enthusiasm for life. |
| Specific | John Smith played tennis and cricket and enjoyed any sport on TV. Tall and lanky with an ever-present grin, he had a wonderful sense of humor and was gaining an appreciation of girls. He loved fiddling with computers and often fixed problems with our town-planning consultancy's computer system. |
| General | Switches can control many different things. |
| Specific | Small switches control lamps and radio sets because these do not take a large current. Larger switches control electric fires. Other switches can control electric motors. |

Specific words make readers see, hear, or feel what an author describes, and the details going along with the specific words make the writing vivid and effective.

However, general and specific are relative terms. The words building and gun are more general than the words apartment and rifle, respectively, but more specific than structure and weapon.

In some cases, you may also wish to generalize for the sake of diplomacy. Instead of writing exact names such as Tom, Rose and John quarrelled with each other, you might prefer to generalize: Some students quarrelled. The second version makes the point without accusing anyone in particular.

General words are also needed in classification and definition. We could not classify a horse without mentioning animal or define a lake without using the general word water. Sometimes, even in narration and description, general words are as suitable as specific words.

For example: After taking an exam, Mary felt exhausted, and therefore she got on the bus which would take her home.

Whether the bus raced or moved slowly is irrelevant to the main point of our story. The general word take here is all that is required, since our focus is not on the motion.

B. Concrete and abstract words

Concrete words name or describe the things that we can perceive with one or more of our five senses. A thing is concrete if we can feel it, hear it, taste it, smell it, or see it. If it's abstract, we can't do any of these things. Glass is a concrete term, as are chocolate, wood, sugar, coal, radio, and Dallas. On the other hand, happiness, enthusiasm, information, authority and beauty are abstract terms. Abstract words name qualities, concepts, or feelings whose exact meaning has to be nailed down by concrete words.

Concrete words create precise, vivid, mental images and therefore help convey a clear message. The images that abstract words evoke differ from person to person. Look at the following examples:

Abstract: There is a beautiful view here.

Concrete: There are snow-capped mountains, a wilderness of