The Authors

Dr Aleš Ferčič, born in 1977 at Ptuj, is an associate professor at the Faculty of Law of the University in Maribor, where he teaches the following subjects: European Union legal system and institutions; public economic law; competition law; administrative law; and constitutional and administrative law, and European Union legal system: selected issues. He is a head of the Institute for public administration and national communities at the Faculty of Law of the University in Maribor. He is also a member of several Slovenian and international professional associations and author or co-author of several monographs (e.g. Genesis of Liberalized Sectors, State Aids: Theory, Practice and Legislation, Introduction into European Union Law), scientific and expert papers published both in Slovenia and abroad. In addition to the said theoretical work, he is also engaged in legal practice providing public administration, undertakings and law firms with expert opinions and consulting services. His doctoral thesis presented at the Faculty of Law of the University in Ljubljana discussed issues relating to the liberalization of infrastructure sectors and the application of competition law to services of general economic interest. He is specialized in administrative and public economic law, and, as part of the latter, especially in energy law and the law of regulated industries.

Dr Nataša Samec Berghaus, born in 1974 in Maribor, is an associate professor at the Faculty of Law, University of Maribor, teaching the following subjects: Law of Obligations, Substantive Civil Law and Capital Market and Securities Law. She is also a permanent arbiter at the Central Securities Clearing Corporation of Slovenia and a member of the examination committee of the Association of Securities Exchange Members. She received two awards: the Chancellor's Award for Best Law Student of the Generation by the University of Maribor and Young lawyer award for remarkable achievements by the Association of Slovenian Lawyers' Societies for her Master's thesis. She passed the bar exam in 2003. Under the mentorship of her professor at the Faculty of Law, University of Ljubljana, she got her Ph.D. She has been an active researcher for over eighteen years. The subject of her research was initially focused on corporate law (analysing Good Corporate Governance), capital market and securities law, commercial law and law of obligations (with particular emphasis on the issues of compensation claims in various fields). Since 2013, she has been working actively on medical law and the issues related to environmental and energy law. She has participated in six research projects and four research programmes in her research fields. Along with her two scientific monographs (Corporate Takeover Defence: Preventive and Curative Defence Mechanisms and Stock Options: Aspects of Law of Obligations, Corporate Law, Labour Law, Insiders Perspective, and Tax Aspects) she has published eighteen original scientific articles in Slovenia and abroad so far.
