ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This book is the result of a workshop held at the premises of the Royal Netherlands Academy of Arts and Sciences (KNAW) in Amsterdam on 15 May 2015. The workshop was co-organised by Maria Weimer, Anniek de Ruijter and Maria Lee, and explored the idiom of co-production developed by Sheila Jasanoff in the context of European Union risk regulation in the field of public health and the environment protection.

We would like to express our utmost gratitude to the organisations, institutions and people that enabled us to share our ideas, and to sharpen our thoughts and writing. We want to thank the KNAW for supporting the workshop. We are also grateful to ACCESS Europe, especially to Jonathan Zeitlin, who have supported the project from its very inception, not only financially, but also with advice and ideas. Furthermore, we thank our respective research groups for their help and providing us with a stimulating working environment: the Amsterdam Centre for European Law & Governance (ACELG), the Maastricht Centre for European Law (MCEL), particularly Angela Moisl of the ACELG for her important research support as well as Monica Claes, Ellen Vos and Deirdre Curtin for their encouragement. We also thank our colleagues at the Law and Justice Across Borders programme of the Law Faculty of the University of Amsterdam for providing us with invaluable comments on work in progress. Lastly, we are grateful to Maria Lee for being an important academic mentor during this project as well as an inspirational example of academic work ethic and perseverance.

Finally, we express our gratitude to Danya Chaikel for her excellent language editing; and to the wonderful student-assistants, Juliane Dieroff and Lisa Perridon, who helped with all the tables and the bibliography. Last, but not least, we thank our families for co-producing this book with us by supporting our academic work and by patiently enduring all the missed evenings, weekends and general absent-mindedness that is part of this work.

CONTRIBUTORS

Dr Christopher Anderson earned a JD from Harvard Law School in 2002, after which he practised law for eight years in the fields of environmental law and appellate litigation. In 2016, he was awarded a PhD in Comparative Public Law by University College London for his thesis entitled Administrative Legitimacy and Risk Regulation in the European Union and the United States. He currently practises law in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Anniek de Ruijter is Assistant-Professor European Law at the University of Amsterdam. She is a research fellow at the ACELG (Amsterdam Centre for European Law and Governance) at the Faculty of Law. Her research focuses on European health law and policy, risk regulation and the interplay between security and public health. Her monograph forthcoming with Oxford University Press is entitled: The Expansion of EU Power in the Field of Human Health.

Tanja Ehnert is a lawyer in the Office for Policy Matters, International Affairs and EFSA Focal Point of the German Federal Institute for Risk Assessment in Berlin. She completed a PhD thesis in the area of EU risk regulation of nanotechnologies at Maastricht University in 2015. Tanja was previously a visiting researcher at the European University Institute in Florence, a trainee at the European Commission, DG Environment, and worked in a Brussels-based international law firm in the area of food and chemicals regulation.

Liz Fisher is Professor of Environmental Law at Corpus Christi College and the Faculty of Law, University of Oxford. She researches in the areas of comparative environmental law, risk regulation and administrative law.

Scott L Greer is Professor of Global Public Health in the Department of Health Management and Policy and Professor of Political Science (by courtesy) at the University of Michigan. He is also Senior Expert Advisor on Health Governance to the European Observatory on Health Systems and Policies. A political scientist he has published on Ebola in the United States (in Health Economics, Policy and Law 2017), communicable disease control in Europe (Journal of Health Politics, Policy and Law 2012), and European public health in general (European Union Public Health Policies, co-edited with Paulette Kurzer, 2013).

Sheila Jasanoff is Pforzheimer Professor of Science and Technology Studies at Harvard University's John F Kennedy School of Government. Her research centers on the engagements of science and technology with law, politics and policy in modern democratic societies, with a particular focus on the role of science in cultures of public reason. Her books include The Fifth Branch (1990), Science at the Bar (1995), Designs on Nature (2005), and The Ethics of Invention (2016).

Maria Lee is a professor of law at University College London. She teaches and writes widely in environmental law and tort law, including in EU risk regulation.

Gaia Pisani graduated in law at LUMSA University in Rome, and holds an LLM in International Commercial Law with distinction from the University of Cardiff. She specialised in food law and biotechnologies, and focused her research on the regulation of GMOs in EU and US. She worked at UN FAO (Rome), TMC Asser Institute (The Hague), Milieu (Bruxelles) and The ONE Campaign (Bruxelles), before moving to Southern Italy, where she currently works as a legal consultant for asylum seekers and refugees in reception centers.

Elen Stokes is a Professorial Research Fellow in Energy and Environmental Law at the University of Birmingham. Her research analyses regulatory responses to new and emerging technologies, such as nanotechnology and synthetic biology. Her recent work focuses on the regulation of advanced energy technologies, including hydraulic fracturing ('fracking') for unconventional oil and gas.

Holger Strassheim is Assistant Professor at the Department for Social Sciences, Humboldt University, Berlin and Visiting Researcher at the WZB Berlin Social Science Center, Germany. His areas of research include public policy and governance, expertise and democracy, comparative public policy analysis (especially welfare, consumer protection, food safety, employment policy, energy policy), organisation studies and social regulation. Previously, he worked as Visiting Fellow at the Royal Netherlands Academy of Arts and Sciences, Amsterdam and the Program on Science, Technology and Society at Harvard Kennedy School, Cambridge (MA). He held positions as Visiting Professor at the University of Darmstadt, the University of Bremen and at the Humboldt University. He is co-speaker of the working group on Policy, Science and Technology at the German Political Science Association, co-editor of Advances in Critical Policy Book Series (Edward Elgar) and co-editor of Critical Policy Studies Journal. Currently, he is co-editing the Handbook of Behavioural Change and Public Policy (Edward Elgar, forthcoming, with Silke Beck).

Maria Weimer is assistant professor in EU law and governance at the Law Faculty of the University of Amsterdam and a senior research fellow at the Amsterdam Centre for European Law and Governance (ACELG). She is also a member to the Amsterdam interdisciplinary research programme Law and Justice Across Borders. Before joining ACELG she worked as a post-doctoral researcher at the Department of International and European Law of Maastricht University (2011–2013). She holds a PhD in Law from the European University Institute in Florence. In the past Maria Weimer participated in collaborative EU projects funded under the 7th Framework Programme, such as RECON (Reconstituting Democracy in Europe) and INPROFOOD (Towards Inclusive Research Programming for Sustainable Food Innovations). She has published extensively in the field of EU risk regulation, environmental, health and food safety law, transnational regulation, WTO, and trade and environment; as well as the role of regulatory science and specialised expertise in public regulation.
