The Author

Prof. Dr Philip Stoop (born on 29 April 1983) studied law at the University of Pretoria in South Africa. In 2004, he obtained a BCom cum laude at the University of Pretoria, and a LLB cum laude and LLM cum laude in 2006 and 2008 respectively at the same university. In 2012, he obtained a LLD from the University of South Africa with a thesis on fairness in consumer contract law. In 2008, he was appointed as a lecturer, in 2009 as senior lecturer and in 2013 as associate professor in the Department of Mercantile Law in the School of Law at the University of South Africa where he teaches banking law. His areas of speciality are consumer protection law, and the law of contract. He has published widely in the fields of consumer protection law and credit law. He is the primary author of paragraphs 34–37, 42 (personal status of merchants), 52–61 (economic institutions and general obligations of economic operators), 62–63 (business assets and goodwill), 689–695 (law of establishment and supervision of economic activities and state incentives for economic activities), 717–772 (law of trade practices) and 773–803 (state regulation of the conditions of commercial transactions and consumer law).
