The Authors

Zdzislaw Brodecki was born in 1941; he graduated from the University of Torun in 1963. He is a Professor of Law and Head of Maritime Law Department of the Faculty of Law of Gdansk University. In 1985–1986, he was a visiting Professor at the University College Cardiff, and was a visiting Lecturer at the University of Southampton and the University of Stockholm. He has performed extensive activities in the field of maritime legislation both on national and international level; author of the draft of Polish Atomic Law Act, the Polish drafts of HNS Convention and the 1984 Protocols concerning revision of the 1969 Civil Liability Convention and the 1971 Fund Convention. He is an active member of the Polish Section of AIDA and the Polish Association of Maritime Law. He has published several books among which – ‘Compensation of Great Disasters’, ‘Ecological Damages in International Law’ and ‘The Modern Law of Transboundary Harm’, and articles in Polish and foreign professional magazines concerning international maritime and insurance law.

Agnieszka Binieda graduated from the University of Warsaw in 1998, at the Faculty of Law and Administration and holds an MA degree. Her Master’s thesis was an analysis of insurance supervision in Poland in relation to European Union directives. Currently she is on her legal adviser apprenticeship (aplikacja radcowska). From 1995 to 1997, she attended a course on civil liability insurance organized by the Chartered Insurance Institute of London. Agnieszka Binieda specializes in commercial law, insurance law and financial markets. At CMS Cameron McKenna, where she spent close to a year, she was involved in a state-aid project focusing on administrative, tax and insurance issues. She was also a member of a team preparing due diligence reports for various companies. Her experience includes participation in the establishment procedure of insurance companies, along with work related to other aspects of the Polish insurance market. Agnieszka Binieda is one of a team of lawyers introducing private pension funds into Poland. She spent almost a year in the London offices of CMS Cameron McKenna, working in the Insurance Department and for Financial Services, where she specialized in the Lloyd's market, brokerage agreements as well as in issues related to the European Union. Presently she is preparing a Ph.D. thesis concerning regulatory aspects of the Polish insurance market. She is the co-author of press articles concerning the role of insurance companies in the Polish social security reform.

Katarzyna Malinowska obtained an MA degree from the Faculty of Law of the University of Warsaw in 1997. Her thesis was on 'Investment Funds – Legal Aspects in a Comparative View'. In 1999, she completed her post-graduate studies at the High School of Insurance and Banking. She is currently a legal advisor. She also completed the cycle of a comparative law seminar, organized by the Faculty of Comparative Law at the University of Strasbourg. She specializes in civil and insurance law, in particular civil liability insurance aspects. She has been involved in state-aid projects, focusing on administrative, tax and insurance issues, and preparing legal analysis on aspects of commercial law, shares, sale transactions, and privatization. She has worked for major European insurance companies in the area of obtention of permits required to conduct insurance activity, drafting and revising the insurance products, and has also been involved in the European insurance law harmonization project. Her recent experience includes the establishment of pension funds and license proceedings. Katarzyna Malinowska is the author and co-author of several articles published in the insurance press, and co-author of the insurance chapter, published in a book in 1999 entitled 'Doing Business in Poland'.

Pawel Sukiennik obtained an MA degree from the Faculty of Law of the University of Gdansk in 1993. His thesis was on 'Taxation of the companies with CIT'. Since 1994, active at the insurance market, for the first ten years as a high-level management representative in several insurance companies. Since 2003, he works for corporate clients as broker and advisor. His specialization is liability insurance on which he wrote several publications and gave many trainings and lectures. He is currently cooperating with Lloyd's as a board member of Leadenhall Polska S.A., Lloyd's coverholder in Warsaw.
