

ROUTLEDGE
ROUTLEDGE
INTERNATIONAL
HANDBOOKS

Routledge Handbook of Cosmopolitanism Studies

Edited by Gerard Delanty

Routledge Handbook of Cosmopolitanism Studies

Edited by Gerard Delanty

First published 2012
by Routledge
2 Park Square, Milton Park, Abingdon, Oxon, OX14 4RN

Simultaneously published in the USA and Canada
by Routledge
711 Third Avenue, New York, NY 10017

Routledge is an imprint of the Taylor & Francis Group, an informa business

© 2012 Gerard Delanty; individual chapters, the contributors

The right of Gerard Delanty to be identified as author of this work has been asserted by his in accordance with sections 77 and 78 of the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988.

All rights reserved. No part of this book may be reprinted or reproduced or utilised in any form or by any electronic, mechanical, or other means, now known or hereafter invented, including photocopying and recording, or in any information storage or retrieval system, without permission in writing from the publishers.

Trademark notice: Product or corporate names may be trademarks or registered trademarks, and are used only for identification and explanation without intent to infringe.

British Library Cataloguing in Publication Data

A catalogue record for this book is available from the British Library

Library of Congress Cataloging in Publication Data

Routledge handbook of cosmopolitanism studies / edited by Gerard Delanty.

p. cm.

Includes bibliographical references and index.

1. Cosmopolitanism. 2. International relations – Philosophy. I. Delanty, Gerard.

JZ1308.R69 2012

327.1'01 – dc23

2011035165

ISBN: 978-0-415-60081-1 (hbk)

ISBN: 978-0-203-83713-9 (ebk)

Typeset in Bembo
by Taylor & Francis Books

Printed and bound in Great Britain by CPI Antony Rowe, Chippenham, Wiltshire

Routledge Handbook of Cosmopolitanism Studies

Over the past two decades there has been great interest in cosmopolitanism across the human and social sciences. Where earlier it had largely been a term associated with moral and political philosophy, cosmopolitanism has now become a widely used term in the social sciences. It is now integral to much of cultural, political and social analysis.

This is the first comprehensive survey in one volume of the interdisciplinary field of cosmopolitanism studies. With over forty chapters written by leading scholars of cosmopolitanism, this book reflects the broad reception of cosmopolitan thought in a wide variety of disciplines and across international borders. Both comprehensive and innovative in the topics covered, the Routledge Handbook of Cosmopolitanism Studies is divided into four parts:

- major theoretical debates, where the emphasis is on recent developments;
- cultural topics in the social sciences;
- the politics of cosmopolitanism;
- major world varieties of cosmopolitanism.

The Handbook answers the need to take modern cosmopolitanism out of its exclusive western context and relate it to the historical experiences of other world cultures. This is a major work in defining the emerging field of cosmopolitanism studies.

Throughout, there is a strong emphasis on interdisciplinarity, with essays covering philosophy, literary theory, history, international relations, anthropology, communications studies and sociology. The Handbook's clear and comprehensive style will appeal to a wide undergraduate audience across the social sciences and humanities.

Gerard Delanty is Professor of Sociology at the University of Sussex. His recent publications include The Cosmopolitan Imagination (Cambridge University Press, 2009) and the International Handbook of Contemporary Social and Political Theory (ed. with Stephen P. Turner, Routledge, 2011).

Illustrations

Tables

8.1		107
35.1	Percentage of sample in 'high' category of selected measures by country	433
35.2	Common components of International Connection, 2001 and 2004 for eight Asian countries	437
35.3	International Connection scores by eight countries, 2001 and 2004	438
35.4	Association between International Connection scores, Education and English Language proficiency, 2004, eight Asian countries	438

Figures

13.1	The rise in cosmopolitanism worldwide, 1980–2004	168
13.2	Persistent divergence between parochial and cosmopolitan societies, 1981–2005	173

Contributors

Etienne Balibar is Emeritus Professor of Moral and Political Philosophy at the University of Paris 10 Nanterre and Distinguished Professor of Humanities at the University of California–Irvine (USA). Since 2008 he has been Professorial Fellow at the Birkbeck Institute for the Humanities. He is author or co-author of numerous books including Reading Capital (with Louis Althusser) (1965), On the Dictatorship of the Proletariat (1976), Race, Nation, Class: Ambiguous Identities (Verso, 1991, with Immanuel Wallerstein), Masses, Classes, Ideas (Routledge, 1994), The Philosophy of Marx (Verso, 1995), Spinoza and Politics (Verso, 1998), Politics and the Other Scene (Verso, 2002), We, the People of Europe? Reflections on Transnational Citizenship (Princeton University Press, 2004). He is also a contributor to the Dictionnaire Européen des Philosophies (under the direction of Barbara Cassin, 2004).

Ulrich Beck is Professor of Sociology at the Ludwig Maximilians University of Munich. He is also British Journal of Sociology Centennial Professor of Sociology at the London School of Economics. From 1995 to 1998 he was Distinguished Research Professor at Cardiff University and from 1995 to 1997 he was a member of the Future Commission established by the State of Bavaria and the State of Saxony. His many books include World at Risk (Polity Press, 2009), Cosmopolitan Europe (Policy Press, 2007, with Edgar Grande), The Cosmopolitan Vision (Polity Press, 2006), Power in the Global Age (Polity Press, 2005), World Risk Society (Polity Press/Blackwell, 1999) and What is Globalization? (Polity Press, 2000).

Gillian Brock is Associate Professor in Philosophy at the University of Auckland in New Zealand. She works mostly in social and political philosophy and in ethics. Her most recent work has been on global justice and related fields. She is the author of Global Justice: A Cosmopolitan Account (Oxford University Press, 2009) and editor or co-editor of Current Debates in Global Justice, The Political Philosophy of Cosmopolitanism, Necessary Goods: Our Responsibilities to Meet Others' Needs, and Global Health and Global Health Ethics. She has contributed extensively to journals including Ethics, The Monist, American Philosophical Quarterly, Philosophy, Journal of Social Philosophy, Analysis, Philosophical Forum, Canadian Journal of Philosophy, Public Affairs Quarterly, The Journal of Global Ethics, Ethical Theory and Moral Practice, The Journal of Ethics, and Utilitas.

Kevin M. Brown is a Senior Lecturer in Sociology at Deakin University where he is also Deputy Director of the Centre for Citizenship, Development and Human Rights. He has researched and published in the areas of community association, the third sector and social capital, including the jointly authored book Rhetorics of Welfare (Macmillan, 2000) which was the first national study of Australian non-profit welfare organizations. Much of his work in this field has had a comparative international focus and he has given keynote addresses to conferences and research groups in Australia, Malaysia, Spain, Sweden, the Netherlands, Russia and the UK. He has held visiting fellowships at the universities of California–Berkeley, Hull, LaTrobe, Stockholm, and the Russian Academy of Sciences (Moscow).

Pheng Cheah is Professor of Rhetoric at the University of California–Berkeley. He is the author of Inhuman Conditions: On Cosmopolitanism and Human Rights (Harvard University Press, 2006) and Spectral Nationality: Passages of Freedom from Kant to Postcolonial Literatures of Liberation (Columbia University Press, 2003), and the co-editor of several book collections, including Derrida and the Time of the Political (Duke University Press, 2009), Grounds of Comparison: Around the Work of Benedict Anderson (Routledge, 2003) and Cosmopolitics: Thinking and Feeling Beyond the Nation (University of Minnesota Press, 1998). He is currently completing a book on theories of the world and world literature from the postcolonial South in an era of global financialization. Also in progress is a book on globalization and world cinema from the three Chinas, focusing on the films of Jia Zhangke, Tsai Ming-liang and Fruit Chan.

Daniel Chernilo is a Senior Lecturer in Sociology at Loughborough University. He has written on nationalism, cosmopolitanism and the history of social and political thought, in both English and Spanish. He is the author of four books: A Social Theory of the Nation-State (Routledge 2007), Nacionalismo y Cosmopolitismo (Nationalism and Cosmopolitanism), Diego Portales University Press, 2010) and La Pretensión Universalista de la Teoría Social (Social Theory's Claim to Universalism), Lom, 2011) and The Natural Law Foundations of Modern Social Theory (Cambridge University Press, forthcoming). He is also a member of the international advisory boards of the British Journal of Sociology, European Journal of Social Theory and Revista de Sociología (Chile).

Gerard Delanty is Professor of Sociology and Social and Political Thought, University of Sussex. In 2006 he was a visiting professor at Deakin University, Melbourne and has previously held visiting professorships in Kyoto and Toronto. He has written on various issues in social and political theory, European identity and the cultural and historical sociology of modernity. He is author of eleven books including Inventing Europe: Idea, Identity, Reality (Macmillan, 1995), Social Theory in a Changing World (Polity Press, 1999), Modernity and Postmodernity: Knowledge, Power, the Self (Sage, 2000), Citizenship in the Global Age (Open University Press, 2000), Community (Routledge, 2003, new edition 2010) and (with C. Rumford) Rethinking Europe: Social Theory and the Implications of Europeanization (Routledge, 2005) and the Cosmopolitan Imagination (Cambridge University Press, 2009). He has edited many volumes, including the Handbook of Contemporary European Social Theory (Routledge, 2005), Europe and Asia Beyond East and West (Routledge, 2006), (with Krishan Kumar) The Handbook of Nations and Nationalism (Sage, 2006) and (with Stephen P. Turner) The International Handbook of Contemporary Social and Political Theory (Routledge, 2011). Recent articles have appeared in the British Journal of Sociology (2006, 2011), Thesis Eleven (2010) and International Sociology (2006).

Robert Fine is Emeritus Professor of Sociology at the University of Warwick, where he was founding director of the Social Theory Centre and Convenor, M.A. Social and Political Thought. He is author of Cosmopolitanism (Routledge, 2007) and a number of articles and chapters on cosmopolitanism, most recently 'Enlightenment Cosmopolitanism: Western or Universal?' in David Adams and Galin Tihanov (eds) Enlightenment Cosmopolitanism (Manchester University Press, 2011). He is co-convenor of the European Sociological Network 31 on 'Racism and antisemitism' and is currently co-editing a special issue of European Societies on 'Racism and antisemitism'.

Patrick Hanafin is Professor of Law at Birkbeck Law School, University of London, where he also directs the Law School's Centre for Law and the Humanities. He has been a Visiting Professor at the School of Law at the University of Porto, Portugal and at the Law Faculty at the University of Pretoria in South Africa. He has held research fellowships at the European University Institute in Florence and at the Human Rights Program at Harvard Law School. His books include: Deleuze and Law: Forensic Futures (with Rosi Braidotti and Claire Colebrook) (2009); Conceiving Life: Reproductive Politics and the Law in Contemporary Italy (2007); Law and Literature (with Joseph Brooker and Adam Gearey) (2004); Constituting Identity: Political Identity Formation and the Constitution in Post-Independence Ireland (2001); Identity, Rights and Constitutional Transformation (with Melissa Williams) (1999); and Last Rights: Death, Dying and the Law in Ireland (1997).

Andrew Hartman is an Associate Professor of History at Illinois State University. He is the author of Education and the Cold War: The Battle for the American School (Palgrave Macmillan, 2008). Hartman is currently writing another book, A War for the Soul Of America: A History of the Culture Wars, From the 1960s to the Present, which is contracted to be published by the University of Chicago Press. He co-founded and regularly writes for the academic weblog, US Intellectual History (<http://us-intellectual-history.blogspot.com/>), which won the 2010 Cliopatria Award for "best group blog."

Baogang He studied at the universities of Hangzhou and the People's University of China, Beijing. He received his Ph.D. from the ANU, Australia in 1993. He is Chair in International Studies at the School of Politics and International Studies, Deakin University, Melbourne, Australia. He is the author of four single-authored books and three edited books, and 50 international refereed journal articles. His research interests cover deliberative democracy, Chinese democratization, Chinese politics, comparative politics, political theory, Asian regionalism, and federalism in Asia.

Alexander Hensby is a doctoral candidate in the School of Social and Political Sciences at the University of Edinburgh. He is co-author (with Darren O'Byrne) of Theorizing Global Studies (Palgrave, 2011).

Ronald Inglehart is Professor of Political Science and Program Director at the Institute for Social Research at the University of Michigan. His research deals with changing belief systems and their impact on social and political change. He helped found the Euro-Barometer surveys and directs the World Values Surveys. Related books include Modernization and Postmodernization: Cultural, Economic and Political Change in 43 Societies (Princeton University Press, 1997) and Cosmopolitan Communications (2010, with Pippa Norris).

David Inglis is Professor of Sociology at the University of Aberdeen, UK. He is a graduate of the University of Cambridge and the University of York. He is an Academician of the UK Academy of the Social Sciences. He has written in the areas of the history of social thought, historical sociology, the sociologies of culture, art and aesthetics, and the cultural sociology of globalization. He is particularly concerned with issues of irony and reflexivity within the social sciences. His books include The Globalization of Food (Berg, 2009), The Sociology of Art: Ways of Seeing (Palgrave, 2005), Culture and Everyday Life (Routledge, 2005) and Confronting Culture: Sociological Vistas (Polity, 2003). He has been on the editorial and advisory boards of a range of journals, most recently European Journal of Social Theory and the Journal of Sociology. He is founding editor of the journal Cultural Sociology, published by Sage and the British Sociological Association.

Humeira Iqtidar is a Lecturer in Politics at King's College, London. Prior to joining King's she was a research fellow at the Centre of South Asian Studies and King's College, Cambridge. Her research focuses on social and political theory related to secularism, Islamism, citizenship, and more recently on the nexus of pietist movements and neo-liberalism. She is the author of Secularizing Islamists? Jamaat-e-Islami and Jamaat-ud-Dawa in Urban Pakistan (Chicago, 2011).

Keith Jacobs is Associate Professor in the School of Sociology and Social Work and Associate Dean of Research (Faculty of Arts) at the University of Tasmania. His most recent books are Experience and Representation: Contemporary Perspectives on Migration in Australia (2011) and Cosmopolitanism and Anti Cosmopolitanism in Contemporary Australia (2011) co-edited with Jeff Malpas.

Weiqiang Lin is a PhD candidate at the Department of Geography of Royal Holloway, University of London. With experience in both academia and government administration, his research interests converge around issues on international mobilities, migration and transnationalism in the Asian context. In 2009, he completed his master's thesis on Singaporean transmigration to and from the United States at the National University of Singapore. Moving to a slightly different beat in the coming year however, he will be engaging in research that journeys along the lines of mobilities and civil aviation, to further develop his fascination with all things that move, and to find synergies between theory and practice.

Andrew Linklater is Woodrow Wilson Professor of International Politics at Aberystwyth University. He has published a number of books and papers on theories of international relations. He is currently involved in a large-scale project that focuses on harm in world politics. The first of three books on that subject, The Problem of Harm in World Politics: Theoretical Investigations (Cambridge University Press) was published in spring 2011.

Jeff Malpas is Professor of Philosophy and ARC Australian Professorial Fellow at the University of Tasmania and Distinguished Visiting Professor at LaTrobe University, Australia. His most recent books are Heidegger's Topology (2006), Perspectives on Human Dignity (2006), Consequences of Hermeneutics (2010) and Cosmopolitanism and Anti Cosmopolitanism in Contemporary Australia (2011) co-edited with Keith Jacobs.

Raffaele Marchetti is Assistant Professor in International Relations at LUISS University. His research interests are international political theory and global politics, especially global democracy and civil society. He is the author of Global Democracy: For and Against. Ethical Theory, Institutional Design, and Social Struggles (Routledge, 2008), co-author of Manuale di politica internazionale (UBE, 2010), and the co-editor of European Union and Global Democracy (CPI, 2009), Civil Society, Ethnic Conflicts, and the Politicization of Human Rights (United Nations University Press, 2011), Conflict Society and Peacebuilding (Routledge, 2011), Contemporary Political Agency: Theory and Practice (Routledge, forthcoming). He is currently working on a manuscript of Models and Scenarios of Global Politics.

Eduardo Mendieta is professor of philosophy at the State University of New York–Stony Brook. He is the author of The Adventures of Transcendental Philosophy (Rowman & Littlefield, 2002) and Global Fragments: Globalizations, Latinamericanisms, and Critical Theory (SUNY Press, 2007). He is presently at work on another book entitled Philosophy's War: Logos, Polemos, Topos.

Walter D. Mignolo is William H. Wannamaker Professor in the Program of Literature, Romance Studies and Cultural Anthropology at Duke University. He is also Director of the Center for Global Studies and the Humanities at Duke. He is also a researcher in the Universidad Andina Simón Bolívar (Quito, Ecuador) and the Academic Director of the Duke in the Andes Study Abroad program. Among his recent publications are The Darker Side of the Renaissance: Literacy, Territoriality and Colonization, second edition with a new afterword (Ann Arbor: University of Michigan Press, 2003) and Local Histories/Global Designs: Coloniality, Subaltern Knowledges, and Border Thinking (book series 'Culture/Power/History', Princeton, NJ: Princeton University Press, 2000), The Darker Side of Western Modernity: Global Futures, Decolonial Options (2011). He is also editor and collaborator of the reader Capitalismo y geopolítica del conocimiento: la filosofía de la liberación en el debate intelectual contemporáneo (2001), and founder and coeditor of Dispositio, as well as co-founder and co-editor of Nepantla: Views From South.

Michael L. Miller is Associate Professor in the Nationalism Studies program at Central European University in Budapest. He received his Ph.D. in History from Columbia University, where he specialized in Jewish and Central European History. His research focuses on the impact of nationality conflicts on the religious, cultural, and political development of Central European Jewry in the nineteenth century. He has recently published articles in Slavic Review, Austrian History Yearbook, Simon Dubnow Institute Yearbook, and Múlt és Jövő. Miller's book, Rabbis and Revolution: The Jews of Moravia in the Age of Emancipation, is recently published by Stanford University Press.

Aurea Mota is a researcher in the Department of Sociological Theory, Philosophy of Law and the Methodology of the Social Sciences, Faculty of Economics and Administration, University of Barcelona. She is completing her Ph.D. at the Institute for the Study of Society and Politics (IESP, formerly IUPERJ) in Rio de Janeiro. Her doctoral thesis is titled 'Historical Sociology of the Notion of the Person and the Liberal Project in Latin America'. She is a member of the Political Philosophy Group of the Latin American Research Council. Aurea was a Visiting Researcher in the Department of Sociology, Sussex University, UK in 2010. She was the recipient of two awards from the Latin American Social Science Research Council (CLACSO); the first in 2006 for research on the indigenous and black peoples' struggle for rights and the second in 2010 for research on the process of the incorporation of collective rights in Latin America.

Pippa Norris is the McGuire Lecturer in Comparative Politics at the John F. Kennedy School of Government, Harvard University. Her work analyzes comparative elections and public opinion, gender politics, and political communications. Related books by this author, published by Cambridge University Press, include A Virtuous Circle (2000), Digital Divide (2001), and Cosmopolitan Communications (2010, with Ronald Inglehart).

Darren J. O'Byrne is Principal Lecturer in Sociology and Human Rights in the Department of Social Sciences, University of Roehampton. He is the author of Human Rights: An Introduction (Pearson, 2002), The Dynamics of Global Citizenship (Frank Cass, 2003), Introducing Sociological Theory (Pearson, 2011) and co-author (with Alexander Hensby) of Theorizing Global Studies (Palgrave, 2011). He has also written many chapters and articles on themes related to globalization, citizenship and human rights. He is former chairperson of the Global Studies Association.

Sudarsan Padmanabhan is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Humanities and Social Sciences, Indian Institute of Technology Madras. Sudarsan specializes in social and political philosophy, Indian philosophy and culture. Sudarsan's research focus is on the confluence of law, democracy, and ethics in the public sphere. Currently, he is working on an understanding of an Indian social imaginary and its effect on the Constitution of India. Sudarsan graduated with a Ph.D. in Philosophy from the University of South Florida, Tampa, USA in 2005 and the title of his dissertation was 'Two Models of Consensus'. Sudarsan has another doctoral degree in philosophy from Pondicherry University, India, which he completed in 1998. Sudarsan is the Principal Investigator in the European Union funded project for establishing Contemporary European Study Centres in India, a two-year programme of the Centre for Comparative European Union Studies (CCEUS) that was inaugurated at IIT Madras on 20 January 2010. In the CCEUS, Sudarsan is also one of the coordinators of the Democracy and Development research group.

Nikos Papastergiadis is Professor in the School of Culture and Communication at the University of Melbourne. He studied at the University of Melbourne and University of Cambridge. Prior to returning to the University of Melbourne he was a lecturer at the University of Manchester. Throughout his career, Nikos has provided strategic consultancies for government agencies on issues relating to cultural identity and worked on collaborative projects with artists and theorists of international repute, such as John Berger, Jimmie Durham and Sonya Boyce. His current research focuses on the investigation of the historical transformation of contemporary art and cultural institutions by digital technology. His publications include Modernity as Exile (1993), Dialogues in the Diaspora (1998), The Turbulence of Migration (2000), Metaphor and Tension (2004), Spatial Aesthetics: Art, Place and the Everyday (2006), as well as being the author of numerous essays which have been translated into over a dozen languages and appeared in major catalogues such as the Sydney, Liverpool, Istanbul, Gwanju, Taipei and Lyon biennales.

Max Pensky is Professor of Philosophy at Binghamton University, the State University of New York. His recent publications include The Ends of Solidarity: Discourse Theory in Ethics and Politics (2008), and essays on Kant and Benjamin, Sebald, and international criminal law.

Nigel Rapport (M.A. (Cambridge), Ph.D. (Manchester), F.R.S.E.) is Professor of Anthropological and Philosophical Studies at the University of St Andrews, where he directs the Centre for Cosmopolitan Studies. He has also held the Canada Research Chair in Globalization, Citizenship and Justice at Concordia University of Montreal. His recent books include: 'I am Dynamite': An Alternative Anthropology of Power (Routledge, 2003); Social and Cultural Anthropology: The Key Concepts, 2nd edition (Routledge, 2007); Of Orderlies and Men: Hospital Porters Achieving Wellness at Work (Carolina Academic, 2008); and, as editor, Human Nature as Capacity: Transcending Discourse and Classification (Berghahn, 2010), and Reveries of Home: Nostalgia, Authenticity and the Performance of Place (Cambridge Scholars, 2010).

Alexa Robertson is Senior Lecturer at the Department of Political Science, Stockholm University, and guest researcher at the Department of Media Studies. Her current work, funded by a grant from the Swedish Research Council, compares depictions of the world in Al Jazeera English and other 'counter-hegemonic' news channels with those of established global broadcasters. In Mediated Cosmopolitanism: The World of Television News (Polity Press, 2010), she explores how journalists can help viewers recognize and identify with the distant 'Others' who populate their television screens. She is also working on a new book for Polity on media and politics in a globalizing world.

Maurice Roche is Professor of Sociology at the University of Sheffield, UK. His main sociological interests are in the fields of European society, social policy, and popular culture, particularly in relation to the theme of citizenship. He has been coordinator of the SEDEC international social research network on European citizenship and social inclusion (1995–2000), and Director of Sheffield University's European Social and Cultural Studies centre project (2003–6). He is the author of Phenomenology, Language and the Social Sciences (1973, Routledge); Rethinking Citizenship: Ideology, Welfare and Change in Modern Society (1992, Polity Press); Mega-Events and Modernity: Olympics and Expos in the Growth of Global Culture (2000, Routledge); and he is co-editor of European Citizenship and Social Exclusion (1997, Ashgate, with Rik van Berkel). His most recent book is Exploring the Sociology of Europe (2010, Sage).

Lisa Rofel is Professor of Anthropology at the University of California–Santa Cruz. Her publications include: Other Modernities: Gendered Yearnings in China after Socialism (University of California Press), Desiring China: Experiments in Neoliberalism, Sexuality and Public Culture (Duke University Press), The New Chinese Documentary Film Movement: For the Public Record (co-edited with Chris Berry and Lu Xinyu, Hong Kong University Press), and 'Beyond the Strai(gh)ts: Transnationalism and Queer Chinese Politics' (co-edited with Petrus Liu, a special issue of the journal Positions: Asia Critique). She is currently at work on a collaborative project (with Sylvia Yanagisako) on the twenty-first-century silk road between China and Italy, a study of transnational capitalism in the high fashion and textile industries.

Victor Roudometof is Associate Professor of Sociology at the University of Cyprus. His interests include cultural theory/sociology and sociology of religion. His latest volume is Orthodox Christianity in 21st Century Greece (Ashgate, 2010). For a full academic profile see www.roudometof.com. Currently he is working on a book manuscript on Eastern Orthodox Christianity.

Chris Rumford is Professor of Political Sociology and Global Politics in the department of Politics and International Relations, Royal Holloway, University of London, where he is also co-Director of the Centre for Global and Transnational Politics. He is the author of several books including The European Union: A Political Sociology (Blackwell, 2002), Rethinking Europe: Social Theory and the Implications of Europeanization (with Gerard Delanty) (Routledge, 2005), Cosmopolitan Spaces: Europe, Globalization, Theory (Routledge, 2008; winner of the Association of Borderland Studies Gold Award 2010), and the forthcoming The Globalization of Strangeness (Palgrave). He is the editor (or co-editor) of several volumes including Cricket and Globalization (co-edited with Steve Wagg) (Cambridge Scholars, 2010), The Sage Handbook of European Studies (Sage, 2009), Citizens and Bordenwork in Contemporary Europe (Routledge, 2009), and Cosmopolitanism and Europe (Liverpool University Press, 2007).

Monica Sassatelli is Lecturer in the Department of Sociology at Goldsmiths, University of London. She has published in the sociology of culture; Europe; and classical and contemporary social theory. She is the author of Becoming Europeans: Cultural Identity and Cultural Policies (Palgrave, 2009) and co-editor of Festivals and the Cultural Public Sphere (with L. Giorgi and G. Delanty, Routledge, 2011).

Zlatko Skrbis is Professor of Sociology and currently Dean of the Graduate School at The University of Queensland, Brisbane, Australia. He is the author of Long-distance Nationalism (1999), Constructing Singapore (with Michael Barr, 2008) and The Sociology of Cosmopolitanism (with G. Kendall and I. Woodward, 2009). His articles have appeared in various journals, including the Sociological Review, Nations and Nationalism, Theory, Culture and Society and Ethnic and Racial Studies. He is currently a chief investigator on the longitudinal study of young people in Queensland ('Our Lives'), a study of transnational elite farmers in Australia and a study of social networks, belonging and active citizenship among migrant youth in Australia.

Noah W. Sobe is Associate Professor of Cultural and Educational Policy Studies at Loyola University, Chicago (USA) where he also directs the Center for Comparative Education. He is the author of Provincializing the Worldly Citizen: Slavic Cosmopolitanism and Yugoslav Student and Teacher Travel in the Interwar Era (Peter Lang, 2008) and the editor of American Post-Conflict Education Reform: From the Spanish-American War to Iraq (Palgrave, 2009). His work has appeared in journals such as Educational Theory, Paedagogica Historica, Current Issues in Comparative Education, and the Harvard Education Review. Professor Sobe is presently editor of the journal European Education. His research examines cosmopolitanism in educational settings and the history of the transnational circulation of educational theories and practices.

Bo Stråth is since 2007 Academy of Finland Distinguished Professor in Nordic, European and World History at the Helsinki University. He was 1997–2007 Professor of Contemporary History at the European University Institute in Florence, and 1990–1996 Professor of History at Gothenburg University. He has researched and published widely in the fields of European modernity in a global context (www.helsinki.fi/strath).

Piet Strydom, an apartheid émigré, is Senior Lecturer in Sociology, School of Sociology and Philosophy, at University College Cork, Ireland. His publications include Discourse and Knowledge (Liverpool University Press, 2000), Risk, Environment and Society (Open University Press, 2002), New Horizons of Critical Theory: Collective Learning and Triple Contingency (Shipra Publications, 2009), Contemporary Critical Theory and Methodology (Routledge, 2011), and Philosophies of Social Science (Open University Press 2003, edited and introduced with Gerard Delanty), besides a wide range of articles in anthologies, encyclopaedias and leading journals. He also edited special issues of the European Journal of Social Theory on 'Social Theory after the Cognitive Revolution' (10/3, August 2007) and the Irish Journal of Sociology on 'Key Questions in Contemporary Social Theory' (20/1, May 2011), and wrote on 'Philosophies of the Social Sciences' for the UNESCO Encyclopaedia of Life Support Systems (Eolss Publishers, 2009). The thrust of his research, which is also his current interest, is the development of the cognitive core of critical social theory and research.

Yoshio Sugimoto is Emeritus Professor at LaTrobe University, Australia, where he taught and researched from 1973 to 2007 after obtaining his B.A. in law and political science from Kyoto University and his Ph.D. in sociology from the University of Pittsburgh. He has published many books and articles both in English and Japanese. His publications include An Introduction to Japanese Society, third edition (Cambridge University Press), The Cambridge Companion to Modern Japanese Culture (Cambridge University Press, edited) and Nihonjin o yameru hōhō (How to cease to be Japanese) (Honnoki, in Japanese). He is currently Director of Trans Pacific Press, Melbourne.

Bryan S. Turner is the Presidential Professor of Sociology at the Graduate Center, the City University of New York and the Director of the Committee on Religion; he is also the Director of the Centre for the Study of Contemporary Muslim Societies at the University of Western Sydney. He was previously the Alona Evans Distinguished Visiting Professor at Wellesley College USA (2009–2010). He edited The New Blackwell Companion to the Sociology of Religion (2010) and the four-volume Secularization (Sage, 2010). With Habibul Khondker, he published Globalization East and West (2010). Religion and Modern Society: Citizenship, Secularisation and the State (Cambridge University Press, 2011). Professor Turner was awarded a D.Litt. by Cambridge University in 2009.

Scott Ury is a Senior Lecturer in Tel-Aviv University's Department of Jewish History where he also serves as Head of the Stephen Roth Institute for the Study of Contemporary Antisemitism and Racism. His work has appeared in Jewish Social Studies, POLIN, the YIVO Encyclopedia of Jews in Eastern Europe and other academic forums in English, French, German, Hebrew and Polish. He has recently co-edited volume 24 of the annual POLIN on Jews and their Neighbours in Eastern Europe from 1750 to the Present, as well as a special edition of the European Review of History on Cosmopolitanism, Nationalism and the Jews of East Central Europe. His monograph on Jewish society and politics in turn-of-the-century Warsaw will soon be published by Stanford University Press.

Richard Vernon is Distinguished University Professor at the University of Western Ontario, where he teaches the history of political thought and contemporary political philosophy. His publications include The Career of Toleration (winner of the C. B. Macpherson Prize in 1998), Political Morality (2001), Friends, Citizens, Strangers (2005), Cosmopolitan Regard (2010), and an edition of Locke on Toleration (2010) for Cambridge University Press. Forthcoming work includes a co-edited volume on Accountability for Collective Wrongdoing and a monograph on Historical Redress.

Huon Wardle is Director of the Centre for Amerindian, Latin American and Caribbean Studies at the University of St Andrews. He has written many articles on Caribbean anthropology and is the author of a monograph, An Ethnography of Cosmopolitanism in Kingston, Jamaica; he is co-author, with Paloma Gay y Blasco, of How to Read Ethnography. With Nigel Rapport he recently edited a special edition of Social Anthropology, 'A Cosmopolitan Anthropology?'

Daniel M. Weinstock holds the Canada Research Chair in Ethics and Political Philosophy in the Department of Philosophy of the Université de Montréal. He is also the founding director of the Centre de Recherche en Éthique de l'Université de Montréal (CREUM). He has published a wide range of academic essays on topics in moral and political philosophy. Most recently, he has been working on the ethical and political issues involved in the relationship between parents, children, and the liberal-democratic state. He has also published in the area of health care ethics, especially to do with health equity, and on nationalism global justice, multiculturalism, and liberal democratic citizenship.

Pnina Werber is Professor Emerita of Social Anthropology at Keele University. She is the author of 'The Manchester Migration Trilogy' which includes The Migration Process: Capital, Gifts and Offerings among British Pakistanis (Berg, 1990 and 2002), Imagined Diasporas among Manchester Muslims: the Public Performance of Transnational Identity Politics (James Currey, Oxford, and School of American Research, Santa Fe, 2002) and Pilgrims of Love: The Anthropology of a Global Sufi Cult (Hurst Publishers, London and Indiana University Press, 2003). Edited collections include Anthropology and the New Cosmopolitanism: Rooted, Feminist and Vernacular Perspectives (ASA Monograph, Berg, 2008); Women, Citizenship and Difference, co-edited with Nira Yuval-Davis (Zed Books, 1999); Debating Cultural Hybridity and The Politics of Multiculturalism in the New Europe, both co-edited with Tariq Modood (Zed Books 1997).

Richard Werbner is Professor Emeritus in African Anthropology, Honorary Research Professor in Visual Anthropology, and Director of the International Centre for Contemporary Cultural Research at the University of Manchester. He carried out his first fieldwork among Winnebago of Nebraska in 1958, and began his long-term fieldwork in southern Africa in 1960, among Kalanga, first in Zimbabwe and later in Botswana, and among Tswapong in Botswana. Holy Hustlers, Schism and Prophecy: Apostolic Reformation in Botswana (2011) is his ethnography of Christian charismatics, accompanied by a DVD of his film, Holy Hustlers. His most extended discussion of cosmopolitans is in Reasonable Radicals and Citizenship in Botswana: The Public Anthropology of Kalanga Elites (2004). His other books include Regional Cults (ed., 1977), Land Reform in the Making: Tradition, Public Policy and Ideology in Botswana (ed., 1981), Ritual Passage, Sacred Journey (1989), Postcolonial Identities in Africa (ed., 1996), Memory and the Postcolony (ed., 1998), Postcolonial Subjectivities in Africa (ed., 2002), and Tears of the Dead: The Social Biography of an African Family (1991) for which he won the Amaury Talbot Prize of the Royal Anthropological Institute (RAI). The RAI also distributes his film series, The Quest for Well-Being in Botswana, and Forum Follies.

Iain Wilkinson is a Senior Lecturer in Sociology at the University of Kent, UK. His publications include Anxiety in a Risk Society (2001, Routledge), Suffering: A Sociological Introduction (2005, Polity) and Risk Vulnerability and Everyday Life (2009, Routledge).

Ian Woodward is Senior Lecturer in Sociology in the School of Humanities and Deputy Director, Griffith Centre for Cultural Research, at Griffith University, Brisbane, Australia. He has research interests in the sociology of consumption, aesthetics and material culture, and in the cultural dimensions of cosmopolitanism. He has published research papers in leading journals such as Theory, Culture and Society, The British Journal of Sociology, The Sociological Review, Journal of Material Culture, and Poetics. His critical survey of the field of material culture studies, Understanding Material Culture, was published by Sage in 2007. With Gavin Kendall and Zlatko Skrbis, he is co-author of Sociology of Cosmopolitanism (Palgrave, 2009). He is an editor of the Journal of Sociology and in 2010–2011 he was a Fellow of the Kulturwissenschaftliches Kolleg, University of Konstanz, Germany.

Meyda Yeğenoğlu is a professor of Cultural Studies at Bilgi University, Istanbul, Turkey. She has held visiting appointments at Columbia University, Oberlin College, Rutgers University, New York University, the University of Vienna and Oxford University. She is the author of Colonial Fantasies; Towards a Feminist Reading of Orientalism (Cambridge University Press, 1998). She has published numerous essays in various journals and edited volumes such as Feminist Postcolonial Theory; Postcolonialism, Feminism and Religious Discourse; Nineteenth Century Literature Criticism; Postmodern Culture; Race and Ethnic Relations; Culture and Religion; Inscriptions; Religion and Gender; Handbook of Contemporary Social and Political Theory; State, Religion and Secularization; Feminism and Hospitality; Toplum ve Bilim; Defter; and Doğu-Batı. Her book on Islam, Migrancy and Hospitality in Europe (Palgrave MacMillan) is forthcoming in 2012.

Brenda S. A. Yeoh is Professor, Department of Geography, and Research Leader of the Asian Migration Research Cluster Asia Research Institute, National University of Singapore.

Contributors

Her recent book publications include State/Nation/Transnation: Perspective on Transnationalism in the Asia-Pacific (Routledge, 2004, co-edited with Katie Willis), Migration and Health in Asia (Routledge, 2005, co-edited with Santosh Jatrana and Mika Toyota), Asian Women as Transnational Domestic Workers (Marshall Cavendish, 2005, co-edited with Shirlena Huang and Noor Abdul Rahman) and Working and Mothering in Asia (NUS Press and NIAS Press 2007, co-edited with Theresa Devasahayam).

Contents

List of illustrations	ix
List of contributors	x
Introduction: the emerging field of cosmopolitanism studies Gerard Delanty	1
Part I
Cosmopolitan theory and approaches	9
1 Alternative histories of cosmopolitanism: reconfiguring classical legacies David Inglis	11
2 Modernity and cosmopolitanism: from a critical social theory perspective Piet Strydom	25
3 The idea of critical cosmopolitanism Gerard Delanty	38
4 Cosmopolitanism and the question of universalism Daniel Chernilo	47
5 The global civilizing role of cosmopolitanism Andrew Linklater	60
6 World history and cosmopolitanism Bo Stråth	72
7 De-colonial cosmopolitanism and dialogues among civilizations Walter D. Mignolo	85
8 Emancipatory cosmopolitanism: a vision of the individual free from culture, custom and community Nigel Rapport	101