The Author

Judge Daniel David Ntanda Nsereko was born and raised in the Masaka District of Uganda. He attended Kabuwoko Boys' Primary School, Kako Junior Secondary School and King's College Budo. He holds an LLB degree from the University of East Africa, MJC degree in Comparative Jurisprudence from Howard University and LLM and JSD degrees from New York University. Judge Nsereko was appointed by the UN Secretary-General Appeals Judge of the Special Tribunal for Lebanon on 29 February 2012. Before his appointment, Judge Nsereko served as Judge of the International Criminal Court (ICC). He served as President of the Appeals Division from March 2009 to March 2010.

Before his election to the ICC, Judge Nsereko served as Professor of Law at the University of Botswana, where he headed the Law Department for eight years. He also previously served as the Walter S. Owen Visiting Professor of Law at the University of British Columbia Faculty of Law, Vancouver, Canada, Visiting Professor at Teramo University in Italy and as Senior Lecturer at Makerere University in Uganda. As a professor and scholar, Judge Nsereko specialized in the areas of Public International Law, International Criminal Law, International Human Rights Law, Criminal Law and Criminal Procedure and Constitutional Law. He has also published extensively in these areas. He is a member of the editorial boards of several international learned periodicals, including Criminal Law Forum, Journal of Church and State and the University of Botswana Law Journal.

Judge Nsereko also served on the Advisory Committee of the War Research Office of the American University Law School in Washington DC, provided expert legal opinions to various international adjudicatory bodies and served as a trial observer in several countries.

He is an advocate of the Supreme Court of Uganda and has practised law as a private practitioner.
