PUBLISHERS' NOTE

Although this is the last volume of the Encyclopaedia, it is to be followed by annual Supplements designed to keep the whole work up to date.

The First Supplement, consisting of two volumes, is in active preparation and will be published shortly. Volume I will contain new information which has been suggested in many cases by the original contributors, and will be arranged on the well known Butterworth Keyed Supplementary System, which facilitates rapid reference from the original contributions to the new material. Volume II will contain, firstly, a series of critical surveys on the present position and possible developments of various branches of medicine, surgery, and the specialities, and secondly, abstracts from the world's medical literature covering the whole field of medicine.

The publishers wish to record their high appreciation of the invaluable help received from the Advisory Editors and Associate Editors during the preparation of the twelve volumes of the Encyclopaedia.
