The Author

Johanna Niemi (Niemi-Kiesiläinen), Professor of Procedural Law, Academy Professor, University of Turku. She received her doctorate in law at University of Helsinki in 1995. She was professor of law at Umeå University in Sweden in 2004–2007 and vice dean (teaching) at University of Helsinki 2010–2013. She was a visiting Fulbright scholar at University of Wisconsin in 1997–1998 and visiting professor at University of Lund 2009–2012.

Niemi has taught criminal and civil procedure, including trial advocacy courses, insolvency law and courses on law and gender. She has written extensively on Finnish and comparative insolvency law, procedural law, human rights and violence against women. She has led several research projects, for example, ‘Violence in the Shadow of Equality: Hidden Gender in the Legal Discourse in 2001–2004’ and ‘Gendered Choices 2013–2015’. She was the co-editor of several journals and books; notably Responsible Selves. Women in the Nordic Legal Culture (Ashgate 2001; with Nousiainen, Gunnarsson and Lundström), Consumer Bankruptcy in Global Perspective (Hart Publishing 2003; with Iain Ramsay and William Whitford), Consumer Credit, Debt and Bankruptcy: Comparative and International Perspectives (Hart Publishing 2009; with Ramsay and Whitford) and Nordic Equality at a Crossroads. Feminist Legal Studies Coping with Difference (Ashgate 2004; with Eva-Maria Svensson and Anu Pylkkänen).

Acknowledgements

Professor Erkki Havansi first introduced me to this project and I am grateful for his support in this as well as in earlier projects. Erkki Havansi and district court judge Satu Seppänen were co-authors of a paper presented in a conference on provisional measures in Athens in 1998 that was the basis of Part IX Chapter 1. Four sources made my work easier and more pleasant than it would have been otherwise. The book Law of Procedure (in Finnish; WSOY), which has been a common project of several Finnish procedural scholars, was a great help. I am especially indebted to Professor Juha Lappalainen who wrote its chapters on civil procedure and Professor Jyrki Virolainen who wrote about general principles. Professor Antti Jokelas's chapter on the law of procedure in the book Introduction to Finnish Law was helpful in finding the English terminology. I have also used the translation of central laws into the English language that can be found in Finlex. Finally, the English language book on Swedish civil procedure by Professor Bengt Lindell helped me to structure the presentation. Students Andreas Philipsson, Johan Högberg and Anna Svedjevik at Umeå University and Tyyni Laiho at University of Turku helped me with the technicalities of the text. Tarja Linden has made the pictures. Head of Department Kari Kiesiläinen read the manuscript and commented on the administration of justice. I wish to thank all of them.
