GREEN POWER

PERSPECTIVES ON SUSTAINABLE
ELECTRICITY GENERATION

---

Preface

---

Green power, or the generation of electricity in ways that do not pose tradeoffs for future generations, has become a central piece of the debate about humanity's long-term survival. This book describes different countries' perspectives on this important topic given their natural endowments, geography, history, and culture, with the objective of identifying best practices and contributing to their dissemination. It is the result of a joint effort by faculty, researchers, and both graduate and undergraduate students affiliated with the Joseph H. Lauder Institute of Management & International Studies and the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania. We are indebted to Selma Pastor, who provided invaluable copy-editing assistance; to Sean Michalson, whose efficiency and initiative helped smooth the laborious process of preparation for publishing; and to Kimberly Norton, who assisted the research team throughout the various stages of the project.

João Neiva de Figueiredo is associate professor in the Department of Management at Saint Joseph's University's Haub School of Business and Senior Fellow at the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School. With over 20 years experience in international business, Dr. Neiva was a consultant at McKinsey & Company, a vice president at Goldman Sachs, and a partner at JPMorgan Partners. His research and teaching focus on the role and effects of sustainability practices in the areas of strategy and international management. Dr. Neiva holds electrical and systems engineering degrees from Rio de Janeiro's PUC, an MBA with high distinction (Baker Scholar) from the Harvard Business School, and a PhD in business economics from Harvard University.

Mauro F. Guillén is the director of the University of Pennsylvania's Joseph H. Lauder Institute of Management and International Studies, and Dr. Felix Zandman Professor of International Management at the Wharton School. He has written extensively about multinational firms, economic development, and the diffusion of innovations. He received his PhD in sociology from Yale and a doctorate in political economy from the University of Oviedo in his native Spain.
