The Author

Andrzej Marian Świątkowski (born 17 January 1944 in Warsaw) studied law and sociology at the Jagiellonian University in Cracow (1961–1969). He gained a degree in law (1966) and an MA in sociology (1969). After two years working as a clerk at the district court in Cracow, he received a doctorate in labour law from the Institute of Legal Sciences of the Polish Academy of Science in Warsaw (1972).

Dr Świątkowski studied at the Columbia Law School in New York. He gained an LLM degree in labour law from the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia (1977). In Poland, he received the habilitation degree from the Jagiellonian University in Cracow in the field of labour law and social policy (1976).

Dr Świątkowski spent a year as distinguished research fellow at the National Institute of Public Management in Washington, DC (1977–1978). After returning to his post at the Jagiellonian University, he was appointed to the position of extraordinary professor of law (1984) and ordinary professor of law (1991).

Professor Świątkowski spent one semester as a visiting scholar at New York University School of Law and another semester as a visiting professor at Indiana University. He lectured at various universities in Europe, United States, Argentina, and Australia. He delivered papers at International Industrial Relations Association congresses in Dublin, Helsinki, Oslo, Sydney, Tokyo and Santiago de Chile.

Professor Świątkowski acted as an editor in chief of two legal journals The Jagiellonian University Yearbook of Labour Law and Social Policy published in 1989–1999 in English, and Studies in Labour Law and Social Policy published since 1994 in Polish. He was also a co-editor of the East–West Review of Social Policy published by the Catholic University of Brabant in Tilburg. He also served as a member of the editorial board of Tilburg Foreign Law Review.

Since 1989, Professor Świątkowski has acted as the coordinator of the Tempus program on European social law. Under his academic supervision, more than 500 students received Master of Law degrees at the Faculty of Law and Administration of the Jagiellonian University. Eighteen of the students went on to earn doctorates in labour law. He reviewed over thirty doctoral and habilitation monographs in Poland. Three of his former doctoral students employed currently at the Jagiellonian

University received a habilitation and one was appointed to the position of Extraordinary Professor of Labour Law at the Jagiellonian University Faculty of Law and Administration. He also served as an external reviewer of three doctoral theses at the Andhra University in India and one in Vilnius (Lithuania). He was asked to submit professional opinion to support a candidate applying for honorary doctorate at Harvard University and professorship at Vilnius University in Lithuania. Professor Świątkowski has published more than 600 studies, articles, and reviews and 35 books in the field of Polish, international, comparative, and foreign labour law, social security law, and social policy.

In 2002, Professor Świątkowski was elected by the Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe to serve as an international expert on the European Committee of Social Rights (former Committee of Independent Experts) in Strasbourg. In 2005, he was elected Vice-President of that Committee. He served at the European Committee of Social Rights until 31 December 2012. Since 1 October 2014, Professor Świątkowski has been Professor Emeritus at the Jagiellonian University. Currently he is employed at the Jesuit University in Cracow.

Professor Świątkowski is a member of the International Employment and Labour Association (former International Industrial Relations Association) and the Society for Labour Law and Social Security. He was awarded an honorary citizenship for the State of Kentucky – ‘Kentucky Colonel’.
