How do you spend your summer holiday? Do you have a field 16 _____ or stay at home?
17 _____ good use of the summer holidays is very important for students.

When I was young, I always spend my holidays 18 _____ the country where my grandparents lived. The blue sky and the clean river gave me a refreshing 19 _____ from living in the city. Sometimes I went swimming or fishing and sometimes I just enjoyed 20 _____ on the grassy fields. Sometimes I 21 _____ the villagers and had a talk with them. This 22 _____ of village life broadened my views and strengthened my health.

The younger generation living in the city has limited living 23 _____ and how to spend the holidays 24 _____ a troublesome problem.

Many children spend their holidays entirely at home in tall buildings. 25 _____ they get up late, play electronic 26 _____ and watch TV. They seldom think of 27 _____ with the housework or even leaving the room. After one or two 28 _____ of this sort of holidays, they are 29 _____ both in mind and body. A lack of discipline(纪律) leads them to 30 _____ bad habits.

Holiday is not a time for students to just lie around "resting".

It is a good 31 _____ for parents to ask their children 32 _____ household duties. Some schools also 33 _____ students to take part in many kinds of activities such as 34 _____ volunteers(自愿者) working for people like guiding tourists (游客). 三、阅读理解(共20小题,每小题2分,满分40分)

阅读下列短文,从每题所给的四个选项(A、B、C和D)中,选出最佳选项。

A teacher pronounces an English word in front of the blackboard and then the students chant(重复) the word loud to him. Then they are asked to write the word out 10 times in their exercise books after class. As a result, the teacher shouts himself hoarse(嘶哑的) while the students are tired of repetitions.

For decades, this teaching method has been used in most Chinese classrooms and has prevented the development of generations of students. However, in this new century, laptop computers(笔记本电脑) and the Internet will hopefully make a difference in the Chinese classrooms.

"Great! I can learn English words and expressions through cartoons and games on my laptop computer now," exclaimed 12-year-old Xue Jinhai, a first-grader at Beijing No. 19 Middle School.

Xue is one of the 58 students in the two experimental classes, where everyone has a laptop computer. With a click of the mouse and several presses on the keyboard students can do exercises, make notes, and most important of all, send ideas or questions to the teacher whenever they want.

"This kind of exchange is something we never expected," said Pei Wenguo, a teacher of Chinese in the two experimental classes. With 50 or 60 students in a classroom, what he used to worry about most was students' talking in the class. "If each one airs his view or asks a question for as short as just 30 seconds, it would take most of the class half an hour to listen to them all, how can I get through the teaching plan in the remaining 15 minutes?"

Now with the help of the school computer network, Pei can warmly welcome ideas from his students. "Since everybody can talk on the school net at the same time, it saves time," said Pei. "The network enables me to give instruction to every member of the class, even though their needs differ."

Besides, he can give more to his students within the class hour. For example, he can list books and newspaper clipping on the computer for the students' selective reading, while teaching the text.

36. Most important of all, the students using laptop computers can _____.
A. do exercise B. make notes
C. send ideas or questions to the teacher whenever they want
D. learn words and expressions

37. In the experimental classes, what the teacher used to worry about was _____.
A. that he couldn't complete his teaching plan because of students' talking in class
B. that he couldn't complete his teaching plan because of students' talking in class
C. that he couldn't complete his teaching plan because of students' talking in class
D. that he couldn't complete his teaching plan because of students' talking in class

- B. that each student asked a question
C. that each student aired his view
D. that students couldn't listen to the teacher carefully
38. With the help of the school computer network, which of the following is not true?
A. The teacher can warmly welcome ideas from his students.
B. The school computer network can help the teacher give instruction to each one of the class.
C. Not all of the class can talk on the school net at the same time.
D. The students can do some selective reading while the teacher is teaching the text.

39. What's the main idea of the passage?
A. What the teacher worried about.
B. Computers bring the modern classroom teaching.
C. The two experimental classes.
D. The differences between the traditional classroom teaching and the modern one.

B
Specialists say that it is not easy to get used to life in a new culture. "Culture shock" is the term these specialists use when talking about the feelings that people have in a new environment. There are three stages of culture shock, say the specialists. In the first stage, the newcomers like their new environment. Then, when the fresh experience dies, they begin to hate the city, the country, the people, and everything else. In the last stage, the newcomers begin to adjust to their surroundings and, as a result, enjoy their life more.

There are some obvious factors(因素) in culture shock. The weather may be unpleasant. The customs may be different. The public service systems—the telephone, post office, or transportation(交通)—may be difficult to work out. The most simple things seem to be big problems. The language may be difficult.

Who feels culture shock? Everyone does in this way or that. But culture shock surprises most people. Very often the people having the worst culture shock are those who never had any difficulties in their home countries and were successful in their community. Coming to a new country, these people find they do not have the same established positions. They find themselves without a role(角色), almost without an identity(身份). They have to build a new self-image.

Culture shock gives rise to a feeling of disorientation(迷失方向). This feeling may be homesickness. When homesick, people feel like staying inside all the time. They want to protect themselves for the strange environment, and create an escape inside their room for a sense of security(安全). This escape does solve the problem of culture shock for the short term, but it does nothing to make the person familiar with the culture. Getting to know the new environment and gaining experience, these are the long-term solutions to the problem of culture shock.

40. When people move to a new country, they _____.
A. will get used to their new surroundings with difficulty

 Every year thousands of tourists visit Pompeii, Italy. They see the sights that Pompeii is famous for: its stadium (运动场) and theatres, its shops and restaurants. The tourists do not, however, see Pompeii's people. They do not see them because Pompeii has no people. No one has lived in Pompeii for almost 2 000 years.

Once, Pompeii was a busy city of 22 000 people. It lay at the foot of Mount Vesuvius, a grass-covered volcano (火山). Mount Vesuvius had not erupted (喷发) for centuries, so the people of Pompeii felt safe. But they were not.
 In August of AD 79, Mount Vesuvius erupted. The entire top of the mountain exploded, and a huge black cloud rose into the air. Soon stones and hot ash began to fall on Pompeii. When the eruption ended two days later, Pompeii was buried under 20 feet of stones and ashes. Almost all of its people were dead.

For centuries, Pompeii lay buried under stone and ash. Then in the year 1861, an Italian scientist named Gisepppe began to uncover Pompeii. Slowly, carefully, Gisepppe and his men dug. The city looked almost the same as it had looked in AD 79. There were streets and fountains, houses and shops. There was a stadium with 20 000 seats. Perhaps the most important of all, there were everyday objects, which tell us a great deal about the people who lived in Pompeii. Many glasses and jars had some dark blue colour in the bottom, so we know that the people of Pompeii liked wine. They liked bread too, metal bread pans were in every bakery. In one bakery there were 81 round, flat loaves of bread—a type of bread that is still sold in Italy today. They boxes filled with a dark, shiny powder tell us that women liked to wear eye-makeup.

Gisepppe has died, but his work continues. One fourth has not been uncovered yet. Scientists are still digging, still making discoveries that draw the tourists to Pompeii.

52. Why do large numbers of people come to Pompeii each year?
 A. To visit the volcano.
 B. To shop and eat there.
 C. To watch sports and plays.
 D. To see how Pompeitians lived.

53. Why had so many Pompeitians remained by volcanic Mount Vesuvius?
 A. The city nearby offered all kinds of fun.
 B. The area produced the finest wine in Italy.
 C. Few people expected the volcano to erupt again.
 D. The mountain was beautiful and covered with grass.

54. Why did the city uncovered look almost the same as it had

 Push-button English
 Very soon a computer will be able to teach you English. It will also be able to translate any language for you. It's just one more incredible result of the development of microprocessors—those tiny parts of a computer commonly known as "silicon chips". So give up going to classes and stop buying textbooks. In a couple of years you won't need the international language of English.

Already Texas Instruments in the United States are developing an electronic translation machine. Imagine a Spanish secretary, for example, who wants to type a letter from the boss to a businessman in Sweden. All he or she will do is this: first type the letter in Spanish. The letter will appear on a television screen. After a few seconds the translated letter will appear on another television screen in Stockholm in perfect Swedish. And that's not all. Soon a computer will be able to teach you English, if you really want to learn the language, you'll sit in front of a television screen and practise endless structures. The computer will tell you when you are correct and when you are wrong. It will even talk to you because the silicon chips can change electrical impulses (脉冲) into sounds. And clever programmers can predict the responses you, the learner, are likely to make. So think of it. You will be able to teach yourself at your own pace. You will waste very little time, and you can work at home. And if after all that, you still can't speak English you can always use the translating machine. In a few years, therefore, perhaps there will be no need for BBC Modern English—no more textbooks or teachers of English. Instead of buying an exciting new textbook, the computer will ask you to replace it with microprocessor one thousand nine hundred and eighty-four. Fast reliable and efficient language learning and translating facilities will be available to you. Think of that: no more tears or embarrassing moments. One little problem is that a computer can't laugh yet, but the scientists are working on it. Happy learning!

48. The title "Push-button English" suggests _____
 A. English can be taught and learned by using a computer
 B. a computer is an English-learning machine
 C. English can be learned by pushing a button
 D. English is not so difficult to learn

49. According to the writer, "You won't need the international language of English" because _____
 A. learning English will no longer be a difficult task
 B. textbooks are no longer necessary
 C. it's better to buy a computer than to go to classes
 D. the computer will be able to translate

50. If a Spanish secretary wants to translate a letter, all he or she has to do is _____
 A. type the letter in Spanish
 B. type the letter in Swedish
 C. type the letter in English
 D. type the letter in any language

 A. protect ourselves from unfamiliar environment
 B. develop a strange sense of self-protection
 C. get familiar with the new culture
 D. return to our own country

C
 There is no end of dangerous sports to try in Southern Africa—bungee jumping, sky-diving, water-ratting. But for a new rash, how about swimming face to face with a killer shark (鲨鱼)?
 The public seems interested in finding danger in this activity. Cape Town's aquarium (水族馆) has been filled with divers who want to swim with the sharks since it opened its tanks to paying visitors last month. Around 70 tourists aged between 12 and 40 have paid US $55 each to spend up to an hour with Maxine, Dee and Floyd, the aquarium's three sharks.

And conservationists say the project should help change the damage done to the shark's image by the popular movie "Jaws".
 "People will always pay money to be a bit daring," said Paul Loether, an aquarium diver. "Most people think every shark is dangerous, but they have got the wrong idea."
 Each visitor can swim with the sharks and other fish that share their tank, guarded by aquarium divers armed with a stick to keep off over-friendly sharks.

"This is part of a communication and education programme to show sharks are not as bad as every one makes out," said Tony Negre, operation manager at the aquarium, who stick to keep off over-friendly sharks.

Len Compagno, head of the South African shark research centre, agreed. "It's no joke to play around with big dog. In the same way, a three-metre-long shark could put a few holes in you," he said.

45. We may infer that in the movie "Jaws" _____
 A. sharks are hunted everywhere
 B. sharks kill other sea animals
 C. sharks are disappearing in the sea
 D. sharks are man eaters
46. What Len Compagno said really means that _____

三、阅读理解(共20小题;每小题2分,满分40分)
阅读下列短文,以每题所给的四个选项(A、B、C和D)中,选出最佳选项。

Jim Welford, aged 33, and Don Mee, aged 30, both from England, were keen on rowing boats. They made a plan to row across the Pacific Ocean from Japan to San Francisco. The name of their rowboat was "Crackers". It was about 7 metres long.

They set out from Japan on May 17, 2001. They had rowed nearly 5,500 miles when their boat was hit by a fishing ship on September 17, 2001. Luckily they both escaped unharmed, but their boat was badly damaged and they had to abandon their journey.

In a radio interview, Don expressed his disappointment and explained how the accident took place.

"A fishing ship came towards us with nobody on the bridge and ran us down. It all happened so quickly. I managed to dive into the water. Jim felt it would be safer to stay on board the boat. He was trapped inside as the boat was driven under the water. Finally some people appeared on the ship and saw me in the water. I shouted at them to stop the ship and get Jim out. When the ship stopped, I eventually saw Jim, and I was very, very relieved that we couldn't reach San Francisco. But we're alive. That above everything is the most important."

36. How long had Jim and Don been at sea when their boat was hit by a fishing boat?
A. One month. B. Two months.
C. Three months. D. Four months.

37. According to Don, the main reason for the accident was that _____.
A. Jim and Don were too careless
B. nobody on the fishing ship saw them
C. the speed of the fishing ship was too fast
D. their rowboat was not strong enough

38. Don said that the most important thing in the accident was _____.
A. both of them survived
B. they enjoyed this journey
C. their rowboat was not damaged
D. they failed to reach San Francisco

B

You would like to take good photographs of real-life situations but you have few ideas for pictures. I suggest you look around you. The everyday world is full of scenes being played by an ever-changing group of actors. You probably passed a dozen picture situations without noticing on your way to work this morning.

The realistic approach to photography has been perfected in the past by such masters as Henri Cartier-Bresson and Bill Brandt. But while you can learn a great deal from looking at the work of others, any success you can hope to achieve in this field has to come from developing an individual approach.

The main requirement for any photographer has little to do with technical matters. You must develop an awareness of the world around you and the people who live in it, and you should learn to notice when a situation may develop to a point where you will be able to take a good picture. Those who have reached this happy state will be prepared when that moment comes, and will simply raise their camera quickly and shoot. Others who are not so aware will be struggling with camera cases and lens(镜头) caps.

Film manufacturers(制品) must be delighted at the thought of the inexperienced photographer setting out in search of the right situation and the right moment. Many miles of costly material have passed through thousands of cameras as this endless search continues. Although a lot of this waste must be put down to inexperience, you'll find that even the professionals have to use a lot of film when they are out shooting.

Not every shot is going to be a winner. If you look at the work of even the best photographers, you'll notice dozens of pictures have had to be taken only because they lead up to the successful shot of a situation that the photographer has obviously been observing through the lens. You may find that you have taken one or two pictures after the right moment has passed as well. There is seldom more than one shot which stands out. There is just one point where it all comes together, and you often have to waste film to catch that precious moment.

39. According to the passage, one can become a better real-life photographer by _____.
A. watching other photographers at work
B. learning about famous photographers
C. just taking a great many photographs
D. developing skills and ideas for himself

40. The writer thinks that a photographer is required to _____.
A. go out and search for unusual situations
B. be highly skilled in camera techniques
C. be able to tell when a good situation might come
D. have a camera which is easy and quick to use

41. Most likely, to catch the right moment, one must _____.
A. take pictures without too much preparation
B. take a whole series of similar pictures
C. take great care to set up the situation
D. take one picture just at the right moment

failed. Minutes later, a violent explosion blew the top off the reactor and blasted a huge cloud of radioactive gas high into the atmosphere. Two people were killed immediately. Hundreds received massive radiation overdoses (过量). And more than 25,000 had to be evacuated (撤离) from their homes.
 Days later, the radioactive cloud had spread as far as Scotland. Its radiation was weak, but all over Europe radioactive rain was falling. In some areas people were advised not to eat fresh vegetables, or drink fresh milk, and the sale of meat was forbidden.
 The accident at Chernobyl was the world's worst nuclear accident. In Britain, it convinced many people that all nuclear power stations should be shut down for good. But the Central Electricity Generating Board didn't agree. They claimed that: ★ Similar disasters could not happen in Britain because of safer designs.
 ★ Fewer deaths are caused by using nuclear fuel than by mining for coal or drilling for oil and gas.
 ★ Nuclear accidents are rare compared with other types of accidents—such as air crashes, fires or dam collapses.
 ★ More nuclear power stations are essential because the world's supplies of oil, coal and natural gas are running out.
 In 1957 in Cumbria (Britain) a nuclear reactor overheated and caught fire. No one was killed but fourteen workers received radiation overdoses. Small amounts of gas and dust were released over the local countryside.
 An official report said the accident was nearly a full-scale disaster. The Nuclear Authority wanted the report published but the Prime Minister at the time refused. He thought that it would make people less confident in Britain's nuclear industry. Thirty years later, the cabinet records of 1957 were released. Only then did the public discover what had really happened in Cumbria.
 51. One result of the Chernobyl nuclear disaster was that _____
 A. 25,000 people were killed
 B. fresh foods were polluted by radioactive materials
 C. people in Scotland were evacuated from their homes
 D. hundreds of houses in Chernobyl were destroyed

52. According to the passage, nuclear accidents _____
 A. may happen in any country that has nuclear power stations
 B. are always kept secret from the public
 C. can only happen in underdeveloped countries
 D. are most unlikely to cause death

53. The British Government refused to publish the report on the Cumbria accident because _____
 A. Britain's supplies of oil, coal and gas are running out
 B. it takes thirty years for the effects of radiation to appear
 C. fewer people died in that accident than in other types of accidents
 D. it was concerned that the British people would doubt their

up. He is still very interested in his razor (远见) and he travels the globe, from Beijing to London, making quick stops in cities to sell to new software products of his company.
 The central vision of Bill Gates is the "information highway". This is a network of computers that will link every home, office and shopping mall in the future. This computer network system will have an effect on business, shopping and education. Bill Gates says that the main function of this new technology will be in communication. It will be a way to find people with common interests and to share opinions with them.
 But is this communication by computer along the "information highway" really a good thing? Won't we be sitting at home, only "socializing" with our computer, paying big companies money so that we can receive information that some large communication corporation somewhere has divided and that is "acceptable" for us to read? No, says Bill Gates, who thinks that the phrase "information highway" is a terrible phrase. It makes people think that we are all going down the same road, he says. In fact, the computer network will let us choose our own intellectual direction. It will give us freedom. It will also bring good to society, because it will allow for the spread of education. When more and more people receive education, the gap between the rich and the poor will narrow.
 In the meantime, however, the gap between the rich and the poor is still there. To be added to this now is the gap between those with computers and those without.
 47. The underlined word "mission" in this passage means _____

Factoring stores text, Bush declares 'national tragedy'
The worst attack on US soil since Pearl Harbor tore George W. Bush from what should have been a routine education event Tuesday and threw him into the direct crisis of his young presidency.

The US leader was reading to schoolchildren at an elementary school when his chief of staff, Andrew Card, interrupted him and whispered into his ear. The president's face clouded but he said nothing.

"We'll talk about it later," he told reporters as he walked out of Sandra Kay Daniels' second-grade class, where he also listened to 18 smiling young pupils go through routine reading and pronunciation drills.

Card's intervention came after a plane slammed into one of New York's twin World Trade Center towers, but before a second plane crashed into the other landmark office building.

The president spoke out after the second incident, aborting another education-themed event and declaring "a national tragedy" and vowing and all-out hunt for the authors of what he called "an apparent terrorist attack."

Bush said "he had ordered that the full resources of the federal government go to help the victims and their families and to conduct a full-scale investigation on hunt down and to find those folks that committed this act. Terrorism against our nation will not stand."

"Today we've had a national tragedy. Two airplanes have crashed into the World Trade Center in an apparent terrorist attack on our country. I have spoken to the Vice President, to the Governor of New York, to the Director of the FBI," he said.

36. When did Bush definitely learn the attack news from his chief of staff, Andrew Card?
A. Soon after the first plane crashed into one of New York's twin World Trade Center towers.
B. In the middle of two attacks.
C. Just after another plane crashed into the other landmark office building.
D. On his journey to his office.

37. In "aborting another education-themed event", the word "aborting" share the same meaning with _____.
A. putting off B. delaying C. postponing D. stopping
38. Which of the following steps Bush administration will take is not true?
A. To find out the incident-maker.
B. To help the victims and their families.
C. To declare the attack day as a national tragedy.
D. To put off the education-themed event.

Whether the hair is long or short, it must be regularly brushed and regularly washed. For greasy hair, especially if the owner lives in a town, it may be necessary to wash the head every four to five days. Those with a dry hair can usually go a little longer, but this is a matter of the individual to decide.
If a woman is not able to go to hairdressers very often, it is important that she chooses a style she can easily manage for herself, and this nearly always means that the first cut must be very standard. The same applies to permanent waving. Ideally this should be carried out three or four times a year, so that the hair never gets out of hand.
One thing should be remembered though, that is, whatever you apply to the head can have some effect upon the skin and therefore anything strong should be used with care. Or you may use milder products. As for style, this must be studied according to what is the latest fashion and also suit the individual at different times of her life.
Young people who have spots or skin troubles on their faces, should take particular care to ensure that the hair is both clean and does not come into contact with the affected piece of skin. Hair is very difficult to keep completely clean and therefore anyone running their hands through their hair and afterwards touching their face, or letting their hair fall over their hair, might spread infection from one place to another. Good hair does a lot to the effect of a face, so if you want to look charming, please start with your hair.
39. According to the text, the most basic thing to do in hair care is _____.
A. to go to hairdressers very often
B. to choose better milder products for the hair
C. to wash and brush the hair regularly
D. to keep the hair away from the skin trouble
40. The best hair style can be achieved by _____.
A. having the hair done three or four times a year

- not given equal opportunities in education or employment.
- Marian Anderson (1897 - 1993) was an African American woman who gained fame as a concert singer in this climate of racism. She was born in Philadelphia and sang in church choirs during her childhood. When she applied for admission to a local music school in 1917, she was turned down because she was black. Unable to attend music school, she began her career as a singer for church gatherings. In 1929, she went to Europe to study voice and spent several years performing there. Her voice was widely praised throughout Europe. Then she returned to the US in 1935 and became a top concert singer after performing at Town Hall in New York City.
- Racism again affected Anderson in 1939. When it was arranged for her to sing at Constitution Hall in Washington, DC, the daughters of the American Revolution opposed it because of her color. She sang instead at the Lincoln Memorial for over 75000 people. In 1995, Anderson became the first black soloist to sing with the Metropolitan Opera of New York City. The famous conductor Toscanini praised her voice as "heard only once in a hundred years." She was a US delegate to the United Nations in 1958 and won the UN peace prize in 1977. Anderson eventually triumphed over racism.

- CyberKids Design mainly serves North America. But since Peris visited China, he would try to find a way to cater for(迎合) China's Shanghai market as well.
- "China is growing and in the next 10 to 20 years it will be among the top countries for business. Now China's become a member of the WTO, Shanghai will have more business opportunities," said the young businessman.
- "At the moment it is hard to compete with local companies in Shanghai because of the cost, especially of hardware."
 "At first my age will be the largest issue, but in the end that won't be important," he added. "Once I get more and more clients(客户), we will build a reputation(信誉) and people will take me more seriously."
- Peris answers questions quickly and is very articulate(表达能力强的) for his age. He said he had come to know Shanghai pretty well through TV programmes shown on CNN before his trip.
- He added, "When I was about five, my father gave me my own computer and started teaching me a few things about how to use it. I have not seen many parents do that for their children."

- There is an old saying that "in this world nothing is certain but death and taxes." Many people today would agree with this statement. Even the people who lived more than four thousand years ago in ancient Egypt might agree!
- Egyptian tomb paintings depict scenes from daily life. In a tomb dating back to about 2400 BC, scenes show tax collectors at work, including handing out punishment for failure to pay taxes.
- When the ancient Romans began to rule Egypt in 300 BC, taxation grew worse. The Romans kept careful records of very future and they recorded all births, making sure that no taxpayer escaped. The Romans taxed everything they could think of—land, crops, goods, a tax was paid on every animal a person owned. People paid taxes to work at a trade or craft. Males between the ages of fourteen and sixty paid a tax just for being male. So when you hear people complain about taxes today, you can tell them that they're lucky they didn't live in ancient times.

三、阅读理解(共20小题;每小题2分,满分40分)

阅读下列短文,从每题所给的四个选项(A、B、C和D)中,选出最佳选项。

A
In the presence of your teacher's teacher you failed in respect to your mother! Let this never happen again, my Enrico, never again! Your rude word pierced my heart like a point of steel, I thought of your mother when years ago, she bent the whole of one night over your little bed, watching your breathings, weeping in deep sorrow, and with her teeth clattering with terror, because she thought that she had lost you and I feared that she would lose her reason. And at this thought I felt a sentiment of horror at you. You, to offend your mother! Listen, Enrico. Keep this thought well in your mind. You are sure to experience many terrible days in the course of your life; the most terrible will be that on which you lose your mother. How you will then recall every kindness that you have caused her, and with what remorse (懊悔) you will pay for all, unhappy being! Hope for no peace in your life, if you have made your mother sad.

- Oh, Enrico, beware! Never again let a harsh word issue from your lips, for the being who gave you life. And if one should ever escape, let it not be the fear of your father, go to your mother and say sorry to her. I love you, my son, but I would rather see you dead than ungrateful to your mother.

Lisa is a good example of a student in shock. She is an attractive, intelligent twenty-year-old college junior at a state university. She was a straight-A student in high school and a member of the basketball and softball teams there. Now, only three years later, Lisa is miserable. She has changed her major four times and is forced to hold down two part-time jobs in order to pay her tuition(学费). She suffers from sleeping and eating disorders and has no close friends. Sometimes she bursts out crying for no apparent(明显的) reason.

What is happening to Lisa happens to millions of college students each year. As a result, roughly one-quarter of the student population at any time will suffer from symptoms(症状) of depression (low spirits). Of that group, almost half will experience depression extremely enough to call for professional help. But many put that idea aside, because they don't want people to think there's something wrong with them.

There are three reasons. Today's college students are suffering more than in earlier generations. First problem is a weakening family support structure. Today, with high divorce (离婚) rates and many parents experiencing their own psychological difficulties, the traditional family is not always available for guidance and support.

Another problem is financial pressure. In the last decade tuition costs have skyrocketed up about sixty-six percent at public colleges and ninety percent at private schools. At the same time there has been a cutback in federal aid to students. College loans are now much harder to obtain. As a result, most students must work at least part-time.

A final cause of student shock is the large selection of majors available. Because of the importance and difficulty of choosing a major, college can prove to be a time of great indecision. Many students change majors. As a result, it is becoming commonplace to take five or six years to get a degree. It can be depressing to students to be faced with the added tuition costs.

47. What is the subject discussed in the text?

- A. Going to college is a depressing experience for many students.
- B. Lisa has not enjoyed college because her life has been filled with stress.
- C. Stress-related problems are increasing on college campuses.
- D. Colleges should increase their advising services.

48. Which of the following sentences best expresses the main idea of paragraph 1?

- A. Lisa is experiencing difficult emotional problems
  - B. Lisa can not decide on a major
  - C. Lisa feels she has lost all her good friends
  - D. Lisa cries frequently
49. The author implies that some students who suffer from extreme depression _____.

- A. should drop out of college
  - B. have never done well in school
  - C. can always handle it on their own
  - D. are unwilling to get professional help
50. The author supports his point that college life has become more difficult for students with _____.
- A. quotations(引语) from experts
  - B. statistics(统计数字) and reasons
  - C. information taken from a survey of college dropouts
  - D. personal experiences

The British policeman has several nicknames(绰号), but the most frequently (经常地) used are "copper" and "kobby". The first name comes from the verb "cop" meaning "to take" or "capture", and the second comes from the first name of Sir Robert Peel, a 19th century politician (政治家), who was the founder of the police force. An early nickname for the policeman was "peeler", but this name has died out.

Visitors to England seem, nearly always, to be very impressed by the English police. In fact, it has become a joke that visitors to Britain, when asked for their views of the country, will always say, at some point or other, "I think your policemen are wonderful."

Well, the British bobby may not always be wonderful but he is usually a very friendly and helpful character.

A music-hall song of some years ago was called, "If you want to know the time, ask a policeman." Nowadays, most people own watches but they still seem to find plenty of other questions to ask the policeman. In London, the policeman spends so much of their time directing visitors about city that one wonders how they ever find time to do anything else!

51. The British policeman has _____ nicknames mentioned in the passage.

- A. several
  - B. two
  - C. three
  - D. many
52. One of the nicknames for the policeman, "peeler" _____.
- A. is most frequently used
  - B. is not used any more
  - C. was sir Robert Peel's
  - D. is still used as much as "kobby"

53. The main idea of the second paragraph is that _____.

- A. visitors to England think the British policemen are wonderful
- B. the English policeman have become a joke to the visitors
- C. visitors to Britain are very grateful to the policeman for their great help
- D. the British policeman tell the visitors about the views of their country

54. "If you want to know the time, ask a policeman." This means _____.

- A. the British policeman likes to tell the time to the visitors
- B. most people's watches don't go well

C. the British policeman knows the correct time

- D. the policemen are friendly and helpful
55. From the whole passage, we know that _____.
- A. the British policemen spend a lot of time directing visitors in London
  - B. the British policemen's nicknames are not used very often
  - C. the British policeman are always wonderful
  - D. the British policemen's nicknames are not used any more

Mr Luk: Now tell me something about yourself and why you applied (申请) for this job.
David: I left school three months ago. My results were fairly good but I have to support my family now. My father has recently stopped working because he is too old. My parents need the money to educate my younger brother and sister.

Mr Luk: I see. Have you had any experience already?
David: I worked in a radio factory for two months. (David pauses.)
Mr Luk: That's a very short time, isn't it?
David: Oh, yes. The factory wanted extra people for their busy season.

Mr Luk: I understand. Why do you want to do this job?
David: My wish is to become a skilled technician(技术员).
Mr Luk: You must understand that this is not easy work and the hours are long. You may have to do shift work(轮班) and work beyond the usual time, too. You would start from the very beginning.
David: Will I be trained here?
Mr Luk: Partly. If you pass our tests, you will be able to go to technical school classes twice a week. The tests are held after you have been here for two months. Then we can check if you are suitable for the job.

David: That's fine. I'll make sure that I pass.
Mr Luk: All right. I'll give you a chance. My secretary will tell you whom to see when you start. You can start work on the first of next month. Is that all right?
David: Yes, and thank you very much indeed.

B
In the Caucasus (高加索) region of the Soviet Union, nearly 50 out of every 100000 people live to celebrate their 100th birthday, and many don't stop at 100! By comparison, in American only 3 people out of 10000 reach 100. But these Soviet old people aren't alone. The Pakistani Hunzas, who live in the Himalaya Mountains and the Ulluchabans of the Andes Mountains in Ecuador, seem to share the secret of long life, too. These peoples remain healthy in body and spirit despite the passage of time. While many elderly persons in industrial societies become weak and ill in their 60s and 70s, Some great-grandchildren 110 to 140, work in the fields beside their great-grandparents. Even the idea of aging is foreign to them, when asked, "at what age does youth end?" Most of these old people had no answer. Several replied, "well, perhaps at 80", the very youngest estimate was age 60.

What accounts for this ability to survive to such old age, and to survive so well? First of all, hard physical work is a way of life for all these long-lived people. They begin their long days of physical labor as children and never seem to stop.

All these people get healthful rewards from the environment in which they work. They all come from mountains regions. This redoxxygen environment makes the heart and blood vessel system stronger.

Another factor that may contribute to the good health of these people is their isolation. To a great extent, they are separated from the pressures and worries of industrial society. Inherited factors also play some roles.

41. Why does the writer mention some long-lived people in the list paragraph?
A. To surprise his readers
B. To introduce the subject of the article
C. To tell you the difference between people in the Soviet Union and America
D. To tell you why Americans don't live as long as other people

42. Who does the underlined word "they" refer to in Paragraph 2?
A. Old people in the Soviet Union
B. The Pakistani Hunzas
C. All of the long-lived people
D. Some Georgians

43. From the writer's viewpoint, industrial society _____.
A. is highly developed and beneficial to people.
B. is a great advance in human history.
C. is full of pressures and therefore bad for people's health.
D. should be replaced by isolated environment because it is bad for people's health.

44. Which of the following is true according to the article?
A. It is beneficial for people to be isolated
B. People should learn to relax themselves from high pressures of life in industrial society
C. The more hard physical work you do, the more healthy

 The old idea that child prodigies (神童) "burn themselves" or "overtax their brains" in the early years, and therefore are prey to failure and (at worst) mental illness is just a myth. As a matter of fact, the outstanding thing that happens to bright children is that they are very likely to grow into bright adults.

To find this out, 1,500 gifted persons were followed up to their or fifty years with these results:
 On adult intelligence tests, they scored as high as they did as children. They were, as a group, in good health, physically and mentally. Eighty-four percent of their group were married and seemed content with their life.
 About 70 percent had graduated from colleges, though only 30 percent had graduated with honors. A few had even flunked out (退学), but nearly half of these had returned to graduate.

Of the men, 80 percent were in one of the professions or in business, managers or semi-professional jobs. The women who had remained single had offices, businesses, or professional occupations (职业).
 The group had published 90 books and 1,500 articles in scientific, scholarly, and literary magazines and had collected more than 100 patents (专利权).

In a material way (专指收入), they did badly. Average income was considerably higher among the gifted people, especially the men, than for the country as a whole, despite their comparative youth when last surveyed.

In fact, far from being strange, maladjusted (难以适应的) people lacked in an ivory tower, most of the gifted were turning their early promises into practical reality.

52. The main idea of the passage is _____
 A. how many gifted children turned successful when they grow up
 B. that bright children were unlikely to be physically and mentally healthy
 C. that gifted children were most likely to become bright grown-ups
 D. that when the bright children grew up, they would become ordinary

53. From the passage, we can conclude that _____
 A. most of the gifted children became white collars when they grew up
 B. half of the gifted followed up graduated from colleges
 C. each of the talented published at least one article
 D. bright men got higher income than bright women

54. Which of the following is mentioned in the passage?
 A. The gifted could not be fit for their social positions.
 B. Most of the bright and successful women kept single.

47. These four letters mainly talked about _____
 A. the agreement and disagreement with the sentence given to Dennis
 B. the attitude the newspaper took towards Dennis Wilson's case
 C. how to encourage the youth to do a good deed
 D. how to make a newspaper educate a trouble maker

 For most of us, body weight goes up with age - an average of one pound a year after 25, according to the American Medical Association. What's more, added weight is likely to be composed primarily of fat, not muscle. The reasons are as follows.

1) As we age, most of us become less active, and the body's basal metabolism (基础代谢) rate slows a little each year. So our food energy requirements the number of calories needed to maintain weight-decrease. For example, a man might require 2,500 calories a day at age 20, 2,000 at 35 and only 800 at 45.

2) Starting in our 20s, the proportion of muscle mass to body fat tends to decline. The body of an average 20-year-old woman is 26.5 percent fat. By 35, it is 33 percent, at 50, 42 percent.

3) As we grow older, we shrink not from side to side, unfortunately, but from top to bottom. In our mid-30s, we begin to lose more bone than we make. One result: less height to hang our weight on, which makes us look thicker than we once did.

4) Exercising becomes harder with age. Our muscles can begin to lose strength and elasticity (弹性) as early as age 20. By 40, heart and lung power has begun to drop, and the body becomes more likely to be injured.

48. What is the passage about?
 A. The reason why old people usually weigh more than they once did.
 B. The reason why added weight is likely to be composed primarily of fat, not muscle.
 C. The reason why we become less active when we age.
 D. The reason why our body weight goes up one pound a year after 25.

49. What does the writer mean by "As we grow older, we shrink"?
 A. As we grow older, we become shorter.
 B. As we grow older, we become thinner.
 C. As we grow older, we become more depressed.
 D. As we grow older, we become more active.

50. Why does exercising become harder with age?
 A. Our muscles are older and weaker.
 B. The possibility of injury increases.
 C. Heart and lung don't work as well as before.
 D. All of the above.

51. Which of the following is true according to the passage?
 A. The body weight increases as one grows older.
 B. The basal metabolism rate of an active person is always

- you will be _____
 D. The more remote areas you live in, the more healthy you will be

C
 Letter 1
 Dear Madam,
 I write to express my disgust (厌恶) at the rather weak-minded attitude taken by your newspaper towards the sentence given to a certain Dennis Wilson. We expect the press to uphold (维护) the law, not to undermine it. I do not know the young man, but I believe he has been in trouble more than once before. Perhaps this will teach him a lesson he won't forget.

Letter 2
 Dear Editor,
 I was encouraged by the attitude taken by your newspaper on the matter of young Dennis Wilson. Far from being the danger that some people say he is, Dennis is a responsible, though high-spirited youth who is well known in the neighborhood. As he said to the judge, he was only trying to brighten up the neighborhood with a mural (壁画). I must say that I enjoy looking at the mural as I walk to work in the morning.

Letter 3
 To the Editor:
 I was disappointed at the harsh and unfair reactions of much of the community in the case of Dennis Wilson. The boy is creative and gifted, and the work of art which he has produced is a major improvement to what was an ugly wall. To call it graffiti is unreasonable. It might look a little strange to those people who do not appreciate modern art, but surely even they would rather look at a colorful wall than a dirty concrete one. I believe that the judge in this case made a mistake, and I would like to take this opportunity of congratulating you for pointing this out.

Letter 4
 I wish to cancel my subscription (订费) to your newspaper. The attitude you took to the Wilson case has totally destroyed your credibility (信誉) as far as I am concerned. Your role is to report the fact objectively, not to express opinions. As far as I am concerned, that boy got off too lightly. He's a menace to himself and all of those around him.

45. It can be inferred that _____
 A. the readers wrote the letters to please the editor
 B. all the four people felt sorry for Dennis Wilson
 C. what Dennis Wilson had done attracted the public attention
 D. a newspaper should express its opinion clearly on any matter

46. The people were against Dennis Wilson because _____
 A. they thought the boy had nothing to do with them
 B. they expected the boy to be punished for a long time
 C. they didn't like his paintings on the wall
 D. they thought Dennis was not a good boy

阅读下面短文, 从每题所给的四个选项 (A、B、C 和 D) 中, 选出最佳选项。

A
July 6th was a bad day for Mr. Arthur Johnson. In the morning, he set off from his home in Santa Barbara, California. It was the start of his summer holidays and he decided to visit friends at Las Vegas, then he hoped to go fishing in Lake Mead, 40km, from Las Vegas.
Johnson's troubles started while he was driving happily across the Mojave Desert. His car went wrong and he tried to repair it. Then, to make matters worse, his attempts to start the car drained (耗尽) the battery (电池) and left it useless. After Johnson had waited an hour in the hot sun, a Canadian driver, John Williams, stopped and tried to help him. When both men failed, Williams promised to telephone a workshop to ask it to send a truck to pull the car away and repair its fuel pump (汽油泵).
Johnson left the keys in his car and sat in the shade of a large tree. Soon he fell asleep. While he was sleeping, a repair truck arrived from San Pedro (the nearest town) and pulled his car away. Later on, Johnson woke up and thought that somebody had stolen his car. He started to walk back towards San Pedro but a police car stopped him to find out why he was walking in the desert.

Johnson looked like a man wanted (通缉的) in Los Angeles for robbery, so the police detained (拘留) him at San Pedro for the night. The next day, Johnson telephoned his friends in Los Angeles. They drove to San Pedro and made the police believe that Johnson was a harmless salesman, so they set him free.

36. Johnson's car went wrong _____.
A. after he had passed San Pedro
B. before he left Santa Barbara
C. when he was getting near the Mojave Desert
D. not far from Los Angeles

37. Which way did Williams go when he left Johnson?
A. He drove on to Las Vegas
B. He went back to Los Angeles
C. Perhaps he went to San Pedro

- He continued his journey to Canada.
38. How did Williams help Johnson?
A. He persuaded the police to set him free
B. He failed to repair his car
C. He drove Johnson into San Pedro
D. He arranged to have his car repaired
- Which is the best title of this passage?
A. A Bad Day for Arthur Johnson
B. An Interesting Car
C. A Pleasant Trip in the Desert
D. A Well-planned Journey

B
Some parents have no freedom. Their children say, "Jump," and they jump. They say, "The kids are driving us crazy." Yet they do nothing about it. They let their children give them orders. They do everything for their children. They do things that the children could easily do for themselves.

These parents often give in to their children. Then they are angry and yell at their children. They feel bad and say, "I'm sorry." They beg the children to act better. They become their children's slaves.
Some parents think that being a slave is being a good parent. They may even believe that parents should be unhappy. One group of parents does not agree. They believe that parents have certain rights. These rights are given here:
1. Parents can say no.
2. Parents can say "Because I said so."
3. Parents can be angry.
4. Parents can let children cry sometimes.
5. Parents can punish children.
6. Parents can beat their children.
7. Parents can be selfish at times.
8. Parents can be alone when they need to be.
9. Parents can be unfair at times.
10. Parents can change their minds.
11. Parents can make mistakes.
12. Parents can raise their children in their own way.

Parents' power is good for parents. It is also good for children. It makes them to be good parents some day.

40. Who are "they" in the sentence (in paragraph 1) "Yet they do nothing about it"?
A. The children
B. The parents
C. The writer
D. Anyone

41. How are some parents like slaves to their children?
A. They beg their children to act better.
B. They yell at their children.
C. They do everything for their children.
D. Both A and C.

42. Why is parents' power good for children?
A. It will help them learn to be good children and good parents in the future.
B. It will help them how to be good parents some day.
C. It makes them feel love and care for their parents.
D. It makes them learn to obey their parents.

43. In the author's opinion, _____
 A. being good parents is being slaves
 B. parents should have their own way to raise their children
 C. it's wrong for the children to drive their parents crazy
 D. not all parents have learned how to be good ones

C
 CBC is a famous air company which has over twenty planes carrying passengers and goods, flying along 12 fixed lines all over the world. Its service is very good but some passengers are not satisfied with it and that is why in 1998 and 1999 the company received letters of complaints from consumers or passengers who pointed out over a dozen kinds of problems which are divided into groups in the following table. This division is called Category. Problems that appear when the plane is flying are Flight problems. Those about passengers' things carried by the plane are baggage problems. Customer service refers to service work which passengers are not satisfied with. Oversales of seats are about the fact that more seats are sold and as a result the plane is too crowded to be safe. Refund problems appear when passengers fail to receive the money paid to them because of what they have lost. Fares are problems about the price of tickets. Reservations are problems that appear when passengers could not get the tickets they have already booked. Tours are problems about the passengers' travelling by air or hotel problems. Advertising is what the travellers think about advertisement on the plane. Credit problems are about the use of credit cards.

 OPEC Decides Not to Increase Production
 Vienna in spite of Iraq's decision to stop oil deliveries, the 11-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) will not increase production to make up the shortfall, ministers decided Tuesday in Vienna.
 The 11 oil ministers decided to meet again on July 3 to discuss the effects of the Iraq temporary stop. The organization's president, Chakib Khelil of Algeria, said after the meeting that stocks were high and prices were stable, so quota (配额) increases were not necessary.
 The E. U. Commission has expressed concern about Iraq's output stop. A speaker said OPEC had to take all possible measures to keep or lower the oil price.
 Saudi Arabia's Oil Minister Ali Al-Nuaimi had earlier said there would not be any shortage of oil in the market. The organization had already taken steps to fill the gap, he said. OPEC Secretary General Ali Rodriguez added that the period of the Iraq stop to exports was not known, so other exporters were not going to lift quotas yet. If the market was destabilized (动摇了), a suitable response could be made.
 Iraq on Monday stop shipments of crude oil to protest against the U. N. Security Council's decision to extend the oil-for-food programme by only a month, instead of the normal six-month renewal (延期).
 Just before the Vienna meetings, oil prices had gone up, with a barrel of OPEC crude selling for 27.05 dollars, up from 26.81 dollars last Friday. North sea oil was at 29.26 dollars Monday evening.
 OPEC wants the oil price to stay within a margin of 22 to 28 dollars and achieved that with cuts in January and March that reduced 2.5 million barrels per day off quotas.
 HOME PAGE (CHINESE) June 6, 2001
 47. Iraq made the decision to stop oil deliveries because _____
 A. oil price is too low in the international market

 C. many oil wells were destroyed during the war in the late 1980s
 D. it couldn't get enough money to develop its economy

48. The attitude of the E. U. Commission towards Iraq's output stop is _____
 A. active B. concerned C. cold D. surprising
 49. "The organization" here refers to _____
 A. OPEC B. the E. U. Commission C. the U. N. Security Council D. WTO
 50. The main idea of the passage is _____

A. the oil prices in the world were stable though Iraq has stopped oil deliveries
 B. OPEC wants the oil price to stay within a margin of 22 to 28 dollars
 C. OPEC will not increase oil production to make up the shortfall that caused by Iraq
 D. oil is connected with people's daily life

51. The 11 oil ministers decided to meet on July 3 so that _____
 A. they can persuade Iraq to continue oil production
 B. they can have a discussion about the effects of Iraq's temporary oil stop
 C. they can make a decision to increase oil production
 D. they can have a conversation with the U. N. Security Council

 A warm, dusty wind was blowing over from the south. Where it stopped, it left a thin layer of fine African sand. Clive stood with Dick, a racing driver, in the ship, watching the cars being taken from the land. Some of the cars were already in the ship.
 "I hope this wind will have changed by the time we get there," the driver said, staring at the sky. "These conditions wouldn't be good for racing."
 "Don't worry," Clive said with a smile. "It'll hardly trouble us, since Argentina (阿根廷) is about 7,000 miles away."
 Surprise came over the driver's face. "Is that so? We should leave it behind then, shouldn't we?"
 They talked for a while about the country. Clive was going there on business. But Dick was to take part in a motor-race. It was his first event outside Europe. He mentioned the date of the race—December 30, and added, "I've never raced on cold winter before."
 Dick said he was an engineer, and Clive thought he must have had a good education. However, something seemed to have gone wrong or was different these days. The young man had no map in his mind. He had plans to race in the South Africa and in Japan. To him, they were places on the earth, and probably that was all. Clive was interested because the man seemed cheerfully unconscious (未发觉的) of his lack of knowledge. What was worse, he even thought everyone else was just as foolish.
 Dust blew into their faces, to the young man, it might have been the same as a wind from China. Were there many people, he wondered, who did not know where they were going, or even where they were?
 52. Clive and Dick were on the ship because they _____
 A. were leaving for South America
 B. wanted to see a European motor-race
 C. tried to stay away from a dust storm
 D. had gone there to get the motor-cars

53. Clive was puzzled when driver spoke about the weather conditions because _____
 A. the weather didn't look like changing
 B. the driver couldn't race that day
 C. the driver thought conditions would be the same in Argentina

D. the long distance to South America had surprised the man
 54. _____ made Clive try to find out more of the driver.
 A. It was his interest in people with exciting jobs that
 B. The man's idea that the race would be run in winter
 C. His wish to make a friend during a long trip
 D. His wish to make the young man less worried

55. What seemed to have gone wrong was that _____
 A. an engineer should waste time racing
 B. people made long journeys without any maps
 C. the young man was on the wrong ship for Africa
 D. the young man's education was far from perfect

三、阅读理解(共20小题;每小题2分,满分40分)
阅读下列短文,以每题所给的四个选项(A、B、C和D)中,选出最佳选项。

Einstein was the greatest scientist of his age. But he was almost as strange as his Theory of Relativity (相对论).

Once, while riding a street car in Berlin, he told the conductor that he hadn't given him the right change. The conductor counted the change again and found it to be correct, so he handed it back to Einstein, saying, "The trouble with you is, you don't know your figures."

Einstein said that there were only two people living who understood his Theory of Relativity, although a good many books had been written to explain it.

He himself explained relativity in this very simple way: When you sit with a pretty girl for an hour, it seems like a minute; but when you sit on a hot stove (烧炉) for a minute, it seems like an hour.

He had nothing but contempt (轻视) for the things most people set their hearts on—for fame and money. He didn't want money or praise. He made his own happiness out of such simple things as his work and playing the violin and sailing his boat. Einstein's violin brought him more joy than anything else in life.

He led a very simple sort of life, went around in old clothes that needed pressing, seldom wore a hat. He shaved (刮胡子) with the same soap that he used for his bath. The man who was trying to solve the most difficult problems of the universe said that using two kinds of soap made his life completely too complicated (复杂的).

36. From this passage we know Einstein was _____.
A. the greatest scientist of his age B. a strange man
C. a simple but noble man D. all of the above

37. From the 2nd paragraph we know _____.
A. Einstein didn't care about money at all
B. Einstein didn't know his figures
C. Einstein met with a trouble in figures
D. Einstein didn't get along well with the conductor

38. In this passage Einstein took an example to explain _____.
A. the relationship between a boy and a girl
B. the relationship between a man and a thing
C. relativity
D. time

39. "... using two kinds of soap made Einstein's life completely too complicated" suggests that _____.
A. Einstein wanted to live a simple life

- B. Einstein was a man of humor
- C. Einstein didn't listen to others
- D. Einstein has his own freedom of choice

Last summer I went through a training program and became literary volunteer (扫盲志愿者). The training I received, though excellent, did not tell me how it was to work with a real student, however. When I began to discover what other people's lives were like because they could not read, I realized the true importance of reading.

My first student Marie was a 44-year-old single mother of three. In the first lesson, I found out she walked two miles to the nearest supermarket twice a week because she didn't know which bus to take. When I told her I would get her a bus schedule (时刻表), she told me it would help because she could not read it. She said she also had difficulty once she got to the supermarket because she couldn't always remember what she needed. Since she did not know words, she could not write out a shopping list. Also, she could only recognize items by sight, so if the product had a different label (标签), she would not recognize it as the product she wanted.

As we worked together, learning how to read built Marie's self-confidence (自信心), which encouraged her to continue in her studies. She began to make rapid progress and was even able to take the bus to the supermarket. After this successful trip, she reported how self-confident she felt. At the end of the program, she began helping her youngest son, Tony, a shy first grader, with his reading. She sat with him before he went to sleep and together they would read bedtime stories. When his eyes became wide with excitement as she read, pride was written all over her face, and she began to see how her own hard work in learning to read paid off. As she described this experience, I was proud of myself as well. I found that helping Marie to build her self-confidence was more rewarding than anything I had ever done before.

As a literary volunteer, I learned a great deal about teaching and helping others. In fact, I may have learned more from the experience than Marie did.

40. What did the author do last summer?
A. She worked in the supermarket.
B. She helped someone to learn to read.
C. She gave single mothers the help they needed.
D. She went to a training program to help a literary volunteer.

41. Why didn't Marie go to the supermarket by bus at first?
A. Because she liked to walk to the supermarket.
B. Because she lived far away from the bus stop.
C. Because she couldn't afford the bus ticket.
D. Because she couldn't find the right bus.

42. How did Marie use to find the goods she wanted in the supermarket?
A. She knew where the goods were in the supermarket.
B. She asked others to take her to the right place.
C. She managed to find the goods by their looks.
D. She remembered the names of the goods.

43. Which of the following statements is true about Marie?
A. Marie could do things she had not been able to do before.
B. Marie was able to read stories with the help of her son.

- C. Marie decided to continue her studies in school.
D. Marie paid for her own lessons.

Dolphins (海豚) are not fish, but warm-blooded animals. They live in groups, and speak to each other in their own language. In this way they are like other animals, such as bees and birds. But dolphins are very different from almost all land animals. Their brain is nearly the same size as our own, and they live a long time—at least twenty or thirty years.

Like some animals, dolphins use sound to help them find their way around. They also make these sounds to talk to each other and to help them find food. We now know they do not use their ears to receive these sounds, but the lower part of the mouth, called the jaw.

Strangely, dolphins seem to like man, and for thousands of years there have been stories about the dolphin and its friendship with people.

There is a story about sailors in the 19th century. In a dangerous part of the sea off the coast of New Zealand, they learnt to look for a dolphin called Jack. From 1871 to 1903 Jack met every boat in the area and showed it the way. Then in 1903 a passenger on a boat called The Procinan shot and wounded Jack. He recovered and for nine years more continued to guide all ships through the area—except for the Procinan.

Today, some people continue to kill dolphins, but many countries of the world now protect them and in these places it is against the law to kill them.

44. Dolphins are different from many other animals in that they

- A. live in groups B. have large brains

- C. are warm-blooded D. have their own language

45. Which of the following does the dolphin use to help it find its way around?

- A. Its nose B. Its ears C. Its mouth D. Its eyes.

46. Why did the sailors off the coast of New Zealand look for Jack?

- A. He was lonely and liked to be with people.

- B. They enjoyed playing with him.

- C. He was seriously wounded.

- D. They wanted his help.

47. By telling the story of Jack the writer wanted to show that

- A. dolphins are friendly and clever

- B. people are cruel to animals

- C. Jack is different from other dolphins

- D. dolphins should be protected by law

China Launches

Fourth Unmanned Test Spacecraft

(December 30, 2002. CCTV)—China has successfully launched its fourth unmanned test spacecraft into orbit. Early on Monday, the Shen zhou IV lifted off from a base in northwest China. It is part of country's ambitious plan to send astronauts up into space.

At 1:40 Monday morning, Shenzhou IV lifted off from the Jiuquan base in northwest China's Gansu Province. Ten minutes after take-off, the spacecraft separated from its Long March 2F carrier rocket and went into orbit.

Member of China's Central Military Committee Li Jinai reported from the Beijing Command and Control Center, to the Shenzhou IV spacecraft has accurately entered into orbit. This launch has achieved complete success.

Senior Chinese officials, including Top Legislator Li Peng, vice Premier Wu Bangguo and Member of the Standing Committee of the Politburo of the Communist Party of China Jia Qinglin, watched the launch at the site. On behalf of all other officials, Li Peng extended his congratulations to all those involved in the project.

The top legislator said the successful launch demonstrated that China's manned space science and technology program was getting increasingly mature. He encouraged all those involved in the space program to work hard for its complete success.

The launch was China's fourth successful spacecraft launch in three years. Previous tests were conducted in 1999, 2001 and earlier this year. Like its Shenzhou III predecessor, Shenzhou IV has all the functions of a manned spacecraft. Dummy astronauts, human physical monitoring sensors and a metabolic simulation apparatus have been installed in the craft to simulate and monitor vital human signs, and to test its life support system.

Shenzhou IV is just one step away from a manned flight. In fact, before the launch, Chinese astronauts entered the craft to get a feel of it. Land and sea rescue missions were also rehearsed.

The craft is being tracked and controlled from the command center in Beijing, a monitoring center in Xi'an and a fleet of four vessels deployed in the Atlantic, Pacific and Indian Oceans.

The spacecraft will stay in orbit for a week. Its descent module will touch down in China's Inner Mongolia Autonomous Region.

If all goes well, Shenzhou IV should be the last unmanned test flight of the Shenzhou Series spacecraft. Shenzhou V may become the nation's first manned spacecraft, making China the third country in the world to send man into outer space, after Russia and the US.

48. About "Shenzhou IV", which is not right?

- A. It was launched on the morning of December 30, 2002.

- B. It is part of the country's plan to send astronauts up into space.

- C. The top legislator gave congratulations on its launch.

- D. China had made four successful spacecraft launches before it.

49. The underlined word "on behalf of" (Paragraph 4) refers to

- A. as the spokesman for B. in the interest of

- C. to take the place of D. in place of

50. From the passage, we can know

- A. Russia and the US have made great progress in outer space

- B. China was the third country in the world to send man into outer space

- C. Shenzhou IV is the last unmanned test flight in China

- D. Shen zhou IV will touch down in the Jiuquan base in a week

51. The main idea of the news is

- A. China will be the third country to send man into outer space

- B. Shenzhou IV is just one step away from a manned flight

- C. China has successfully launched its fourth unmanned test spacecraft into orbit

- D. China has achieved a complete success on the manned spacecraft

Fight Continues Against HIV/AIDS

A picture, a calendar or even a balloon may be the best way for millions of people living in China's vast country areas to learn about AIDS, one of the biggest threats to public health in the world today.

China has decided to use friendly methods including exhibitions, VCDs and TV programmes to spread knowledge of the disease across the nation to try to keep it in check.

Educating people nationwide about AIDS is the top priority (优先权) to prevent the disease from getting out of hand. The farmers will be given knowledge in the easiest way that they can understand.

A recent survey from the commission (调查团) of more than 7,000 people in China showed that nearly 20 percent of them had never heard of AIDS before. Just over 71 percent said they knew AIDS was highly infectious (传染的), but most of them had no clear idea of how the disease could be spread. Just over 62 percent said they knew they could do things in advance to prevent them catching AIDS but they didn't know what those measures were.

The month-long survey, carried out last December, talked to people in seven countries and cities across China including both developed coastal areas and the less-developed inland areas. The interviewees changed from 15 to 49 years old, and country residents were about 63% of the total surveyed.

Chinese residents, especially those in the country, have very little knowledge about what AIDS is all about, not to mention prevention and treatment. By the end of last year, there were 22, 517 known HIV/AIDS cases in China. However, more than 6, 000, 000 people in China have been infected.

Since 1985, China has discovered 880 patients with AIDS-466 of them have died. Sharing needles, prostitution (卖淫) and contaminated blood transfusions and major ways for HIV to spread. A lack of education has been the biggest difficulty against nationwide efforts to prevent AIDS, especially in the countryside.

52. After reading the passage, we know that

- A. AIDS is not serious in the Chinese mainland

- B. most people in the country don't know what AIDS is

- C. China has taken many measures to control AIDS

- D. TV programmes are the only useful way in spreading knowledge of AIDS in the countryside

53. The author's purpose in writing the passage is to

- A. show his concern about the health of people

- B. make people know about AIDS

- C. call on people to fight against AIDS

- D. tell us people are short of the knowledge of AIDS

prevent AIDS lies in

- A. misunderstanding of people B. the shortage of money

- C. its infection D. lack of education

55. Since 1985, China has discovered 880 patients with AIDS - 446 of them had died. "Do you know why?"

- A. Because their families refused to cure them.

- B. Because they had been in low spirits for a long time.

- C. Because there weren't enough effective measures to treat AIDS.

- D. Because they couldn't lead a normal life like other healthy people.

Dear Abby,

How are you? Today I've got a wonderful news to tell you.

I have offered a scholarship at a university in Australia for my further education. One hundred and twenty students took exam for it, but only a few was chosen and I was one of them. However, my parents are not happy about it. They are strong against me going there. They say it is too far away that they will not see me for a whole year and they are afraid of I will feel lonely. They can't imagine a girl so young live alone. They advise me to study in the capital instead. Then I'll be able to continue living with them. How can I persuade them to accept the fact I have grown up?

Best wishes.

June

三、阅读理解(共20小题,每小题2分,满分40分)

阅读下列短文,以每题所给的四个选项(A、B、C和D)中,选出最佳选项。

A
IT COULD HAPPEN TO YOU
Many people think there is no need to take special care over home safety.
"I'm all right. I'm insured (投保)."
Maybe you're fully insured. Even then you can never recover the real value you place upon your possessions. But you can't insure against the suffering of mind that we all feel if our homes are torn apart by some stranger, our windows and doors broken, our possessions ruined.
"It won't happen to me."
Who's it? A house is broken into every three three minutes of the day. Loss of all kinds, including cars and things stolen from cars, happens every 35 seconds.
"I've nothing worth stealing."
You may think not. But in fact everyone has something worth a thief's attention. And we all have things of personal value, even if they're worth little or nothing in hard cash (现金).
"I'm only a tenant (房客) here."
The thief doesn't care whether you're a tenant or an owner. You're just as weak either way. Have a word with the owner if you think extra safety fittings are necessary.
"They'll get it anyway."
Most thieves are on the lookout for easy pickings. They are soon discouraged by houses they can't get into quickly and easily. So do pay special attention.
"This booklet will help you."
It's based on the practical experience of police forces throughout the country. Most of the suggestions will cost you only a few minutes' extra time and thought. A few may cost some expense, but this is small compared with the loss and sadness you might otherwise suffer.
If you are in any doubt, ask for free advice from the Crime (犯罪) Prevention Office at your local police station.
36. The text is mainly about _____
A. how to escape being caught
B. how to take special care of ourselves
C. how to hire a safe house in the country
D. how to protect your home
- 37. We can learn from the text that _____
A. it's impossible to prevent a house from being broken into
B. we all have something that a thief thinks worth stealing
C. most thieves are good at stealing things from cars

- D. you can't afford to get advice from your local police station
38. If a house is difficult to get into, _____
A. the thief will steal cars or things from cars
B. the thief will stop trying
C. the owner may think extra safety fittings are necessary
D. the owner may think there is no need to take special care

B

When he arrived in New York to become Professor at Princeton University, Einstein was looking to avoid visitors and news reporters, so his friends took him off the ship secretly before it docked and hurried away by car.
Einstein said that there were only twelve people living at that time who understood his Theory of Relativity, although more than nine hundred books had been written to explain it.
Mrs. Einstein admitted that even she didn't understand the Theory of Relativity, but she understood something that was far more important for a wife; she understood her husband.
She used to invite her friends in for tea and then she would ask the Professor to come downstairs and join them. "No!" he would say with anger. "No! I won't! I won't! I'm going away from here. I can't work here. I simply can't stand these interruptions any longer."
Mrs. Einstein would keep perfectly quiet until he had blown off steam for a while; and then, presently, by using a little diplomacy (外交手段), she would have him downstairs drinking tea and having a rest.
Mrs. Einstein said that her husband liked order in his thinking, but he did not like it in his living. He did whatever he wanted to, whenever he wanted to and he had only two rules of conduct. The first one was: "Don't have any rules whatever." And the second one was: "Be independent of the opinions of others."
He led a very simple life. He went around in old clothes, seldom wore a hat, and whistled and sang in the bathroom. He shaved while sitting in the bathtub and he didn't use shaving soap. He shaved with the same soap that he used for his bath. This man who was trying to solve the riddles of the universe said that using two kinds of soap made life entirely too complicated (复杂的).
He said he was happy because he didn't want anything from anybody. He didn't want money or title or food praises. He made his own happiness out of such simple things as his work, playing the violin and sailing his boat.
Einstein's violin brought him more joy than anything else in life. He said he often thought in music and lived his daydreams in music.
39. Einstein refused to drink tea with Mrs. Einstein's friends because _____
A. he was standing B. he was not thirsty
C. he was thinking D. he was talking
- 40. Einstein had two rules of conduct. One was _____. The other was _____
A. "Orderly in thinking." "Orderly in doing."
B. "Do without any rules." "Don't follow the opinions of others blindly."
C. "Have rules everywhere." "Always follow the opinions of others."
D. "Do whatever you want to." "Do whatever you want to."

- C. three sets of books including one in French
D. the same set of Shakespeare, the works of Goethe
55. Mr. Walker did not want the novels of Dickens and the poems of Milton because _____
A. he was afraid he could not finish reading all of them until the Last Judgement
B. he could not afford to buy his novels as well as his plays
C. he had not ordered them
D. he had not ordered them and could not read French

Rickmanworth,
Middle.
Dear sir,
Just over six months ago, I saw an advertisement in the Morning Mail for a set of the complete works of William Shakespeare. Your company, Cosmo Books Ltd., offered this set (eight books of plays and two books of poetry) at what was claimed to be a remarkable price: fifteen pounds and fifty pence, including postage and packing. I had wanted a set of Shakespeare's plays and poems for some time, and these books in red imitation leather (人造革), looked particularly attractive; so I sent for them.

Two weeks later, the books arrived, together with a set of the complete works of Charles Dickens which I had not ordered. So I returned the Dickens' books to you, with a cheque for fifteen pounds and fifty pence for the works of Shakespeare. Two more weeks passed. Then there arrived on my doorstep a second set of the works of Shakespeare, the same set of novels by Dickens and a six-book set of the plays of Moliere, in French. Since I do not read French, these were of no use to me at all. However, I could not afford to post all these books back to you, so I wrote to you at the end of August of last year, instructing you to come and collect all the books that I did not want, and asking you not to send any other books until future notice.

You did not reply to that letter. Instead you sent me a bill of forty-two pounds, and a set of the plays of Schiller, in German. Since then, a new set of books has arrived every two weeks: the works of Goethe, the poems of Milton, the plays of Strindberg; I hardly know what I have. The books are still all in their boxes, in the garage, and my car has to stand in the rain outside.

I have no room for any more books, and even if I read from now on until the Last Judgement, I should not finish reading all the books that you have sent me. Please send no more books, send no more bills, send no more angry letters demanding payment. Just send one large letter and take all the books away, leaving me only with the one set of the complete works of Shakespeare for which I have paid.

Yours faithfully,
Simon Walker

If you're in charge of a project, the key to success is getting everyone to want to help you. As a director, I point. I suggest. I gently push the actors in the direction I want them to go. In the 1986 movie, Nothing in Common, Jackie Gleason, a character, Max Buser, gets fired from his job as a clothing salesman. The scene, shot on a boat, shows Max's despair about being out of work. I was looking for some gesture that would allow Max to show his feelings.

Jackie had far more experience at everything than I did, and at first I was frightened. What could I possibly tell "The Great One" about acting? Out of fear I decided to direct by suggestion, and sat down with Gleason to talk about the scene. "So Max is sad, right?" I said.

Gleason nodded.
"And he's probably still carrying his pens with name on them—the ones he used to hand out to his customers, right?"
Gleason nodded.

"So what would you want to do with the pens after you were fired?"
He was silent for a moment. "Why don't I throw them overboard!"
I stood up and turned toward the crew. "Hey, everybody, Jackie has a wonderful idea. Let's shoot it."

After filming the scene, Gleason called me over and said with a smile, "Garry, what kind of wonderful idea am I going to have tomorrow?"
You and your team can discover the answers to problems together. When there are no prizes or gold stars for who gets the solution first, you'll all benefit when everything turns out right.
