Cavendish College

Our courses prepare students for competition in the business world of the near future; a future that demands that management and staff not only know how to manage but have the skills and knowledge to make a business grow.

The courses affered by the Creative Department provide an intensive and diagnostic arena of study, enabling you to identify and maximise your creative potential across a number of related disciplines.
Lectures by a number of practising professionals give students a clearer understanding of a chosen area of study.

The Hospitality industry offers outstanding career prospects and opportunities for travel and employment on an international basis. An increasing number of countries rely on tourism for their revenue and hence the demand for well-trained enthusiastic staff continues to increase.

Cavendish is a leading centre for computer studies. A programme of study on one of the Computer courses at Cavendish will open up new apportunities and equip you with the knowledge and skills necessary for obtaining a significant position in the world of work.

English language is still the international language and to know it, is an asset. Cavendish provides a unique learning environment to its language students. The English department aims to develop its students' knowledge of English and to ensure that you have the confidence and ability to use that knowledge in a variety of situations

Cavendish College is Recognised as Efficient by The British Accorditation Council for Independent Further and Higher Education (BAC)

A World Centre for the Study of Education

The Institute of Education, a graduate college of the University of London, is a world centre for the study of education. Our international renown attracts students from over 80 countries every year.

RESEARCH degree provision at the Institute, leading to an MPhil, PhD, EdD or DEdPsy degree, is second to none. We also provide an unrivalled range of courses leading to Master's degrees, Advanced Diploma and Associateship awards.

THE INSTITUTE is justifiably proud of its excellent library, which is the largest collection in Europe of books and periodicals concerned with educational studies. A range of computing facilities, including dedicated computing support for doctoral students, is available, and we also offer presessional and insessional support in English language to our international students.

The Institute is situated in the heart of the attractive Bloomsbury district of central London, close to its own hall of residence and to the major cultural attractions of the capital. A number of nearby underground stations provide for easy and swift travel in the London area.
