Li Youguang was born in Shanghai in 1931. In his childhood he was sent to learn the rudiments of painting from renowned painter Yu Zhonghe under his rigorous training. In 1953 he graduated from and then taught in the art department of Nanjing University. He visited Hong Kong and Japan to give lectures and participated in other academic activities. In recent years, he has thrown himself into the study of Chen Zhifo. He wrote several academic theses on Chen's painting, on the technology he applied in processing his artistic works and on his contribution to education. Cooperated with his wife Chen Xiufan, he also edited and published some books, including Study of Chen zhifo, A Collection of Chen Zhifo's Model Paintings and A Selection of Chen Zhifo's Dyeing Designs.

Now Li is an associate professor at Nanjing Normal University, council member of the Jiangsu Provincial Society for the study of Flower-and-bird Painting, a consultant with the Museum of the Former Residence of Chen Zhifo, member of the Chinese Artists' Association and member of the Society of Chinese Arts and Crafts.
