(A) When I Leave School

Most people have ambitions (雄心壮志). An ambition is something we want to do, want to be or want to have. A student's ambition, for example (例如), might be to pass his or her exams and then get a good job. An athlete's (运动员) ambition could be to win an important competition (竞赛). A businessman's (商人) ambition is usually to make a lot of money (赚大量的钱).

Not all ambitions are about success (成功) at work, however (然而). Some people just want to be good people, have a family or help others.

Ben's ambition is to be a sports writer. He writes the sports reports for his class newspaper. He likes most sports. Swimming and football are his favorites (最喜爱的).

Trudy's ambition is to be a pianist (钢琴家). She practices the piano every day with her best friend, Lily. It is very important to her.

Harry's ambition changes (变化) every day! One day he wants to be an astronaut (宇航员). The next day he wants to be a pop singer (流行歌手). The next day he wants to drive a racing car (赛车). His mother would be happy if his ambition was to get up in time (按时) for school every day!
