INTRODUCTION

What is this book for?

English Conversations for New International Business is for college undergraduates, graduate students and business people who need to, or will soon need to, use English in their classroom or workplace. This edition incorporates both Business and English to teach students the step — by — step process of International Business and Commerce. It is intended to give students the opportunity to practice their speaking and listening skills in English by promoting realistic use of the language through individual, pair, and small group activities.

What are the unique features of this book?

The textbook consists of dialogues that cover one or two specific topic for each chapter. Section I and Section II provides students an overview of the International Business environment in the 21st century. The conversations are focused on corporate executives making plans to enter the world of International Business. Section III and Section IV acquaints students with the practical aspect of doing business overseas. The dialogues are usually between a buyer and seller formulating and finalizing their business arrangements. In the course of these dialogues, the commonly used business terms pertaining to the topic are introduced in realistic situations.

Every chapter opens with a concise text that introduces the theme of the chapter. These introductory passages are intended to prepare students to gain an initial understanding of the subject matter.

The substitution drills are intended to acquaint students with special terminology and colloquial language to practice and improve communication skills in Business English, so that you can become more confident, more fluent and more precise.

Commonly used expressions and abbreviations to acquaint students with English used in business contexts.

Compact dictionary of commonly used words and built right into this edition so there's no need to carry a separate dictionary.

Appendices at the end of the book provide practical information and useful Internet links to a wealth of resources that students can use for reference and further research.

Specially designed exercises to help lead students to develop situational dialogues and improve their abilities in translations. Students are given specific guidance in using their new skills to generate and organize new ideas, developing vocabulary, and write, edit, revise a composition of their own.

Teaching aid available to accompany the textbook include a cassette tape recorded by Native American Speakers. The natural language from a variety of contexts in the dialogues emphasizes stressed words, reductions, and intonation to help students develop fluency and improve their listening comprehension.

The authors' combined life experiences in teaching of English As Second Language and in International Business have provided many perspectives from which the text has benefited.

The authors are very grateful to all colleagues, students, friends, and family who gave them much encouragement and support. We hope to continue to hear more valuable opinions and helpful suggestions from the teachers, students, and business people who use this edition of English Conversations for New International Business.

Section I Global Marketplace

第一章 全球市场

在《世界大观》中，有关于“全球化的”章节。该章节指出，全球化是人类社会发展的必然趋势，它促进了全球经济、政治、文化等领域的交流与合作。然而，全球化也带来了许多问题，如贫富差距拉大、环境污染加剧、地区冲突频发等。因此，我们需要在全球化进程中，既要抓住机遇，又要应对挑战，实现可持续发展。

Today, new products and services are being invented, created, produced and sold in the global economy. The globalization of international business is becoming increasingly more important for businesses of all sizes. Technological and scientific advancement has mobilized economic activity through innovation of new ideas. Sophisticated communications have drastically reduced the impact of time and distance involved in international commerce. Tariffs and barriers are coming down to create open market around the world. All of these factors have made international trade more vital than ever before.
