"Really?" asked Nina, excitedly. "I'd love it!" Finally, she would have space for all of her things, without all of Millie's stuff everywhere. Nina couldn't wait and she was so excited, she wanted to get started on her new room straight away.

Nina's New Room

"We'll need to decorate your room first," said Mum. "Why don't we choose some paint together?" So, Mum and Nina went to the paint shop and when they got back, they tried out every shade. Still, Nina couldn't decide.

"I'll paint a rainbow," said Millie. "That will help you to choose!"

"That's a brilliant idea," said Nina, brightly. "We can paint it together."

Nina and Millie had loads of fun slopping paint all over the walls and everywhere else, too! Finally, Nina chose the colours she wanted for her brand new bedroom.

When they'd finished painting, Nina's room looked a complete and utter mess, with paint, boxes and toys everywhere, but Nina didn't mind. It was her very own mess and soon it would all be exactly as she wanted it.

When Nina's room was almost ready, she started to feel nervous. She always complained about how cramped and messy it was sharing a room with Millie, but secretly, Nina loved having her little sister around. Who would she say goodnight to before bedtime now? Who would she play with first thing in the morning? What about if she felt scared after the lights were out?

"Maybe I don't want my own room after all," thought Nina, but then, she had a brilliant idea.

She even found a few of Millie's toys and secretly brought them to her new room. Soon, everything looked perfect.

She went all around the house collecting cushions, pillows and her old sleeping bag.

Nina's New Room

Before she knew it, Nina was ready for her first night in her new bedroom. Then, Millie poked her head around the bedroom door. "Goodnight," said Millie, feeling sad when she saw Nina in her own room without her.

"Not so fast!" said Nina, jumping out of bed and tickling Millie. "I have a surprise for you... Ta-da!" Nina pulled out a mattress from under her bed, with her sleeping bag on it and lots of comfy pillows arranged perfectly. "Who's that for?" asked Millie, feeling very confused indeed. "You!" squealed Nina. "Now we can have sleepovers whenever we want."
