Stars' grand wedding

It's the wedding the world has been waiting to see. And it's happening in the exclusive at- tains. Pop sensation Christina Aguilera and music producer Jordan Peele are in an extraor- dinary three-day celebration. From the Japanese-inspired rehearsal dinner to the bride and groom's first look in Japan, to their intimate Jewish wedding ceremony in a Napa Valley vineyard in Cal- ifornia, U.S. Christian's big day was a bride's dream come true. "We celebrate the richness of life and our blessed circumstances," read their personal wedding invitations. It was in such a glamorous setting, of course, and Jordan has left one of the world's top universities in facing a major crisis. According to the university's vice-chancellor, John Hunt, Oxford is being completely overtaken by a new bridge. It finds itself in a race against other U.S. universities like Yale, Harvard and Stanford for the best teach- ing talent and students. But the problem is money. Oxford teachers are poorly paid compared to their American counterparts, and the facilities are not as good. Changing the situation will involve raising tu- tion fees and having better business management. Oxford professors are at the idea of raising

Oxford change
