Acknowledgments

I gratefully acknowledge a National Endowment for the Humanities Fellowship that allowed me to pursue this project free of teaching obligations for a year and the generous financial support of Kansas State University throughout the project. I am indebted to Margaret Burton for her remarkable dedication and expertise as a researcher and editorial and administrative assistant. I am also grateful to the Librarians of Kansas State University who have been helpful throughout the project. Much credit is due to the contributors from several continents who shared their knowledge and concern for Holocaust literature. My greatest debt of gratitude remains for my husband, Eugene Kremer, who helped me at every stage of the project and sustains with with wise counsel and loving encouragement.

—S. L. K.

Dedication

In memory of the six million Jews who perished in the Shoah and in celebration of those who survived and their descendants dedicated to furthering their legacy. And for Lucas Joseph and Benjamin Josef.
