My name is Jack. It was my birthday yesterday. An old lady stopped me on the street. "It's your birthday," she said. "Let me look at your hand. Yes, you have a friend Mark, and you like ice cream and cheese. Today you will see fire (火); your mother will go away and a tiger will come to your house."

I went to Mark's home. He and his sister made a birthday cake and lighted (点燃) the candles for me. But I was thinking about the old lady's words. I wanted to go home, so I said goodbye to them and ran home. Good, there was no fire, but mum wasn't at home. Oh, no... I thought about the old lady's words again. Then mum walked in with Mark and a box. "Here's your present. It's a lovely little dog and his name is Tiger," said mum. "But how about the fire and the old lady?" I asked. "The fire is the candles," Mark smiled and said, "and we hired (雇佣) the old lady."

21. () It was Jack's birthday yesterday.
 22. () Jack liked to have a tiger and some ice cream for his birthday.
 23. () Mark and his sister made a birthday cake for Jack.
 24. () On his birthday, Jack got a little tiger as his birthday present.

Perhaps you have heard a lot about the Internet, but what is it?

The Internet is many different networks around the world. A network is a group of computers put together. These networks joined together are called the Internet.

Maybe that doesn't sound interesting. But when we've joined the Internet. There are lots of things we can do. We can have a lot of interest on the World Wide Web (www). We can use the Internet instead of a library to find all kinds of information for our homework. . We can find information about our favorite sports or film stars and do shopping on the Internet. We can also send messages to other people by e-mail. It is much cheaper and quicker than calling our friends or sending letters.

Thanks to the Internet, the world is becoming smaller and smaller. People can now work at home with a computer in front, getting and sending the information they need. They can buy or sell whatever they want by the Internet. But do you know 98% of the information is English? So what will English be like tomorrow?

It was Sunday yesterday. Bruce went to play football with his friends. Soon he felt hot and took off his coat. On his way home, he forgot to put it on again. This morning he felt unwell and couldn’t go to school. His mother told him to stay in bed and then went to buy some medicine for him. An hour later he wouldn’t lie there, so he stood by the window. The sun was shining and the birds were singing in the trees. Soon his mother came back and said, “It’s warmer outside. Go to sun yourself after you take the medicine. ”

Bruce went out and sat on a step and played alone. At that time a salesman(推销员) came up to him and asked, “Has your mother come back, my little friend?”

“Yes, sir,” answered the boy.

The man began to ring the doorbell, but nobody answered. He rang it for a long time and became angry.

“I don’t think you are an honest(诚实的) boy,” said the salesman. “There’s no one in the house. You’ve played a joke on (捉弄) me! ”

“I don’t think so, sir,” said Bruce. “The house isn’t ours. ”

The word “Hello” may be used more often than any other word in the English language. Everyone in the USA and other countries uses this word.

Thomas Edison is believed to be the first person to use “hello” on the telephone soon after the world's first telephone was invented.

At first people began their words on the telephone with “Are you there?” They were not sure if a telephone could really carry voices.

Edison was a man with few words. He wanted to save time. The first time he picked up the phone, he was very busy. He trusted the telephone as he invented it himself. He was sure someone was there and only said “hello”.

From then on, “hello” is often heard when you pick up the telephone.
