Foreword

Public Administration Challenges and Opportunities: Serving Citizens in a Globalised World

Practicing public administrators and scholars worldwide are committed to serving citizens in a globalised world. Both challenges and opportunities however confront the efficient, effective, economical delivery of essential public goods and services. Fundamental resource challenges resulting from the global downturn of national economies over the past several years have added complexity and frustration to getting the job done. The phrase “doing more with less” has become all too real in many parts of the world. As the papers in these Proceedings demonstrate, the 2010 International Conference on Public Administration includes wide ranging inquiry into the challenges and opportunities to serve citizens in a diverse array of cultures, economies, and political-administrative settings.

2010 International Conference on Public Administration (6th), co-sponsored by University of Electronic Science and Technology of China, American Society for Public Administration, Chinese Public Administration Society, Institute of Public Administration Australia, The Australian National University, The Australia and New Zealand School of Government, Crawford School of Economics and Government of The Australian National University, School of Public Administration of Moscow State University and Chinese Public Administration Journal seeks to provide a forum for distinguished speakers from academia, government and industry to discuss problems and new ideas, share experiences of success and failure in public administration, explore the changes that public administration poses for all aspects of governance, and promote international co-operation in the field of public administration.

The theme of 2010 International Conference on Public Administration (ICPA 6th) — Public Administration Challenges and Opportunities: Serving Citizens in a Globalised World, focusing on serving citizens and delivery public goods and services efficiently, effectively and economically in a globalised world. The papers collected in Proceedings of 2010 International Conference on Public Administration represent a vast storehouse of new information and knowledge that should be useful to public officials on every continent, East-West and North-South, which offer insight, information, and knowledge on a variety of subjects that practicing public administrators and scholars should find useful.

The submissions of 2010 International Conference on Public Administration (6th) have amounted to Eight Hundred and Fifty- Eight pieces from both China and abroad, including more than a hundred pieces submitted by foreign experts, scholars and practitioners to both School of Political Science and Public Administration of University of Electronic Science and Technology of China and America Society for Public Administration.

After peer reviews by 2010 ICPA Academic Committee, the papers collected in Proceedings of 2010 International Conference on Public Administration(6th) (Volume II) are One Hundred and Forty Five, which offer a wide array of new knowledge and information on subjects that public administrators and scholars should find of some valuable and practical uses. The 6th Proceedings of the 2010 International Conference on Public Administration suggest that the daunting challenges confronting citizens worldwide can and are being approached with expertise, commitment, and professionalism of the highest order. Six encompassing sub-themes can be identified in the pages that follow: (1) Public Administration Theory, Practice and Reform, (2) Management Issues and Innovation, (3) Governance with Networking, Law and Partnerships, (4) Public Service Delivery Challenges and Reform, (5) Citizenship, Institutions, Communication and Innovation, and (6) International and Global Challenges in Public Administration.
