三、完形填空 (15 分)

Have you ever asked yourself why children go to school? You will probably 31 they go to learn languages, geography, history, science and all 32 subject. That is quite true, but 33 do they learn these things?

We send our children to school to prepare them for their future work and life. Nearly 34 they study at school has some practical (实际的) use in their life, but is that the only reason they go to school?

There is 35 in education (教育) than just learning facts. We go to school above all (首先) to learn how to learn, 36 when we have left school we can go on learning. If a man really knows 37, he will always be successful (成功的), because whenever he is to do something new he will quickly teach 38 how to do it in the best way. The uneducated (未受教育的) person, on the other hand, is 39 unable to do it, or does it badly. So the purpose (目的) of schools is not just to teach languages, geography, science, etc, but to teach pupils the 40 to learn.

A

Monday is always the worst morning of the week. Everybody is sleepy; everybody is bad-tempered (坏脾气); everybody is in a hurry. Last Monday was even worse than usual.

"Hurry up, Dick!" Father shouted as he knocked at the bathroom door. "I've got a train to catch." "I'm shaving (刮脸)," Dick answered. "I'll be out in a minute."

"Breakfast is ready," Mother called from the kitchen. As she got no reply, she came upstairs to see what was going on.

"Where's David?" she asked. "Is he still in bed?" She knocked at his bedroom door loudly. "You'd better get up," she called. "It's a quarter to eight. Your breakfast's getting cold!"

"I don't feel like any breakfast," David said. "I'll have another five minutes' sleep instead."

Mother was about to go into his room and pull him out of bed when the door bell rang. She hurried downstairs to open the door. It was the postman.

"Good morning, Mrs Crawford," he said cheerfully. "It is a lovely day, isn't it?"

B

Bill was a newspaper boy. He went from house to house to send the paper to his neighbours. Each week he went to get his money.

Bill kept a little book. In the book he wrote down who paid him and who did not. Bill was keeping a record.

Men have been keeping records from early times. How did they do this before they learned to write? Sometimes they made knots (结) in different colored strings (绳). People in South America kept records this way.

Today we have machines for counting and keeping records. When you go shopping, sometimes you will see a cash register (现金出纳机). It can keep records and count the things you buy. It tells how much is sold in the shop every day.

Many places have machines called computers. They use computers to keep all their records. Computers are much better than knots. Of course, maybe men will invent something even better than computers.
