B

Canadians like to say "Thank you" when others help them or say something kind to them. People in many other countries do so, too. It's a very good habit.

You should say "Thank you" when someone passes you the salt on the table, or opens the door for you, or says you have done your work well.

"Thank you" is used not only between friends but also between parents and children, brothers and sisters, husbands and wives.

"Excuse me" is another useful short expression. When you hear someone say so behind you, you know somebody wants to walk past without touching you.

It's not polite to interrupt (打断) others when they are talking. If you want to speak to one of them, say "Excuse me" first, and then begin talking. You should also do so when you want to make any noise in front of others.

How are you?

Sorry, I haven't written to you for so long, but I've been busy preparing for my exams. I'm really glad, they're over! I studied really hard and I hope to get good marks.

We're on holiday this week because it's our half-term break (休息). Everybody is relaxed except me! I'm in bed with the flu (感冒)! I've had a fever and a headache for the last three days. I'm coughing and sneezing (打喷嚏) all the time and I feel really weak. The doctor said I had to stay in bed for the whole week! I'm so unlucky! It's unfair (不公平)!

Well, that's enough of my bad news. I have to take my medicine now. Please write back soon. I'm really bored!

Yours

Nina

A Page from Li Meng's Diary

Thursday, June 23

Sunny

Today I was so happy to know that I did quite well in my last week's science exam. Thanks to Daniel, he taught me a new way of going over lessons. It is called "map idea".

Because of the map idea, I've learned how to find out the main idea in every lesson. And in my mind I can draw a map of all the important knowledge I need to remember. It's really good. I can remember so much in that way.

I had never thought of changing the way of my study before. I was always complaining about my poor memory, but now my memory has become good because of the map idea. It made my study much easier and more enjoyable. I realized learning how to learn well is the most important for us students.
