- 4 能读懂常见体裁的阅读材料;
- 5 能根据不同的阅读目的运用简单的阅读策略获取信息;
- 6 能利用字典等工具书进行学习;
- 7 除阅读教材外,课外阅读量应累计达到 15 万词以上。

八级(普通高中毕业)要求是:

- 1 能理解阅读材料中不同的观点和态度;
- 2 能识别不同文体的特征;
- 3 能通过分析句子结构理解难句和长句;
- 4 能在教师的帮助下欣赏浅显的文学作品;
- 5 能根据学习任务的需要从电子读物或网络中获取信息并进行加工处理;
- 6 除教材外,课外阅读量应累计达到 36 万词以上。

很多师生经常感到困惑的是:为什么很多没有超越中学英语语法和词汇的短文,读起来却不能正确理解呢?或者能基本读懂短文,但做理解题的正确率却不能令人满意呢?其中最主要的原因之一就是阅读的量不够,阅读的题材不广,阅读的技能不强。《中学英语课

Before Felix arrived in Ankara, Miss Jones had arranged for him to have lessons with Mr Palmer of the Education Office. Mr Palmer, as a busy man; he not only had his government job but also taught some Arab boys from wealthy families who hoped to go to an English university. He had agreed to "fit" Felix in his spare time, which meant that sometimes Felix went to Mr Palmer's office and was told to study this or that, and now and then Mr Palmer managed to find a spare hour when he dropped into Miss Jones's and gave Felix some instructions. Most of Felix's day was spent studying in his bedroom. He knew he would not get far in this way and he knew also that Mr Palmer would have been disappointed in him. Miss Jones did not say or do anything that gave Felix any clue as to how he had failed her, but Mr Palmer, after testing his knowledge, said without hesitation, "What on earth have you been doing with yourself since you left?"

Felix explained that in Cairo he had taken lessons with an old English lady, who had taught him English composition, French, drawing, geography and history. Unluckily she had known less Greek, Latin and maths than he did. His mother had treated lessons there as a joke, "Never mind, darling. When we return to England we'll make up for the lost time."

"Your parents ought to have been ashamed of themselves, keeping you away from school during the most important years of your life. I can't understand it," said Mr Palmer. "Your father is an educated man, isn't he?"

Felix explained, "It wasn't my father's fault. Mother wouldn't let me go back to England when the war started. Father was angry, but Mother said, 'If he goes, I may not see him again.'" Mr. Palmer said, "You'll never make up for it."

But Felix, although he knew it to be a serious matter, could not really care.

There is a saying that cats have nine lives. A recent study examined why. Scientists carried out a study of cats which had fallen out of windows of buildings. Nine out of ten remained alive after a fall of two storeys or more. One cat which fell from the thirty-second floor of a building only broke a tooth. Interestingly, the cats were in greatest danger of being killed if they fell from the seventh floor. Falling from either a lesser or greater height gave them a better chance of survival.

Damage to a body depends on how fast it hits the ground, which in turn depends on how fast it has fallen. But it is not quite that simple because, as an object falls through the air, the air holds it back and slows the object down. After a while the object stops accelerating and continues at a fixed speed. This is the terminal speed. Bulky things have a lower terminal speed because there is a large area for the air to push up on. Heavy things have a higher terminal speed because they push down harder against the air. Cats have a lower terminal speed than falling people, for example, because they are quite bulky and not very heavy so that they hit the ground more slowly and are less likely to be hurt.

Then what does the seventh floor matter? This is the distance cats take to reach their terminal speed. After the seventh floor, they may relax and spread out their legs like a flying squirrel and change their falling position so that they may land on their feet. This would slow them down and allow their muscles to reduce the force of impact, and thus reduce the damage.

1. The scientists came to a conclusion that a fall from the _____ floor was most likely to kill a cat.
A. sixth B. eighth C. thirty - third D. seventh
2. A falling cat has a low terminal speed because it is _____.
A. bigger but heavier
B. bigger and relatively lighter
C. lighter but relatively bigger
D. smaller and lighter
3. Falling from higher than the seventh floor allows the falling cat _____.
A. to have time to reduce its falling speed
B. to relax and spread out its legs and land on a safer position
C. to reach the ground softly on its back
D. to fall slower than from the sixth floor

More than 6,000 children were expelled from US schools last year for bringing guns and bombs to school, the US Department of Education said on July 24 this year. The department gave a report on the expulsions saying handguns accounted for 58 percent of the 60,93 expulsions in 1999 - 2001, against 7 percent rifles or shotguns and 35 percent for other types of firearms.

"The report is a clear sign that our nation's public schools are cracking down on students who bring guns to school," Education Secretary Richard Riley said in a statement. "We need to be tough - minded about keeping guns out of our schools and do everything to keep our children safe."

In March 2000, an 11 - year - old boy and a 13 - year - old boy using handguns and rifles shot dead four children and a teacher at a school in Joneboro, Arkansas. In October, two were killed and seven wounded in a shooting at a Mississippi school. Two months later, a 14 - year - old boy killed three high school students and wounded five in Daducah, Kentucky.

Most of the expulsions, 56 percent, were from high schools, which have students of about age 13, 34 percent were from junior high schools and 9 percent were from elementary schools, the report said.
