Peter was ten years old. One day, his friend, Mary, said to him, "I'm going to have a birthday party on Sunday. Can you come?"

Peter asked his mother, and she said, "Yes, you can go." On Saturday afternoon, his mother said to him again, "Now, Peter, when you go to the party, remember this, you must be polite, don't ask for food, wait until someone gives it to you."

"All right, Mum," Peter answered, and he went to Mary's house on his like.

There were many children at the party. They played together for an hour, and then Mary's mother gave them some food, but she forgot Peter. He waited politely (有礼貌的) for a long time, and then he took up his plate and said, "Does anyone want a nice clean plate?"

Mrs Green was eighty, but she had a small car, and she always drove to the shop in it on Saturdays and bought some food.

She did not drive fast, because she was old, but she drove well and never hit anything. Sometimes her grandchildren said to her, "Please don't drive your car, grandma. We can take you to the shops." But she always said, "No, I like driving. I've driven for fifty years, and I'm not going to stop now."

Last Saturday she stopped her car at some traffic-lights because they were red, and then it could not start again. The lights were green, then red, then green again, but her car did not start.

"What am I going to do now?" She said.

But then a policeman came and said to her kindly, "Good morning. Don't you like any of our colours today?"

Dear George,

Thank you for your card. I am glad you're having a good time, but I am not surprised. Provence is wonderful at this time of a year.

We are going on holiday next month. I like to take my summer holiday late, then winter doesn't seem quite so long. We are going to St. Ives, in Cornwall. I have an aunt there, so we can stay with her.

We are not taking the car. We are going by train. There is so much TRAFFIC on the roads in the summer that driving is no pleasure and we want to do a lot of walking. I am taking my fishing rod and Belinda is going to do some drawing.

Love,

Chris and Belinda

Mike found that young birds raised in isolation could only make some simple sound. Mike learned that a young bird has to hear other old birds' song during the period before it is seven weeks old. Then there is a long time until the next spring before the bird begins to sing. And when it does start, it needs to practise before it finally gets the song right.

Further studies have proved that young birds do indeed need musical education. After several of the young birds raised in isolation were put together for about ten months, they learned from one another and finally could sing. The songs they sang, however, were quite different from the wild birds'. On the other hand, the young birds caught after their time was spent listening to the wild birds' songs, knew how to sing.

31. Mike found the truth that _____.
A. birds were born with the ability to sing
B. birds were born without the ability to sing
C. birds were born without the ability to make noises
D. birds were born without the ability to learn how to sing

Thomas Edison was awarded more patents on inventions than any other American. When he died in 1931, Americans wondered how they could best show their respect for him. One suggestion was that the nation observe a minute or two of total blackout. All electric power would be shut off in homes, streets and factories.

Perhaps this suggestion made Americans realize fully what Edison and his inventions meant to them. Electric power was too important to the country. Shutting it off for even a short time would have led to complete confusion. A blackout was out of the question.

On the day of Edison's funeral, many people silently dimmed their lights. In this way they honored the man who had done more than anyone else to put the great force of electricity at his countrymen's fingertips.

Bev could not do her work. She felt too tired. She put down her book, yawned and felt better. Bev looked up. Had the teacher seen her? To her surprise, the teacher was yawning, too. He took a long breath and opened his mouth wide. He closed his eyes a bit and let out his breath in a big, slow yawn. Then Bev heard other yawn.

The teacher said, "Bev yawned because our doors and windows are closed. And the room is warm. Her body needed more air. Maybe she was hungry. Or she just needed to move a bit. Do you feel better now, Bev?" he asked. "Yes," said Bev. "Yawns wake me up," the teacher said. "When you yawn you stretch many parts of your body. That stretching make you feel good." There were more yawns.

"People do not know why they yawn," the teacher went on. "But if you see a yawn, hear one, or even read about, you may yawn, too. And if your yawn starts, you can't stop it. You may close your mouth to stop it. But the yawn will still come." The teacher stood up and said, "Let's open the window and let some air in. You may go out for a drink. A cold drink or water on your face helps to stop yawns. Bev may go first."

How do you feel now after you have read this story? Did you yawn? Watch a friend read this. See if your friend starts to yawn. If you see a yawn, you will know why.
