二、读写任务

阅读下面短文,根据所读内容在文后第1至第10小题的空格里填上适当的单词或短语。

注意:每空不超过3个单词。

The best thing you can say about the roofs of most city buildings is that you don't have to look at them. That's very good, since an urban landscape viewed from above can be an unlovely thing — block after block of tarred (铺有沥青的) black rooftops, sticky in summer, ugly year-round. Or at least that's the way it used to be.

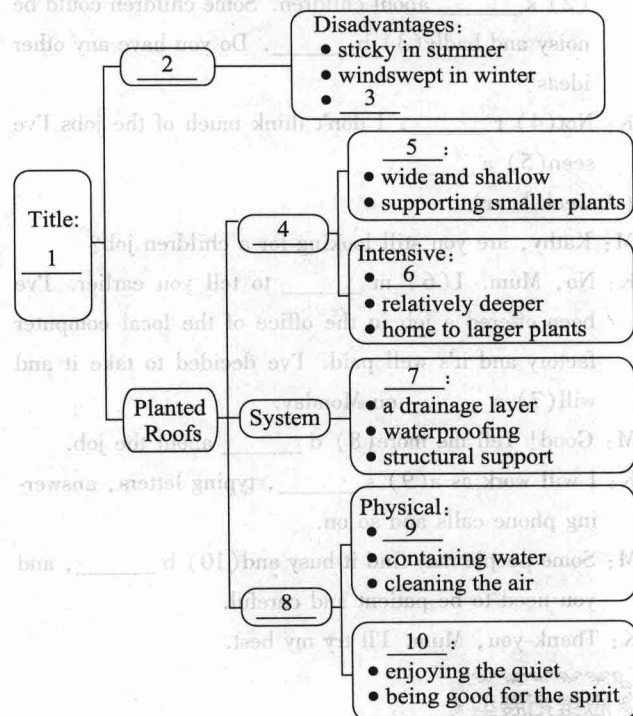

But urban roofs are going green. Environmental designers have begun to realize that the tops of buildings don't have to be wastelands. Indeed, they can be gardens, planted with grasses, flowers and bushes.

A planted roof usually comes in one of two varieties: extensive or intensive. The extensive type is wide and shallow, with a soil depth of less than 8 inches, able to support smaller plants. The intensive type may be smaller, but it's relatively deeper and home to larger plants.

Whatever the design, green roofs are not so simple as ordinary gardens. They have multiple layers beneath the soil, including a drainage layer, waterproofing, structural support, and so on.

But this system can do a great deal of good. A recent paper in the journal Bio Science tells that green roofs can control temperature, contain water and clean the air. And most impressively, they can cut heat loss from a building by 50%, lower air-conditioning costs by 25%, and reduce the urban-heated-island effect by 2°C.

Of course, apart from the square feet greened and heat reduced, green roofs are even more valued since people can gain some psychological comfort simply by having a quiet place to go. As so often happens, what's good for the planet can also be good for the spirit?

二、读写任务

Bryan, Olga, Scott, Anna 和 David 正在进行一项“企业家成功秘诀调查”。他们将采访几位企业家。第1~5题是他们拟定的采访话题。阅读下面刊登在Entrepreneur(《企业家》)杂志上6位企业家的成功感言(A, B, C, D, E 和 F), 为每位采访者选定最佳采访对象。选项中有一项是多余选项。

1. Bryan: What comes first, the customer or the profit? ()
2. Olga: How important is an entrepreneur's ambition to his/her company's growth? ()
3. Scott: How does an entrepreneur make use of his/her advantages? ()
4. Anna: Why do successful entrepreneurs seem to enjoy their work? ()
5. David: What attitude should an entrepreneur have toward his/her social responsibilities? ()

A. Sheri Poe Ryka Inc.

Since I started this company in my kitchen seven years ago, I always dreamt of what it would be some day. Focusing on that goal helps me get through tough times. To get the kind of success that you want, you need to dream big. That's the starting point. Every success story begins with big dreams. You need to have big dreams for yourself, like being somebody rich, famous or fulfilled. You need to have a clear goal of what you want to achieve.

Also, I think it's really important that the people you're working with are as committed to the same goal as you are, so you can support each other and keep each other energetic.

B. Anita Roddick The Body Shop Inc.

In America, we have a shop in Harlem where 50 percent of the profits go into the community development, and the other 50 percent go toward the funding of a similar shop elsewhere in the United States. The pride that shop brings to the staff and local people inspired me.

What The Body Shop does successfully is use our facilities in the street and shopping centers to talk about real human issues like AIDS, recycling, human rights, and community service or to encourage people to speak out against anything they consider to be unjust. Knowing our products are symbols of social change is really encouraging.

C. Ben Cohen Ben & Jerry's Homemade Inc.

I'm energized by the people I work with. I'm very relationship-driven, which I think is different from most entrepreneurs. I'm inspired by doing things that are not normal and that most people think don't fit into the business world or don't make any sense.

In business, you are judged by the company you keep—from your management team, board of directors, and strategic partners. Maybe the lady you met in a trade association meeting can help you secure funding, or the gentleman at a conference can provide you with management advice.

D. Richard Melman Lettuce Entertain You Enterprises

A number of years ago, I was interviewed by someone who was writing a book on enterprises. He asked me, "What's the opposite of work?" I answered, "Lazy." He started laughing and said, "Believe it or not, a lot of entrepreneurs say the same thing."

The average person thinks the opposite of work is play, but to an entrepreneur, work is play. I think it all adds up to having fun. It's fun to create; it's fun to entertain, and it's fun to make people happy with our service. When it stops being fun, I'll stop doing it.

E. Frank Toskan Make-Up Art Cosmetics (M. A. C.)

One of the nicest things anyone ever said to me was, "I hate makeup, but I love M. A. C." That's what moves me on. Even people who don't wear makeup can appreciate our company, what it stands for, its values, and the way we do business.

We work from an inverted pyramid, where the customers are always at the top. Our customers inspire me and keep me going. They and our staff, not money, make me enthusiastic. If I had stayed in this business just for the money, I would have closed down years ago.

F. Kenneth Cole Kenneth Cole Productions Inc.

You can't be everything to everybody. Each of us has our own strengths and weaknesses. To be effective, you need to identify your strengths and concentrate on them. you'll become more successful if you are able to channel your efforts to areas that you do best. In business, for example, if you know you are good at marketing, then give it full play. Seek help or assistance in areas that you may be poor at, such as accounting or bookkeeping. To turn your weakness into strength, consider taking hands-on learning or training.
