FOREWORD

This first edition of WHO'S WHO IN INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS provides biographical details of approximately 7,000 people who are prominent in international politics, diplomacy and cultural and scientific affairs to a depth hitherto impossible.

Each entry is clearly laid out, with an entrant's life, career and address details conveniently divided into sections.

Two useful indexes ensure that this volume is more than just a collection of biographical entries. Through the two indexes it is possible to trace an entry for the occupant of a particular office without first having to know that person's name. Further details on the entries and the indexes are provided overleaf.

The editor is most grateful to all those who completed questionnaires and returned them to us.

September 1990.

EXPLANATORY NOTES

Each biographical entry in WHO'S WHO IN INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS includes, where appropriate, the following details:

- Surname
- Titles and first names
- Academic degrees, professional qualifications and honours
- Nationality
- Job title, organization (or country) worked for (or in), and year of appointment
- Date and place of birth
- Name of spouse, year of marriage and number of children
- Educational establishments attended
- Career history
- Titles of major publications with dates
- Contact address with telephone, telex and fax numbers (where possible these details refer to the entrant's principal job title and organization worked for as listed in WHO'S WHO IN INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS)

Supplementary information exists in the following sections of the book:

- An extensive LIST OF ABBREVIATIONS (see pp vii-xiii).
- A guide to INTERNATIONAL TELEPHONE CODES (see pp xiv-xv). The area codes provided in the biographical entries are as required by a reader calling from a foreign country.

- A LATE INFORMATION section (see p 476) detailing changes which occurred shortly after the biographical section went to press, affecting the careers of entrants.
- The INDEX BY ORGANIZATION (see pp 477-539) listing each entrant in the book alphabetically under the organization for which they work, giving their name, job title and the number of the page where their entry may be found. Thus this index can be used as a directory of international organizations. In addition, each country in the world appears as a subheading in this index, with heads of state, government leaders, ministers of foreign affairs, defence and finance, and resident diplomats from other nations.
- The INDEX BY NATIONALITY (see pp 540-590) lists entrants alphabetically under the country of their nationality, giving their name, job title, the organization for which they work (or the country they work in—principally relevant to the entries of diplomats in foreign postings), and the number of the page where their entry may be found.

Example: if information on the Ambassador of France to Japan was required, yet the name of the individual holding that position was not known, either index would direct the reader to the relevant page. By looking under "Japan" in the INDEX BY ORGANIZATION, or under "France" in the INDEX BY NATIONALITY, it would be discovered that Bernard Dorin is the Ambassador of France to Japan, and that his biographical entry can be found on p 114.

INTERNATIONAL TELEPHONE CODES

To use this table:

Select the International Code for the country from which the call is to be made (column 2), then the Country Code for the country to which the call is going (column 1). To make the call, dial the International Code plus the Country Code plus the number required (adding area codes provided in the entries where necessary). For example, to call a person at the Commission of the European Communities headquarters in Brussels from the USA, the following numbers would have to be dialled: 011 (International Code from the USA) + 32 (Country Code for Belgium) + (2) (area code) + 235-11-11 (Commission's Number).
