PREFACE

Twentieth-Century Short Story Explication is a bibliography of interpretations which have appeared since 1900 of short stories published after 1800. In the Third Edition (1977) were materials on the works of more than 850 short story authors, and this Supplement lists explications of the fiction of 186 additional authors. The Third Edition carried the coverage through 31 December 1975; the present volume is devoted primarily to studies done during the calendar years 1976, 1977, and 1978. Also included, however, are items previously overlooked, as well as recent reprintings of explications in the Third Edition. Reprinted entries are preceded by asterisks.

The term short story here has the same meaning it carries in the Wilson Company's Short Story Index: "... a brief narrative of not more than 150 average-sized pages." By explication I suggest simply interpretation or explanation of the meaning of a story, including observations on theme, symbol, and sometimes structure. This excludes from the bibliography what are primarily studies of sources, biographical data, and background materials. Occasionally there are explicatory passages cited in other works otherwise devoted to one of these external considerations. Page numbers refer strictly to explicatory passages, not to the longer studies in which they may appear.

Although the entries refer predominantly to materials written in English, the reader will also find citations to key studies in several other major languages of Western Europe. Attention is called to many important books published abroad as well as to articles in such readily available foreign-language journals as Hispanica, Monatshefte, French Review, and Slavic & East European Journal.

The recent profusion of interpretive material required that, beginning with the Third Edition, we adopt a system of coding and consequently a format different from that used in the first two editions. Each book is cited by author or editor and a short title; the full title and publication data are provided in a Checklist of Books Used. For an article in a journal or an essay in a critical collection, the full publication information is provided the first time the study is cited. In subsequent entries only the critic's or scholar's name and a short title are used as long as these entries appear under the name of the same short story writer; if an article or essay explicates stories by two or more writers, a complete initial entry is made for each writer. Now, for the first time, we have also included a Checklist of Journals Used. This should be especially helpful to students who may not be familiar with the titles of professional journals, much less the abbreviations for such titles.

Again I am indebted to the editors of such literary journals as PMLA, Modern Fiction Studies, Journal of Modern Literature, and Abstracts of English Studies. I wish to extend personal thanks to Gloria Lyerla, Interlibrary Loan Librarian at Texas Tech University, and to the reference librarians at Mahon Library, Lubbock, Texas. As always, my greatest debt is to my wife, Barbara K. Walker, for her untiring assistance.
