Language Learning and the Intermediate Student

When a student has completed a pre-intermediate course, he enters a period of consolidation and expansion. What has been learnt so far must be practised constantly. At the same time, the student must learn to come to terms with wider English. He will still have intensive practice in the four skills, understanding, speaking, reading and writing, but many of the exercises he will be doing will be less mechanical.

At this level, there is less need for pattern control and contextualization. Now that the foundations have been laid, the student is in a position to cope with new sentence patterns as and when they occur. However, it is still necessary for the student to work from specially-written multi-purpose texts if he is to be trained systematically in speech and writing. In along a drive mobute of the beyong of Tur-

Students working at this level often wish to sit for academic examinations like the Cambridge Lower Certificate. Now it is a curious paradox that formal examinations often hinder rather than help a student to learn a language. However, there should be no need to work at cross-purposes: it is quite possible for the student to go on learning a language and to prepare for an examination at the same time. It must be clearly understood that a formal examination with its bias towards the written language will only exert a pernicious influence on language learning when it is regarded as an end in itself. When the teacher makes it his aim to get his class through an examination and no more, he will undoubtedly fail to teach the language properly. An examination must always be regarded as something secondary, a by-product which the student will take in his stride. It must never be regarded as an end in itself. An intermediate course should not only enable a student to go on learning English systematically, but should, incidentally, enable him to pass an examination without special preparation.

Basic Aims

1. To provide a comprehensive course for adult or secondary students who have completed a pre-intermediate course. The course contains sufficient material for one academic year's work. It is assumed that the student will receive about four hours' instruction each week: i.e. four one-hour lessons on four separate occasions, or two 'double periods' each consisting of two hours or ninety minutes. The student will receive most of his training in the classroom and will be required to do a certain amount of extra work in his own time.

Language Learning and the Intermediate Student

- 2. To continue the student's training in the four skills! understanding, speaking, reading and writing—in that order. In this respect, the course sets out to do two things: to provide material which will be suitable for aural/oral practice and which can also be used to train the student systematically to write English.
- 3. To provide the student with a book which will enable him to use the language.
  4. To provide the teacher with material which will enable him to conduct each lesson with a minimum of preparation.
- 5. To enable the teacher and the student to work entirely from a single volume without the need for additional 'practice books'.
- 6. To enable students to sit for the Cambridge Lower Certificate examination at the end of the course if they wish to do so. This aim must be regarded as coincidental to the main purpose of training students in the four language skills.

A searching test, based on material already studied, precedes Units 1 and 2. This will make it possible for students to find their own level and enable them to begin at any point in the book. At the same time, the student who works through the course systematically from beginning to end is not expected to make too sudden a jump between Units. The tests should enable the teacher to assess how much the students have learnt. If they are found to be too long, they should be divided into manageable compartments. All the exercises on Key Structures (Essential Grammar) and Special Difficulties (Usage) are derived from each passage. There are grammar exercises in Units 1 and 2 only. The exercises given are based largely on patterns which were fully explained in the pre-intermediate course Practice and Progress.

Cross-references

Cross-references have been included to enable the student to refer to material he has already learnt and to draw useful comparisons. Students who previously studied Practice and Progress are advised to refer to it when in difficulty. In the text, cross-references are in heavy type and are indicated in the following manner:

- a 1 KS (=KEY STRUCTURE) These letters are followed by a page number and sometimes a paragraph reference: e.g. 1 KS 47b. The figure '1' indicates that the reference is to a section in the previous volume Practice and Progress.
- b KS (=KEY STRUCTURE) The omission of the figure '1' indicates that the reference is to a section of the present volume.
- c 1 SD (=SPECIAL DIFFICULTY) These letters are followed by a page number and sometimes a paragraph reference: e.g. 1 SD 52c. The figure '1' indicates that the reference is to a section in the previous volume Practice and Progress.

Ideally, two classroom lessons of approximately 50 minutes each should be spent on each text. The first lesson should be devoted to Guided Conversation; the second to Composition and Language Study. This means that there is enough material in this book for 120 lessons. However, you may choose to spend only one classroom lesson on each text-in which case, every lesson may be devoted to Guided Conversation and a selection of written exercises may be set as homework. Your first task is to decide how much time you have in your programme in relation to the material available in the course.

The suggestions given below outline the basic steps in each lesson. You may decide to follow them closely, adapt them to suit your style of teaching, or reject them altogether-BUT PLEASE READ THEM FIRST! Stinly sorth in ni sorth

2 Question and Answer Practice

Question and answer practice should be based mainly on the text. However, you may frequently vary this with questions which relate to the student's own experience. If you find it difficult to ask questions spontaneously, prepare yourself in advance. Questions should be asked individually round the class-preferably at speed. Two exercises are suggested: 100 web a see sometent to 1,515 H b Asking Questions in Pairs

a Mixed Questions. General comprehension questions may be asked. Here, for instance, are a number of questions which relate to Text 1.

3 Pattern Drill

Drill the main language point which has been introduced in the text. Use the publication entitled 'Developing Skills, Recorded Drills: Tapescript' for this purpose. Here, for instance, is part of the drill which relates to Text 2:

Student: You're always borrowing George's car. Illiw always you share a some be devoted to written exercises. A rangement Teacher: He's got into trouble.

Student: He's always getting into trouble. etc.

The students may be trained to answer in chorus or groups, or the drill may be conducted a number of times rapidly round the class with individual students responding. A brief grammatical explanation may be given before the drill is conducted. If a language-laboratory is available, this will be adequate preparation for further practice. However, it must be stressed that a laboratory is by no means indispensable: it is quite possible to do all the drilling live in the classroom. Alternatively, teachers who have tape-recorders may choose to play the not completed in class time, may be set as homework. The writes a silvent and selish

4 Oral Reconstruction

Write a number of brief notes ('key words') on the blackboard summarising the subject-matter of the last paragraph (not the whole story!). Now invite individual pupils to reconstruct the text by referring to the notes. The students should be encouraged to speak without interruption for short periods and should try to use as many as possible of the expressions, structures, etc., of the original story. Here, for instance, are some notes which relate to Text 1:00 is another men. no

The final part of the Guided Conversation Lesson should be devoted to free conversation. Where the text immediately suggests a subject or subjects for general discussion, individual students should be invited to speak impromptu. Here, for instance, are a few talking points suggested by Text 1.

a Which animals you like/dislike most and why.

b Describe a visit to a zoo.

c Your attitude to zoos: is it right to put animals into cages?

Obviously, not all texts provide suitable material for conversation. Where a general discussion is not possible, the lesson may end with any one of the followhey're like cars, aren't they? ing activities:

a Singing: Teach the class traditional or modern British and American songs. Any good song book may be used for this purpose.

b Games: Well-known parlour games like 'Twenty Questions' are always popular with students. A book like 'Language-teaching Games and Contests' by W. R. Lee (O.U.P.) is full of excellent ideas. All one samue it on AsA reaches T c Story-telling: You-may occasionally read a story to the class—providing it is roughly within the students' structural/lexical range. Many of the titles in the Longman Simplified English Series are suitable for this purpose.

Lesson 2: Composition and Language Study

As has already been indicated, this entire lesson may be omitted and a selection of written exercises may, instead, be set as homework. If this approach is adopted. then either the Précis or the Composition must always be set. Needless to say, more satisfactory results will be obtained where a complete classroom lesson can be devoted to written exercises.

Books Required:

Developing Skills (for teachers and students) Supplementary Written Exercises (for teachers)

The students may be trained to answer in chorus or groups,

The exercises may be tackled in the order in which they are given. While the students are writing, you may go round the class helping individuals. Exercises not completed in class time, may be set as homework. The written exercises become more demanding and time-consuming as the student progresses through the course. However, it is not necessary to complete every single exercise. Note that additional multiple choice practice is provided in a separate publication.

Depending on the amount of time available, dictations should be given frequently. A few sentences taken from a passage the students have already studied may be dictated. The students may correct their own work by comparing their version with the passage.

Pre-Unit Tests

These should always be set before the students move on to a new Unit.

Additional Reading Material

It is essential for the students to read as much as possible in their own time. The books set for extra-curricular reading should be simplified and well within their range. The following readers are suggested to accompany the Units in this book: Units 1 and 2: As many titles as possible from Longman Simplified English Series.

Unit 3: As many titles as possible from Longman Bridge Series.
