

Travels in China

1966-71

Kenneth Alley

TRAVELS
in CHINA
1966-71

Rewi Alley

NEW WORLD PRESS PEKING
1973

Miao village, west Hunan.

Revolutionary Museum
buildings, Shaoshan, Hunan.

Over new canal at Shaoshan, Hunan.

New country bridge, Hunan, built of stone on old model.

Where tailor Tien was skinned alive. "Never forget class bitterness, the debts of blood and tears," the tablet reminds.

Dam for turbine pump, west Hunan.

Siphon over valley, west Hunan.

New canal, Shaoshan, Hunan.

Lock, west Hunan.

West Hunan.

Shaoshan — youth marchers at Chairman Mao's childhood home.

Student long marchers from the north in Shaoshan, Hunan.

Miao commune folk marching off to winter work, west Hunan.

Hunan student marchers, 1967.

Miao school boys in Chishou, west Hunan.

HUNAN

SHANGHAI

Shanghai is a place where youth learn by practice.

"I am going to work in a generator factory." Shanghai.

Sweet and 12 already, Shanghai.

Children in a Shanghai rural commune.

School propaganda group gives concert, Shanghai.

Shanghai-made tugs now take big lighters (also Shanghai-made) up the Yangtze and through the gorges.

Concrete boats under construction in a Shanghai suburban commune.

The four-ton truck made in Shanghai.

Shanghai-made 15-ton tip truck.

A Shanghai commune turns out transformers for rural use.

Dairy stock in a Shanghai commune.

Factory for handicapped people, Shanghai.

