Acknowledgements

THIS book originated from a doctoral thesis which was submitted to the Faculty of Social Sciences, University of Indonesia. Certainly in the entire process of becoming a book in its present form many people with different points of view as well as colleagues in a variety of disciplines have contributed valuable thoughts and comments in the light of which I have come to see my biases and shortcomings even more clearly.

I would like to express my sincerest gratitude for the academic guidance of Professor Selo Soemardjan, then Secretary to the Office of Indonesia's Vice-President, and to Professor Sajogyo of Institut Pertanian Bogor. More particularly in the period of preparing a revised draft of the manuscript for publication I was also guided by the comments of Professor Soedarsono Hadisapoetro, Minister of Agriculture (1978-83) and a senior agricultural economist of Gadjah Mada University, Yogyakarta, and Dr Mely Tan, sociologist and senior researcher at Lembaga Ekonomi dan Kemasyarakatan Nasional, LIPI in Jakarta.

Among the foundations and institutions which provided me the funding for research as well as data processing in the period 1975-6, I should mention with sincere feelings of gratitude: The Ford Foundation; Lembaga Penelitian Sosiologi Pedesaan of Institut Pertanian Bogor; and The Agricultural Development Council, Inc.

My personal thanks are due also to Dr Peter D. Weldon, who was until 1981 with The Ford Foundation; I knew him as an American colleague who has great empathy with Indonesia. Not less valuable was the help and assistance that Dra. Joan Hardjono of Fakultas Sastra, Universitas Padjadjaran in Bandung gave me; I am much obliged for her professional advice in linguistic matters.

I acknowledge with thanks the use of library facilities at the Institute of Southeast Asian Studies in Singapore, and I am indebted to Professor Kernial Singh Sandhu, the Director of the Institute, for his stimulating concern.

I found the comments from (emeritus) Professor W. F. Wertheim and Professor J. C. Breman of Erasmus University, both in The Netherlands, most encouraging; they suggested that the manuscript should be published unabridged. Eventually I decided to accommodate this opinion and the suggestions of the reader, Dr Peter D. Weldon.

Finally I would like to give expression to my great indebtedness to Pien, my wife, as well as to Myrza and Irvan, our two boys. I thank them for their understanding and patience through which I found much tacit encouragement. All I can hope for is that their sacrifices, perhaps made unknowingly, will be rewarded by the usefulness of my study.

Explanatory Notes

THE following symbols have been used throughout the study:

A dash (—) indicates that the amount is nil or negligible.

A stroke (/) indicates a crop or fiscal year e.g. 1974/5.

A short dash (—) between years e.g. 1970—71, signifies the full period involved.

Mean refers to arithmetic means.

Absolute frequencies (27) refer to a set of quantified observations expressed in absolute numbers.

Relative frequencies (5) refer to a set of quantified observations expressed in percentages.

US$1.00 equals 415 Rupiah.*

Details and percentages in tables and text do not necessarily add up to totals because of rounding.

*Present conversion rate (November 1983) is US$1.00 = Rp 900.
