A Brief Introduction to the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences (CASS)

Course of Development

The Chinese Academy of Social Sciences (CASS) is the highest academic research institution in the fields of philosophy and social sciences as well as a national center for comprehensive studies in the country.

Based on the Department of Philosophy and Social Sciences under the Chinese Academy of Sciences (CAS), the CASS was established in May 1977. Prof. Hu Qiaomu was the first President of the CASS, and Prof. Ma Hong was the second. At present Prof. Hu Sheng holds the position of the CASS President.

The CASS now consists of 31 research institutes and more than 50 research centers of which two are separate entities. Scientific researchers of these institutes and centers deal with approximately 260 secondary and tertiary disciplines (sub-disciplines), among which 131 are specially supported. There are more than 3,900 staff members in the CASS, and about 3,080 are researchers or professional workers. Among them, 1,500 and more hold senior professional titles, and over 1,100 are of intermediate professional titles.

Research Activities

The planning for the development of social sciences in the People's Republic of China is in step with the nation's Five-Year Plans. The CASS conducts a considerable number of priority research projects defined by the nation's Planning for the Development of Philosophy and Social Sciences. In addition to this, it sets also Academy's and institutes' major research projects in the light of the country's needs as well as the characteristics and development of the disciplines concerned. In the meantime, the CASS takes vigorous action to engage in research projects on vital theoretical and practical problems assigned or entrusted by government departments.

The collection and utilization of information resources are indispensable conditions to researchers. The CASS has a large comprehensive library, and parts of research institutes have their own libraries, some smaller on scale and with a more special collection. The whole CASS has a collection of more than 5,370,000 volumes including a considerable number of precious and rare books or ancient codes and records.

It has exchange relations with 200-odd social sciences research institutions, learned societies, universities, foundations and government departments abroad. And the agreements on co-operation have been signed with the institutions of 26 countries or regions. The scale of annual exchanges has reached about 2,400 persons.

Research Achievements

The CASS provides society with its achievements in scientific research in the forms of academic writings, research papers, findings and research reports, translations and literature compilations, etc. Since the founding of the CASS, it has published 4,975 academic books, 63,477 scientific papers, 8,383 findings and research reports, 2,046 translated books, 16,108 translated articles, as well as a large number of sorted ancient books with punctuations, collations and annotations, many dictionaries, reference books and popular reading materials.
